SHARES DISTRIBUTED ON HIS ADVICE

Mrs. Jessie H. Rand Transferred Fortune to Husband and Children Before She Died.

Frank C. Rand, chairman of the board of directors of the International Shoe Co., testified today in the hearing of a Federal estate tax claim for $188,504 against the estate of his sister, Mrs. Jessie H. Rand. The hearing was held before former Congressman W. W. Arnold, member of the United States Board of Tax Appeals, in Courtroom 3 of the Federal Building.

Mrs. Rand, who was a Rand before her marriage and who lived in Huntsville, Ala., died in December, 1933, aged 67. In 1919 and later she distributed a large part of her holdings of International Shoe stock to her husband, Dr. Edgar Rand, and their four adult children. The Government now contends that these gifts of stock were made in contemplation of death, to evade the Federal estate tax.

The estate's counsel contends that the gifts of stock were made not in contemplation of death, but in anticipation of living, and to avoid the income tax and the Alabama State tax on security holdings.

Frank Rand Advised Her.

Frank Rand testified that his sister, in distributing a part of her stock holdings, acted on his advice, which was given repeatedly. The first distribution, in 1919, involving 580 shares of common stock and 2155 shares of preferred stock, was made on his advice, and the stock was handled by him, Rand said. A son, Joseph O. Rand of St. Louis, now export manager of the shoe company, received the 580 shares of common; the husband, Dr. Rand, received 580 shares of preferred; another son, F. L. Rand of Atlanta, Ga., received 452 preferred; and the daughters, Mrs. de Witt Dillard and Mrs. John Yarborough of Huntsville, received 580 and 543 shares of preferred, respectively.

Rand said that before the 1919 distribution, his sister's holding of International Shoe stock had a market value of $681,200. The Government's counsel makes a different estimate, holding them to have been worth more than $1,000,000. He said her annual income from dividends was $41,946, on which she paid a Federal income tax of $4100. He pointed out to her that by the distribution of the stock to her children, she would save $2918 income tax.

Suggested Second Distribution.

"In 1923," Rand testified, "I wrote my sister a letter, advising her to make another distribution, giving her children, while she was still in good health, that part of her estate which was beyond any possible needs of her life in a small town. I told her it would suffice if she kept $25,000 worth of her holdings, with the money she had accumulated from dividends.

"I made this suggestion because, in 1921, I myself made a substantial distribution to my children. I thought then that it was a sound move, and I think so now, and I was advising her along the same line."

Rand said his sister did not act at once on the 1923 suggestion, or on a similar suggestion which he made in 1925. In the latter year, he said, her income from dividends was $74,000, and she had accumulated $146,000 cash. He suggested that she give 1538 shares to each of her four children, and estimated that her income from the remaining shares, plus the earnings of her cash, would give her an annual income of $45,000.

Had Talk With Sister.

"In October, 1926," Rand continued, "my sister came to St. Louis to attend my daughter's wedding. I had a long talk with her, and told her again of what I had done as to my own family. I followed this with a letter, in January, 1927, inclosing copies of a trust agreement which I had caused to be drawn up. She decided on a second distribution, which was made March 14, 1927."

In Good Health, Witness Says.

In this distribution, Rand said, his sister's four children received each 1000 shares of common and 100 each of preferred stock. In August, 1929, he continued, she made a third distribution, giving each of the children 3576 shares of common and 125 of preferred.

"During all this time," Rand testified, "my sister was in good

CONVICTION OF CONGRESSMAN IN WEST POINT CASE UPHELD

District of Columbia Appellate Court Rejects Plea of Representative Hoeppel.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The conviction of Congressman John H. Hoeppel of California and his son, Charles J. Hoeppel, for conspiracy to sell an appointment to the military academy at West Point, was affirmed unanimously today by the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

They were sentenced to four months to one year in jail by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. They have been at liberty on $1000 bond each.

James W. Ives of Baltimore testified the Hoeppels accepted a $1000 promissory note from him for the appointment.

The father recently demanded an immediate trial on a second indictment charging the substantive offense on which the conspiracy case was based.

In the unanimous opinion by Associate Justice Van Orsdel, the Appellate Court denied a contention by counsel for the Hoeppels that the Federal statutes involved did not apply to cadets at West Point.

Shortly after the Court's decision, Assistant United States' Attorneys David A. Pine and Samuel Beach announced they would nol pros the second indictment.

Hoeppel said he would take an appeal to the Supreme Court.

Supreme Court Upholds Appellate Decision for Chicago Grain Trader.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The Government lost today in the Supreme Court in its effort to bar Arthur W. Cutten, Chicago trader, from the grain markets for two years.

In a unanimous opinion delivered by Justice Brandeis, the Court, as it indicated recently it would do, affirmed a ruling by the Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago, from which the Grain Futures Commission had appealed.

Cutten had been charged by the commission with failure to report his grain holdings in 1930 and 1931 for the purpose of manipulating prices. The commission was composed of the Secretary of Agriculture, Secretary of Commerce and the Attorney-General. In its ruling, the Court of Appeals held that the words "is violating" in the Grain Futures Act could not apply to violations alleged to have occurred more than two years previously. Cutten is known as the man who owned more wheat at one time than anyone else in history.

STOCKS ADVANCE, FALL BACK AFTER GUFFEY ACT RULING

Gains of $1 to $4 on New York Exchange After Law Is Knocked Out.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The stock market swung into a sharp advance today following announcement that the Supreme Court had declared the Guffey Coal Act unconstitutional. In the buying rush many early declines were canceled and replaced with gains of $1 to around $4 a share.

The rally was short lived, however, and prices slid back to close irregularly lower.

The market had idled during the greater part of the session, traders apparently waiting for the opinion, which had been expected for weeks. The ticker tape fell about four minutes behind transactions on the floor of the stock exchange after the decision was learned.

WRANGEL ISLAND 'DICTATOR' BEING TRIED FOR MURDER

PHYSICIAN'S WIDOW IS CHIEF WITNESS

Testifies Defendant Refused Her Rations, Tried to Drive Her Into Arctic Wastes.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, May 18.—A tale of tyranny, starvation and death under a dictatorship high in the Arctic Circle was put before the Supreme Court today by the widow of Dr. W. R. Wulfson, for whose murder "Little Dictator" K. B. Semenchuk, Wrangel Island polar station administrator, is on trial.

She bore, too, the name of "Dr. Feldman." Semenchuk, she told the Court, did not stop with the death of her husband, his avowed foe.

After Dr. Wulfson had died, the polar dictator attempted to starve her by refusing her rations and then sought to drive her into the snowy Arctic wastes, she testified.

Other witnesses said the woman surely would have perished had she gone to icebound Traitor Bay on Semenchuk's orders.

They testified also that Semenchuk refused food to ailing persons in his camp.

Wanted to Scare Her.

The "Little Dictator," accused both of the Wulfson death and of starving Eskimos in the North, said he ordered Mrs. Wulfson away merely to "frighten" her.

Prosecutors prepared to summon George Ushakoff, noted polar explorer, following the "free day" recess.

Ushakoff, in command of last year's voyage of discovery by the icebreaker Sadko in the vicinity of Franz Josef Land and a former resident of Wrangel Island, was called by the prosecution as an expert to prove the severe regime set up by Semenchuk was not necessary.

Semenchuk was administrator of the Wrangel Island polar station in the winter of 1934-35. He is on trial for his life, while his assistant, S. P. Startseff, faces charges of complicity in the alleged crimes.

The mysterious death on Wrangel Island, bleak territory in the Soviet Arctic, of Startseff's wife occupied the attention of the Court.

Charge of Murder.

Several witnesses were examined in an effort to prove she died after being treated by a hydrologist named Vakulenko, who was entrusted with medical care of the island colony after the death of Dr. Wulfson is charged.

The result of an autopsy on the body of Wulfson, read in court yesterday, attributed his death to a blow on the nose with a heavy instrument. Startseff remained silent in the face of the prosecutor's charge he killed Wulfson on orders from Semenchuk.

Previously, Startseff attempted to throw the blame for the murder of Dr. Wulfson on Vakulenko, declaring the latter killed Dr. Wulfson and that Semenchuk made the arrangements.

Soon after arriving at the island at the head of a wintering party of 16, Semenchuk, according to the charge, set himself up as dictator over the little group and the population of 65 Eskimos.

The least criticism of his actions was called "conspiracy and rebellion," offenders being confined to a warehouse which was converted into a detention camp.

"Here, I am everything and have all rights up to shooting people," he was quoted as saying.

Deaths From Starvation.

The indictment said Semenchuk forbade Eskimos to hunt sea animals, thus depriving them of meat. When the hungry natives asked for food, it is charged, the dictator refused, although the warehouse was well stocked. There were a number of deaths from starvation. In one instance, Semenchuk is accused of forcing an Eskimo to drag a dog sled nearly seven miles as a disciplinary measure.

Dr. Wulfson made sharp attacks on Semenchuk in speeches at meetings of the wintering party. On Christmas eve Semenchuk is declared to have ordered him to make the difficult overland trip to Point Blason to attend a sick Eskimo, sending Startsev as a guide.

Several days later Wulfson's body, bearing marks of violence, was found on the route. The indictment charges that Semenchuk and Startsev were prevented from lowering it through a hole in the ice only by protests of the colony.

INSURANCE BETS OF HIGH BRITISH OFFICIALS SHOWN

Sir Alfred Butt Says He Paid Colonial Secretary $3160 on Policy Against Election in 1935.

DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF BUDGET LEAK

Sportsman M. P. Says His Visit to Thomas' Office on Announcement Day Was About a Horse.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 18.—Sir Alfred Butt, millionaire sportsman and member of Parliament, told the British budget leak investigating commission today that Colonial Secretary J. H. Thomas collected £632 9 shillings (around $3160) in "insurance" against the possibility of a general election being held in 1935.

Butt, who denied vehemently that he and Thomas ever talked about the recently announced budget, said he had "induced" the Cabinet member to take out £1000 sterling insurance "against the 1935 election." The transaction was arranged when the two met at a racetrack, Butt explained.

Following the general election, won by the National Government, with which Thomas was identified, Butt sent Thomas a check for £632 9s., he testified. That was after he had deducted the insurance premium from the total face value of the policy, Butt said.

Upset About His Son.

Butt told the commission, which is trying to find out who disclosed the 1936 budget secrets ahead of time, that Secretary Thomas was "very upset" when the name of his son, Leslie Thomas, was mentioned in connection with the "leak."

He said the Minister exclaimed: "Our Les? What a damned stupid rumor! He wouldn't do a thing like that. God Almighty, he wouldn't! What a damned silly thing!"

Butt flatly denied he knew anything about the budget "leak."

A short time before, Bernard Davis, a stock broker, had testified Butt placed "somewhat extensive" selling orders in several stocks a few hours before the budget, carrying plans for higher income and tea taxes, was read in the House of Commons.

Butt, who owns theaters and race horses, declared: "I have been in Commons since 1922 and during that whole time I have neither asked for nor received from any Cabinet Minister—including Colonial Secretary J. H. Thomas — any information regarding the budget or any other confidential matter of government."

Visited Thomas on Budget Day.

Later, Butt said he visited Thomas in the latter's office on budget day, but asserted they discussed merely the prospects of a horse which had been running at Newmarket.

He added: "As Thomas is always most anxious to obtain information regarding racing from me—in fact, talks about it nearly every day—I told him I thought he ought to have a wager on that particualr horse.

Secretary Thomas has denied he told any budget secrets.

Davis told the inquiry that Butt placed the selling orders after Davis told him he thought the stock market would be "dulled" if the income tax were raised. Butt's stock account, the broker added, has run as high as £2,000,000 sterling ($10,000,000).

Why He Expected Rise.

Davis explained he expected the income tax to be higher because he thought the "amount of money required for additional armaments would be found from revenue."

A few days after the budget was announced the stock broker said Butt told him: "If you're asked to give the name of your client, I wish you'd say I am both anxious and willing that it be disclosed."

Butt's son, Kenneth, who is an underwriting member of Lloyds, the insurance house, followed Davis.

"My father said he thought there would be an increase in income taxes," he said. "He also said he was sure the Chancellor (Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer) would tax commodities as well, so all taxpayers would contribute."

The younger Butt added that his father believed tea would be singled out for a higher tax, because he thought "whisky is already overtaxed."

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 18.—Police arrested William Cummings, 35 years old, of Chicago here yesterday and found two $1000 bills in his necktie. Officers said he was wanted at Columbus, Ga., in connection with the robbery of Mrs. Elizabeth Rogers on May 9.

$4,800,000,000 GRANT OF 1935 OUTSIDE POWER OF GOVERNMENT

Five Federal Judges Unanimous That This Is Delegation Running Riot,' Though Two Make Procedural Dissent.

RULING IN JERSEY RESETTLEMENT CASE

Opinion Holds Congress Unlawfully Transferred Authority to President, Failed to Prescribe Duties, Invaded States' Rights.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—A Federal Court of Appeals in a sweeping decision today declared the Federal Relief Act of 1935 to be unconstitutional.

The court said the law "attempts to reach and control matters over which the Constitution has given Congress no powers."

Three of the five Judges of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals reversed a decision of the District of Columbia Supreme Court and held that the $4,800,000,000 appropriation for work relief and direct relief was invalid on the ground that Congress had unlawfully delegated its powers to the President, had failed to give definite authorizations and had invaded states' rights.

The opinion was written by Associate Justice Van Orsdel and concurred in by Chief Justice Martin and Associate Justice Robb. The other two members, Justices Groner and Stephens, agreed that constitutional authority was lacking in this case, but said the court should not have passed on validity of the entire program to decide the case at bar.

Ruling on Entire Act.

The Court said it was necessary to pass on the entire act in order to determine "whether or not legal authority exists" in the particular relief project.

Supporting its decision to consider the entire act, instead of merely finding powers lacking in the particular test case, the Court said it was following the lead of the Supreme Court.

"The Supreme Court in the Butler case could have avoided the question of constitutionality merely by declaring that Secretary Wallace and his subordinates were acting without authority," the majority said.

"It adds nothing to the force of the act that the President has been designated as the agent of the Government to enforce the act.

"If the powers exist, Congress could have as well designated a board or a commission, or Tugwell and his associates directly, thereby obviating any necessity for intervention on the part of the President.

"The fundamental question involved is the total lack of constitutional power on the part of Congress to put into operation through legislation a project such as is here contemplated."

Associate Justices Groner and Stephens, newest members of the court, in separate opinions, said the test case should have been sent back to the lower court without passing on constitutionality of the entire act, or the question of authority in the specific project.

New Jersey Project.

The ruling particularly involved one of four major suburban housing projects started by the Resettlement Administration from an allocation of $30,000,000. These, intended to provide low cost homes for 5000 families, are at Berwyn Heights, Md., near Washington, at Cincinnati, O., at Milwaukee, Wis., and Bound Brook, N. J.

STORMS DELAY HINDENBURG ON ATLANTIC CROSSING TO U. S.

Airship, Without Adequate Weather Reports, Gets Into Disturbed Area.

ABOARD THE ZEPPELIN HINDENBURG, En Route to America, May 18.—Because of heavy storms over the Atlantic, the Hindenburg cannot reach Lakehurst, N. J., before Wednesday morning.

Weather reports have been insufficient—practically no reports were received during the 18 hours previous to noon, ship's time.

Sufficient weather reports, it was said, would have enabled the officers of the Hindenburg to have avoided the storm area easily.

At noon, the Hindenburg's position was 42 degrees 36 minutes north latitude and 39 degrees 3 minutes west longitude and the ship had covered 2098 nautical miles from Frankfort on the Main, Germany.

(Radio reports received in New York by the Radio Marine Corporation and Postal Telegraph indicated the Hindenburg headed slightly east of straight south between 9 a. m. and 11 a. m.

(A 9 a. m. it had reached 39 degrees 3 minutes west and at 11 a. m. it was 39 degrees west. The latter position placed it at 41 degrees 41 minutes north latitude—a position charted by the United States Hydrographic Office at 1640 nautical miles east of Lakehurst.)

MUSSOLINI SAID TO HAVE TOLD STARHEMBERG TO KEEP QUIET

Authority Says Premier Advised Against Stirring Up Trouble in Austria.

ROME, May 18.—Premier Mussolini talked today with the Fascist Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, deposed Vice-Chancellor of Austria, and a well-informed source said Mussolini's counsel was to keep quiet.

This authority said Mussolini advised the Prince to return to Austria, not to oppose the policies of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, and, above all, not to stir up internal strife.

This would bear out Mussolini's telegram to Schuschnigg after the reorganization of the Austrian Government last week. In the message, Mussolini wished Schuschnigg success. Von Starhemberg is expected to return to Vienna tomorrow.

LIVESTOCK MEN LOSE RATE SUIT AGAINST WALLACE

Supreme Court Denies Them Right to Make Higher Charges Than Those Set by Secretary.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18. — Commission men buying and selling livestock at the Chicago Union Stockyards lost today in the Supreme Court in their effort to collect rates higher than those authorized by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

The unanimous decision was delivered by Justice Roberts. It was given in two cases involving the Secretary's power under the 1921 Packers and Stockyards' Act.

Rates were reduced by Wallace in an order issued Jan. 8, 1934. It was modified upward somewhat on March 12.

Wallace was sustained by a three-judge Federal District Court and the dealers appealed to the Supreme Court.

Publishing of Higher Rates.

Later, on Oct. 19, 1935, the Commission men published a new set of higher rates to become effective Nov. 1, 1935. Wallace returned the schedule without calling a hearing to determine whether it was reasonable. The dealers contended it became effective and were upheld by the same three-judge Federal Court.

A temporary injunction was granted on April 19, 1934, restraining enforcement of the Wallace rates pending an appeal, provided the difference in the charges be deposited with the court for future disposition in accordance with the Supreme Court ruling.

The higher rates proposed by the Commission men went into effect. They were required to post a $50,000 bond with the court to repay to

CONGRESS HAS NO POWER TO REGULATE HOURS, WAGES

RULING ON NRA CITED AS PRECEDENT

'Working Conditions Are Obviously Local Conditions,' Opinion Says—Justices Brandeis, Cardozo and Stone Dissent.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18. — Dividing six to three, the Supreme Court struck down the Guffey Coal Act today on the same ground that it invalidated NRA—an unconstitutional invasion of state powers.

The majority, through Justice Sutherland, held the Federal Government was without power to regulate hours and wages in the mining industry.

The dissenters were Justices Brandeis, Stone and Cardozo.

Labor and Price-Fixing.

The Court did not rule on the constitutionality of the price-fixing provisions of the Guffey law to regulate the bituminous industry, but said these were so related to the labor provisions that the fall of the latter carried the price-fixing section down, too.

In failing to rule on the price-fixing provisions, the majority opinion warned that nothing the Court said was to be taken as an indication that it would uphold them, even if they were enacted separately.

Chief Justice Hughes, in a separate opinion, concurred in the finding of the majority that Congress had exceeded its authority in attempting to regulate wages and hours.

Not a Tax, But a Penalty.

The majority opinion held the excise tax of 15 per cent on soft coal production, with provisions for refunding 90 per cent for adherence to terms of the law was "clearly not a tax but a penalty." But the court did not rule on the tax.

"The position of the Government, as we understand it," the opinion said, "is that the validity of the exaction does not rest upon the taxing power but upon the power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce; and that if the act in respect of the labor and price fixing provisions be not upheld, the 'tax' must fall with them.

"With that position we agree and confine our consideration accordingly."

Opinion of Justice Cardozo.

"I am satisfied," the dissenting opinion by Justice Cardozo said, "that the act is within the power of the central Government insofar as it provides for minimum and maximum prices upon sales of bituminous coal in the transactions of interstate commerce and in those of intrastate commerce where interstate commerce is directly or intimately affected.

"Whether it is valid also in other (labor) provisions that have been considered and condemned in the opinion of the court, I do not find it necessary to determine at this time. Silence must not be taken as importing acquiesence.

In a trenchant decision, the court said the conclusion was unavoidable "that the price-fixing provisions of the (bituminous) code are so related to and dependent upon the labor provisions as conditions, considerations or compensations, as to make it clearly probable that, the former being held bad, the latter would not have been passed.

"The fall of the former (before the court), therefore, carries down with it the latter.

"The price-fixing provisions of the code are thus disposed of without coming to the question of their constitutionality; but neither this disposition of the matter, nor anything we have said, is to be taken

MANY ETHIOPIANS SHOT BY ITALIAN FIRING SQUADS

4 NEWSPAPER MEN FORCED TO LEAVE

Expelled From Country After Being Found Guilty of Activities Against the Fascists.

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press

ADDIS ABABA, May 17 (By Military Plane to Asmara, Eritrea, May 18.)—Many Ethiopians in and around this former Ethiopian capital have been executed by Italian firing squads in the last few days.

The victims included persons caught in the act of killing and looting, armed prowlers and bandits who refused to give up arms in accordance with a proclamation of martial law.

An officer who has done long service in the colonies said the Italians waited for the situation to clear itself, but when the Ethiopians continued raiding the Italians had no choice but to invoke under martial law the penalties announced in a proclamation by Marshal Pietro Badoglio.

"For 3000 years these people have known only the law of the strong despoiling the weak, the armed plundering the unarmed," the officer said. "There is no other choice if order is to be finally restored and law established."

Account of Execution.

The correspondent witnessed an execution in the compound behind the Carabinieri headquarters near the Menelik monument last night. A bandit chieftain, caught in an attack on a farmhouse, 30 miles north of here, was killed after a trial in which members of his own gang testified to his guilt.

In the bare room of the commissariat a judge heard the evidence and pronounced sentence of death.

Then, in the darkness, the bandit was marched out to a white-washed wall across the small courtyard of the compound. He was tall and thin, with bushy hair and a bare face.

He said nothing and seemed rather uninterested as the Carabinieri bound his hands behind him and turned his face to the wall. He stood there while the Carabinieri lined up 20 feet away. At the command of fire he fell to the ground.

In accordance with the custom of military execution, a lieutenant fired a pistol in the head to make death certain.

Newspaper Men Expelled.

Four newspaper men and three other persons, declared guilty of anti-Italian activities and espionage, have been expelled from Ethiopia.

The newspaper men expelled are George Steer, correspondent for the London and New York Times; Isadore Nebenzahl, a representative of the Havas (French) News Agency; Alkeos Angelopoulos, a Hearst correspondent, and M. D. Robillard, director of an Ethiopian newspaper.

Description of Villa Where Haile Selassie Is Likely to Stay.

VEVEY, Switzerland, May 18.—An inspection of Emperor Haile Selassie's villa here by Wolde Mariam, Ethiopia's delegate to Geneva, indicates that the fallen Emperor will soon make Vevey his retreat.

The villa is a huge Victorian 21-room mansion in a park overgrown with vegetation, near the shores of Lake Geneva.

The Negus bought the estate in 1930, when he expected to send his children to European schools. Traveling members of the Ethiopian royal family spent their summers in the villa until it was closed for the winter of 1934.

The mansion is one of the largest in Vevey and one of the most simply furnished. The house, built in 1897 and renovated in 1927, is a rambling frame structure with broad balconies facing the gardens.

Behind the salon on the first floor are two semi-private rooms for the master of the house—a library and a smoking room. Across the front hall from the salon is the dining room, where a big table seats 30 diners.

Eden Says Trickery Was Used in Dumdum Bullet Charges.

LONDON, May 18.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden charged before the House of Commons today that forgery, deception and trickery were used to obtain "fabricated evidence" of Ethiopian dumdum bullets purportedly made in England.

He said the evidence was obtained by Col. Pedro Lopez, whom the British knew as a "notorious purveyor or false information." Stung by Italian allegations which were hastily withdrawn from Geneva last week, Eden took advantage of a question in Commons to tell the story of Lopez' activities.

Lopez, he said, was a British subject of Polish origin and was well known in England under several aliases. He posed in London as an Ethiopian arms purchaser, Eden declared. Then he resorted to forged letters and trickery to induce a munitions firm to supply him with sample ammunition, Eden charged.

These samples, Eden went on, were used to persuade Italian authorities that such ammunition was being exported to Ethiopia with the official connivance of the United Kingdom.

Aware that Lopez was in touch with the Italian Embassy, Eden said he warned Ambassador Dino Grandi of Italy that "the continued employment of a man of this disreputable type would not assist in the maintenance of good relations between the two countries."

Subsequently, however, charges based on Lopez' activities appeared in the Italian press. Eden said Lopez was known to have made contact with member of the staff of the Italian military attache in London within the last three weeks.

Eden said Lopez presented a forged intrduction from the Bank of Egypt to the Bates Co. in which he was represented as a purchaser for the Ethiopian Government. He asked that ammunition samples be sent to the Ethiopian Minister in London together with a letter guaranteeing the supplies to be of British manufacture.

Lopez then took possession of the samples and the next the British knew was the appearance in Italian newspapers of stories that the British were supplying the Ethiopians with dumdum bullets.

"I have learned," said Eden, "that neither the package nor the letter was ever delivered to the Ethiopian Minister."

Meanwhile, said Eden, Lopez, under the alias of Col. Gustav Mezler, called on the Ethiopian Minister with the promise of supplying munitions in return for concessions.

He succeeded in obtaining authorization to buy supplies in which 3,000,000 soft-nosed cartridges were included. Eden said Warqnex C. Martin, the Ethiopian Minister, did not notice the listing of the dumdums in the supply invoice.

Bank of Italy Cuts Rate to Aid Development of Ethiopia.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, May 18.—The Bank of Italy moved to make credit easier for development of Ethiopia today by reducing its rediscount rate from 5 to 4½ per cent.

The reduction followed an arrangement yesterday by a committee of Ministers to extend Italy's credit organization to Ethiopia and a decision Saturday to set aside 100,000,000 lire (about $7,800,000) for capitalization of a credit institute for Ethiopia.

Bankers said the Credit Institute would issue bonds for development of the empire annexed by Italy, and that an easing of credit was the primary purpose of the reduction in the rediscount rate.

SENATE VOTES TO REPEAL DEVALUATION 'PROFIT' LAW

Under It Philippine Government Was Credited With $23,800,000.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The Senate by a vote of 56 to 11, today passed and sent to the House a bill to repeal an act of 1934 crediting the Philippine Government with $23,862,750 "profit" from devaluation of the dollar.

Senator Adams (Dem.), Colorado, said the measure "corrected a misunderstanding into which Congress fell and which, if not corrected, will cost the American taxpayers nearly $24,000,00." The Senate earlier by a vote of 42 to 20 rejected a motion by Chairman Tydings (Dem.), Maryland, to refer the bill to the Insular Affairs Committee.

Tydings said the Filipino people would take the repeal as "an act of bad faith."

LIVESTOCK MEN LOSE RATE SUIT AGAINST WALLACE

shippers any amount later found to be unlawful.

Summary of Decision.

The opinion today held that the litigation did not "involve any question of confiscation."

"The appellants employ little physical property in their business and no complaint is made as to the allowance of interest on such as they do employ," it said. "They render a personal service and the issue before the Secretary was whether the uniform schedule of rates for that service was or was not reasonable. . . .

"We think the court correctly held that its function was the consideration of questions raised upon the record laid before the secretary."

Justice Roberts added there was no evidence in the District Court to support the allegation that Wallace arbitrarily refused to grant a rehearing. He upheld the manner in which Wallace arrived at the rate ordered.

Finding of Extravagance.

Justice Roberts said Wallace found that, with respect to the cost of getting and maintaining business, expenditures had been extravagant and wasteful.

He added:

"The contention is that the amounts to be expended for these purposes is purely a question of managerial judgment. But this overlooks the consideration that the charge is for a public service, and regulation cannot be frustrated by a requirement that the rates be made to compensate extravagance or unnecessary cost for these or any purposes."

health, and had a fine color, and her only trouble was with an occasional attack of rheumatism in one of her knees."

Government counsel asked him as to a visit made by Mrs. Rand to Barnes Hospital in 1931, for a physical examination. He repeated his statement that she was normally healthy, with the exception of recurrent rheumatic attacks.

Son Tells of Gifts.

Joseph O. Rand, one of the sons, identified letters written to him by his mother in relation to the gifts. One letter, written in 1916, suggested that he and his brother buy about $5000 worth of the shoe company stock each, for which the mother was to pay. "I believe I would rather help you boys this way," she wrote. He said each of them bought $5600 worth of the stock.

Another letter from Mrs. Rand, which her son identified, told of her surprise at the amount of the "listing tax" imposed on her stock holdings by the State of Alabama, which in one year was $5900. The estate's counsel contends that she divested herself of the stock, in part, to avoid this State tax, which the counsel declared to be "unusually heavy."

After Joseph Rand's testimony, the case was taken under submission, and will be passed on, with other cases heard in the past week, by the entire Appeal Board in Washington.

By the distribution of stock, on the plan followed by Rand and his sister, splitting large holdings into smaller ones, not only does the giver escape payment of income tax on dividends, but the recipients do not have to pay so large a total tax, because of the increasing rates of surtax on larger incomes.

A stipulation was filed today, settling the Government's deficiency income tax claim against Edward T. Hall, by his payment of $10,960.39.

TAX COMMITTEE AGAIN DELAYS ITS DECISION ON BILL

Senate Body Asks for New Treasury Figures and Orders Study of Three Pending Proposals.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The Treasury estimated today that the latest compromise tax plan of the Senate Finance Committee would produce $642,000,000, of which $173,000,000 would come from individual income tax payers.

The committee, still seeking an agreement on how to rewrite the tax bill as passed by the House, requested additional estimates on other ways of raising the $623,000,000 of permanent revenue sought by the President.

Chairman Harrison named three sub-committees, to report Wednesday morning on the "windfall" tax feature of the measure, on a provision for refunds on floor stocks on hand at the time of invalidation of the AAA, and on "the question of insurance that might be applied to pay the Government's taxes."

The committee planned no further sessions until Wednesday.

In the face of the delay in reaching an agreement on the tax controversy, word was passed that President Roosevelt considered tax legislation essential and believed Congress should stay in session until a bill is enacted.

Treasury Figures.

The Treasury, Harrison told reporters, handed over figures today to show also that by retaining permanently the present excess profits and capital stock taxes, which would be kept only temporarily and at half rates under the House bill, $168,000,000 of annual revenue would be produced.

In addition, the Treasury estimated that $107,000,000 in additional income would be produced by putting a 35 per cent tax on undistributed corporate income in excess of half of total income.

The compromise tax plan would place an 18 per cent tax on corporations' statutory net income, which the Treasury said would yield $244,000,000, a 7 per cent tax on undistributed adjusted net income, which would produce $225,000,000, and increase the present normal income tax from 4 to 5 per cent, which would yield $173,000,000.

Corporation dividends to stockholders would be subjected to the latter tax, from which they now are exempt, and this alone, Harrison said, would account for $113,000,000 of the $173,000,000.

Although he said last week that he thought the bill would be reported out by the middle of this week, the chairman told reporters today he had "an optimistic hope" for getting it out before the end of the week.

Harrison said he expected committeemen to reach the point of taking some votes Wednesday, but added that "there will be any number of proposals when we get down to the facts."

It was in anticipation of these, he said, that additional information was requested from the Treasury. An estimate was sought as to how much would be lost by exempting $15,000 of corporate income from the levy on undistributed earnings.

The Treasury also was asked to calculate the effect of a 40 per cent tax on undistributed income under 50 per cent of the total and a 60 per cent levy on undistributed earnings over 50 per cent.

Asked whether there was any appreciable oppositon within the committee to boosting the normal income tax rate by one-fourth, Harrison said: "You can't tell what the opposition will be."

Aim Is to Offset AAA Loss.

Committeemen intimated that the compromise program, the result of many suggestions by members, was aimed at one of the big problems facing them, which is how to raise the $517,000,000 of temporary revenue over three years, requested by President Roosevelt to plug the hole in Federal income created by invalidation of AAA processing levies.

The President suggested that this be obtained from the "windfall" tax on processors who avoided payment of AAA levies and from a revival of processing taxes on a broader range of commodities.

The committee already has voted, however, not to turn to processing taxes, and the windfall would produce an estimated $100,000,000.

Retention of the full capital stock and excess profits taxes would produce over three years $172,000,000 more than the House bill. Coupled with the $100,000,000 from the windfall, that still would leave the measure $245,000,000 short of the $517,000,000.

Sub-Committees Named.

Harrison put these members on the subcommittees: Winfall: George (Dem.), Georgia; Bailey (Dem.), North Carolina, and LaFollette (Prog.), Wisconsin. Refunds: Barkley (Dem.), Kentucky; Black (Dem.), Alabama and Capper (Rep.), Kansas. Insurance: Gerry (Dem.), Rhode Island; Lonergan (Dem.), Connecticut and Couzens (Rep.), Michigan.

The latter, the chairman explained, was set up to study proposals given the committee that individuals be allowed to take out insurance to assume that funds will be available to pay the Government taxes on estates. The amount of the policy required for the tax would not, under the proposals, be subject itself to taxation, but the remainder would.

Supreme Court Invalidates Guffey Law

The decision was delivered by Justice Sutherland before a crowded audience which included Senator Guffey (Dem.), Pennsylvania, coauthor of the law with Representative Snyder (Dem.), Pennsylvania.

Chief Justice's Opinion.

In his separate opinion, the Chief Justice agreed that one section of the (bituminous) code was invalid upon three counts:

"1. It attempts a broad delegation of legislative power to fix hours and wages without standards or limitation. . . .

"2. The provision permits a group of producers and employes, according to their own views of expediency, to make rules as to hours and wages for other producers and employes who were not parties to the agreement. Such a provision, apart from the mere question of the delegation of legislative power, is not in accord with the requirement of due process of law which under the Fifth Amendment dominates the regulation which Congress may impose.

"3. The provision goes beyond any proper measure of protection of Interstate Commerce and attempts a broad regulation of industry within the State.

Price Policy Up to Congress.

"But that is not the whole case. The act also provides for the regulation of the prices of bituminous coal sold in interstate commerce and prohibits unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce.

"Undoubtedly transactions in carrying on interstate commerce are subject to the Federal power to regulate that commerce and the control of charges, and the protection of fair competition in that commerce are familiar illustrations of the exercise of the power, as the interstate commerce act, the packers and stockyards act, and the anti-trust acts abundantly show. . .

"Whether the policy of fixing prices of commodities sold in interstate commerce is a sound policy is not for our consideration. The question of that policy, and of its particular applications, is for Congress."

Of the labor provisions, the majority opinion said the validity depended upon whether it was a regulation of interstate commerce.

"That commodities produced or manufactured within a state are intended to be sold or transported outside the state does not render their production or manufacture subject to Federal regulations under the commerce clause," it was held.

Two Distinct Activities.

"One who produces or manufactures a commodity, subsequently sold and shipped in interstate commerce, whether such sale and shipment were originally intended or not, has engaged in two distinct and separate activities.

"So far as he produces or manufactures a commodity, his business is purely local. So far as he sells and ships, or contracts to sel and ship, the commodity to customers in another state, he engages in interstate commerce.

"In respect of the former, he is subject only to regulation by the state; in respect of the latter, to regulate only by the Federal Government. Production is not commerce; but a step in preparation for commerce. . . .

"A consideration of the foregoing, and of many cases which might be added to those already cited, renders inescapable the conclusion that the effect of the labor provisions of the act, including those in respect of minimum wages, wage agreements, collective bargaining, and the Labor Board and its powers, primarily falls upon production and not upon commerce; and confirms the further resulting conclusion that production is a purely local activity.

"It follows that none of these essential antecedents of production constitutes a transaction in or forms a part of interstate commerce."

"Valid System of Price-Fixing."

The dissenting opinion written by Cardozo said:

"Part 2 of the statute sets up a valid system of price fixing as applied to transactions in interstate commerce and to those in intrastate commerce where interstate commerce is directly or intimately affected. The prevailing opinion holds nothing to the contrary.

"Part two, with its system of price fixing, is separable from part three, which contains the provisions as to labor considered and condemned in the opinion of the Court.

"Part two being valid, the complainants are under a duty to come in under the code and are subject to a penalty if they persist in a refusal.

"The suits are premature in so far as they seek a judicial declaration as to the validity or invalidity of the regulations in respect of labor embodied in part three.

"No opinion is expressed either directly or by implication as to those aspects of the case. It will be time enough to consider them when there is the threat or even the possibility of imminent enforcement. If that time shall arrive, protection will be given by clear provisions of the statute against any adverse inference flowing from delay or acquiescence.

The suits are not premature to the extent that they are intended to avert a present wrong, though the wrong analysis will be found to be unreal."

Origin of the Cases.

Constitutionality of the Guffey Act to permit Federal control of prices, wages and hours in the bituminous industry had been challenged by James Walter Carter, West Virginia and Virginia producer, and by 19 Kentucky operators.

In the Carter case, the District of Columbia Supreme Court upheld price fixing, but declared unconstitutional the provisions for regulating wages and hours.

The Western Kentucky Federal District Court upheld the entire act.

"Working conditions are obviously local conditions," today's opinion said.

Improper Delegation of Power.

The majority also held that it was an improper delegation of power to permit a majority to dominate a minority so far as wages and hours in an industry are concerned.

"The delegation," the opinion asserted, "is so clearly arbitrary, and so clearly a denial of rights safeguarded by the due process clause of the Fifth Amendment, that it is unnecessary to do more than refer to decisions of this court which foreclose the question.

The NRA decision also was cited in this connection.

Chief Points of Bill; Roosevelt Request to Congress.

The Guffey law was signed last August by President Roosevelt, who had urged Congress to pass it despite "doubts as to constitutionality, however reasonable."

The law, described as a "little NRA" for the bituminous coal industry, imposed a 15 per cent tax on sales at the mines, with provision for rebating 90 per cent of the tax to producers who abided by regulations of the National Bituminous Coal Commission set up under the law.

Minimum prices were to be fixed by district boards of producers under the supervision of the commission. Determination of wages, hours and conditions of employment were left to collective bargaining between producers and union miners. The act set up a three-man board to mediate labor disputes, and directed the commission to study the feasibility of Federal purchase and retirement of marginal coal lands, together with the rehabilitation of unemployed miners.

Injunction Suits Filed.

In various parts of the country injunction suits were filed against collection of the tax, which became effective Nov. 1, and some injunctions were issued.

As the litigation reached the Supreme Court, which heard arguments of counsel for the Government and the objecting producers last month, five major issues were presented.

These were the constitutionality of the tax; whether the price fixing provisions were within the power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce, and avoided conflict with the "due process" clause of the Constitution; whether the provisions relating to unfair methods of competition were a valid exercise of the "commerce powers" of the Constitution; whether the collective bargaining provisions were constitutional under the commerce clause; and whether, if some of the prrvisions of the act should be held unconstitutional, the others could be separable and valid.

Briefs by Seven States.

Seven states—Pennsylvania, Illinois, Washington, New Mexico, Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky—had filed briefs as "friends of the court" on behalf of the legislation.

In the arguments, John Dickinson, Assistant Attorney-General, defended the legislation for the Government. Frederick H. Wood, New York attorney, represented Carter, and Charles I. Dawson, former Kentucky Federal District Judge, spoke for the Kentucky producers.

Judge David of Germany, who occupies a post in the Reich similar to an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, was among the many notables in the courtroom.

COMMENT ON GUFFEY DECISION NOT VERY ENLIGHTENING

White House Silent, House Majority Leader Disappointed, Republicans Expected It.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—First official comment on the Supreme Court's invalidation of the Guffey Coal Control Act today was not very enlightening. The White House, advised of the decision, was silent.

Speaker Byrns declined to say whether the court action might affect the session's legislative program. Other comment included:

House Majority Leader Bankhead: I am very disappointed. I had hoped the court would hold the act constitutional."

House Minority Leader Snell: "I think the decision is what the great majority of the people expected."

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader: "No comment."

Chairman O'Connor (Dem.), New York, of the House Rules Committee: "It is a very unfortunate decision as far as 500,000 coal mine workers are concerned."

Representative Wadsworth (Rep.), New York: "I'm not at all surprised. Nearly everybody in the House, including those who voted for it, expected such an ending."

BAPTISTS WARNED OF DANGER IN U. S. TO FREE RELIGION

TRACES MOVE TO EUROPE'S TYRANTS

'Do Not Fool Yourself It Can't Happen Here,' He Asserts — Joint Fellowship Meetings Open.

The joint fellowship meeting of the Northern and Southern Baptist Conventions began today at Municipal Auditorium Convention Hall after the five-day Southern Baptist meeting ended this morning.

After separating in 1845 in a dispute over the slavery question, the two denominations did not meet together until 1933 in Washington. This is the first joint meeting since then. The common ground of their meeting, the theme, is "The Historic Baptist Principle."

The Baptist principle of liberty was expounded today in an address by the Rev. Dr. Frederick L. Anderson, professor-emeritus at Andover-Newton Theological Seminary, in Massachusetts.

"The tyrants who sit in Rome, Moscow and Berlin, together with their imitators, are endangering most of the things which Baptists hold dear," he said. "Especially our civil and religious liberty. The swirling currents of nationalism, secularism and atheism are undermining the very foundations on which liberty rests.

Cites Massachusetts Ruling.

"Moreover, we are not asleep to the attempts of the United States to use the guise of patriotism to undermine our freedom. This very last month three Christian children, who, however, mistakenly, dared witness to their unshakable religious convictions in refusing to salute the flag, were given an indeterminate sentence in open court to what was really a reform school; and this in the free state of Massachusetts. Awake, Baptists, defend their liberties and yours. Hitlerism marches on.

"A reform school foreshadows a concentration camp, and religious persecution a totalitarian state, perhaps under an American camouflage. Do not fool yourselves into thinking that it cannot happen here."

Explaining the Baptist principle that religious liberty involves religious democracy, Dr. Anderson declared: "We believe in the democracy of the local church and the invalidity of the sharp distinction between clergy and laity, which is foreign to the New Testament and repugnant to the inner spirit of our religion. We have no use for man-made priests, Protestant or Catholic, and especially for spiritual lords, whether bishops or popes."

Touching on civil liberties, he asserted that "the most dangerous enemies of liberty today are secularism and atheism." "A vast wave of godlessness is sweeping the world,'" he said. "In this confused and difficult time, large sections of our young people know not what to think, and whole nations forsake and abjure God. But they do not understand that in forsaking God they forsake at the same time their liberty and their manhood."

Talk on Regeneration.

A Southern Baptist, the Rev. Dr. Ellis A. Fuller of Atlanta, Ga., dwelt on the Baptist principle of regeneration in his address.

"It is a folly of the first magnitude to attempt to regiment, train, educate or legislate unregenerated men into a willingness to submit to the reign of God's will," he said. "But it is a folly of the second magnitude to claim that redeemed men should sit idly by, doing nothing to bring about international relations that will lessen the possibilities of war, to make and execute just laws, to pitch human society upon a higher plane, to make it possible for the masses as well as the few who live comfortably and decently, to create an economic system wherein exploitation of one group by another will be no more."

Baptists, he said, have never shared any of the compromising views about sin. To the "fall of man," they trace the "evils which threaten the civilization of the world today, whether war, or crime or selfish exploitations of one group by another, or sexual immorality."

"If there ever was a day when men should find it easy to accept the fact that men in their natural state are out of joint, that there is something radically and fundamentally and universally wrong with this moral make-up of man, it is this day," he asserted. "For we see on every hand groups ranging from the so-called civilized nations to murderous gangsters of the underworld attempting to maintain themselves by obviously suicidal processes and means."

Christianity in Asia.

The Rev. Dr. J. H. Rushbrooke of England, general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance, spoke on the Baptist principle in relation to Christianity in Asia.

The joint fellowship meeting, attended by about 3500 Southern delegates and 2100 Northern delegates, will end tomorrow night with addresses by Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, Japanese Christian leader and economist, and the Rev. George W. Truett of Dallas, Tex., president of the Baptist World Alliance.

Resolutions of the Rev. Dr. J. Frank Norris, red-baiting Baptist fundamentalist which called for cancelation of Dr. Kagawa's invitation to speak because of his "unscriptural doctrines," and which attacked the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, of which Dr. Truett is a member, were buried in the Resolutions Committee.

Instead the Resolutions Committee yesterday reported this resolution, which was adopted: "In the matter of faith and principles, whether theological, economic or otherwise, the Southern Baptist Convention is committed only to those declarations adopted by itself in session."

Resolution on Communism.

Another resolution, advocated by former Congressman William D. Upshaw of Georgia, one-time Prohibition candidate for President, which warned "fellow Christians and all patriotic citizens to be discriminately alert and watchful with reference to the insidious encroachments of atheistic Communism in every form," also was adopted yesterday.

Seven thousand persons attended the evangelistic services at Convention Hall yesterday afternoon, at which the Rev. Dr. M. E. Dodd of Shreveport, La., former president of the Southern Baptist Church, delivered the sermon. Dr. Norris' rival meeting, held at the Coliseum, attracted only 1200 persons.

Last night, 9000 persons attended the meeting at Convention Hall. The Rev. Dr. Charles E. Maddry of Richmond, Va., secretary of the Foreign Missions Board, spoke on the "Unpossessed Possessions of Southern Baptists," pointing out that only 1,000,000 of the 480,000,000 Chinese are Christians, and one of the greatest tasks facing Christianity is bringing the Gospel to the Orient.

The Rev. Dr. J. B. Lawrence of Atlanta, Ga., executive secretary of the Home Mission Board, deplored the nationalistic trend in the United States, the "buy-American" type, and called for "a Christian brotherhood with all races and nations of the world."

MAN KILLED, TWO INJURED WHEN STONE RAILING FALLS

Workers Were Testing Its Strength Before Putting Flower Boxes On It.

August Klaus, 60 years old, 5816 Staely avenue, St. Louis County, was killed and two other men were injured at noon today, when a section of a heavy stone railing around a second-story porch at the home of Dr. Isaac Dee Kelley, 32 Portland place, fell on them.

Klaus suffered a fractured skull and died at St. Luke's Hospital. William Weber Jr., 4942 Finkman avenue, suffered a fractured wrist, and Jacob Kech, 3167A Portis avenue, a broken ankle.

The men were employed by the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery, 9200 Gravois avenue, Affton, and had been sent to the Kelley home to put flower boxes on the railing. Police reported the workmen had fastened ropes to the railing and were pulling on the ropes from the ground to test the strength of it before putting up the flower boxes. Dr. and Mrs. Kelley were out of the city.

A. F. OF L. FINDS JOBS FAR BEHIND BUSINESS GAINS

Labor Federation Appeals for Joint Action of Industry and Government to Put Men Back to Work

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Reiterating that re-employment is not keeping pace with recovery, the American Federation of Labor today issued a new appeal to the Government and business to co-operate with labor groups in an attempt to put the jobless back to work.

Asserting that gains in profits of large corporations have far exceeded gains in production and that leading corporations are reporting earnings close to 1926 levels, the federation expressed concern over "the exceedingly serious re-employment shortage."

In its monthly survey of business, the federation asked:

"If we cannot count on business, without control, to put the unemployed back to work, how then can a place be found for them in America's workshop, where they may produce wealth and earn the income necessary for a good life?"

Results of Outlawing NRA.

Answering this in a renewed appeal to both business and the Government for joint action, the federation said, "This co-operative basis, as distinct from Government control, cannot be too strongly emphasized."

The survey asserted that under NRA re-employment kept pace with business recovery, but that since the Supreme Court had outlawed the recovery agency it had fallen far behind.

"By March, 1936," it said, "business had traveled 72 per cent of the way back to normal, but only 46 per cent of the depression unemployed had gone back to work.

"If re-employment had kept pace with business recovery, 8,120,000 of the depression unemployed would be back at work today; actually only 5,200,000 have found jobs in industry. That is, when all industries are counted we have a re-employment shortage of 2,850,000."

No Chance of Jobs for All.

The survey further reported business was "not even providing enough work for those who had jobs in 1929 and lost them in depression; far less is it providing jobs for the 4,000,000 who have been added to America's army of work seekers since 1929—young people asking for work for the first time.

"This means that, of the total 12,184,000 who were unemployed in March, we can only count on business to provide work for 4,000,000 even when it reaches normal. The other 8,000,000 will still be jobless unless re-employment makes far better progress than it has to date."

FLORIDA FLOGGING TRIAL DEFENSE RESTS

Presents Four Witnesses in Attack on Testimony of E. F. Poulnot.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BARTOW, Fla., May 18.—The defense in the Florida flogging trial rested at 4:05 p. m. today after presenting four witnesses designed to attack the chedibility of Eugene F. Poulnot, one of the flogging victims, for whose kidnaping five former members of the Tampa police force are on trial.

Two court reporters were called to show that Poulnot testified before the grand qury that he did not recognize the driver of the car which took him to the flogging from police headquarters. He had identified the defendant, F. W. Switzer, at this trial as the driver. Court recessed until 10 o'clock otmorrow morning, when it will entertain any motions or hear any rebuttal testimony whihc may be offered.

The trial went into its sixth week today. Judge Dewell formally announced to the jury his ruling granting a directed verdict of acquittal of two defendants and eliminating three of the four counts in the information.

As has been told, Judge Dewell freed R. G. Tittsworth, former Tampa Chief of Police, accused as an accessory after the fact in the kidnaping of Eugene F. Poulnot, one of the flogging victims, and Robert Chappell, charged with abducting Poulnot.

The five defendants still on trial are charged only with the kidnaping of Poulnot since charges of conspiracy to kidnap, conspiracy to commit false imprisonment and also imprisonment were struck from the information.

Defense testimony began this afternoon. The first witness, who testified for defendant C. A. Brown Jr., leader of the raid on the "Modern Democrats," said that Poulnot told him five days after the crime he didn't recognize anyone at the police station who put him in a car in which he was delivered to the floggers. The witness, J. M. Jenkins, a PWA worker, was stopped by State objections when he tried to tell why he left the "Unemployed Brotherhood,' of which Poulnot was head.

Pat Whitaker, chief of defense counsel, made a formal motion today to strike out testimony referring to the raid on the Modern Democrats at a private home. Judge Dewell said all that the jury may now consider is testimony as to what went on from the time Poulnot was questioned at police headquarters and delivered to the floggers who waited in cars at the estuary a few miles away.

The flogging itself may only be referred to as indicating intent.

A 15-minute recess was ordered after presentation of Whittaker's motion and then court recessed for lunch. Proceedings at the morning session occupied about three minutes.

Without making a specific ruling, Judge Dewell indicated at the afternoon session that testimony of A. M. Herald, owner of the private home raided without a warrant, might remain as part of the res gestae. The crime itself, he indicated, would consist of what happened to Poulnot between his questioning at police headquarters and arrival at the estuary. Testimony about the "Modern Democrats" prior to Nov. 30 might be stricken, he said.

The State began to file objections and the defense countered with additional motions to strike testimony. A technical argument began, with the jury out.

Judge Dewell finally denied motions to strike testimony of Sam J. Rogers, one of the flogging victims, as to what happened to him and that of Herald holding it to be part of the res gestae.

COURT QUASHES CHARGE AGAINST SHERIFF DEUSER

Circuit Judge Witthaus Holds Facts Stated in Indictment Do Not Constitute Crime.

An indictment charging Sheriff Philip G. Deuser of St. Louis County with fraud in office was quashed by Circuit Judge John A. Witthaus at Clayton today on the ground that the facts stated in the indictment did not constitute any offense against the law, and for other reasons to which the Court referred briefly.

Following announcement of the Court's decision, Prosecuting Attorney C. Arthur Anderson said that he had not yet decided what his future course of action would be in the case, and would not do so until he had studied Judge Witthaus' ruling.

It would be possible, should he elect to pursue the case, to file an information so phrased as to remedy the technical defects in the indictment, and on this information the Sheriff could be taken to trial without further indictment. It would also be legally possible to resubmit the case to the next grand jury for its action.

Deuser was charged with supplying to the County Court, for its guidance in fixing the Sheriff's allowance for feeding prisoners, invoices purporting to show purchases from a St. Louis grocery totaling $2155 in the period between July 1 and Nov. 1 of last year, when the purchases amounted, in fact, to only $62.

Convicted and Fined.

Another indictment, based on the same set of facts, charged Sheriff Deuser and Harry J. Hoch, salesman for the grocery, with conspiracy to defraud the county. Deuser was convicted and fined $100, but Circuit Judge Ransom A. Breuer of Hermann, Mo., who presided at the trial in St. Louis County, set the verdict aside last March 30 and granted the Sheriff a new trial.

Judge Witthaus, in his memorandum sustaining the motion to quash, said he did so on five of the six grounds cited by counsel for the Sheriff. These, in addition to the contention that the facts stated in the indictment did not constitute a violation of the law, were: that the indictment did not charge any offense; that the indictment did not allege that the County Court relied on the representations of the Sheriff; that the indictment did not allege that the county had suffered any loss; and that the indictment did not allege that the County Court delayed entering an order fixing the food allowance because it relied on the Sheriff's representations while the matter was under inquiry.

Allowance Reduced.

After its inquiry the County Court reduced the Sheriff's allowance for feeding prisoners from 75 cents a day per prisoner to 45 cents.

In granting the new trial in the conspiracy case, Judge Breuer ruled there had been no evidence of conspiracy between Deuser and Hoch, and no evidence that Deuser had attempted to influence the County Court. He expressed the opinion that the invoices were false, but pointed out that Presiding Judge Thomas H. Thatcher of the County Court had testified the court had not been influenced by the invoices.

Hoch, who obtained a severance, has not been tried on the conspiracy charge.

PROSECUTOR'S AID INDICTED IN NEW YORK

Among Eight Charged With Obstructing Justice in Drukman Murder Case.

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 18.—An indictment charging bribery and the "improper influencing of every agency of justice in the murder of Sam Drukman," was handed up today by a special grand jury in Kings County.

Eight defendants were named in the indictment including an Assistant District Attorney, a former Assistant United States District Attorney and a New York city detective.

Ten other persons also were named in the indictment as conspirators. They were not named as defendants.

Among the "conspirators" was listed Michael J. Hogan, former Congressman.

The others indicted today are: Arthur and Ike Luckman, brothers of Meyer Luckman, who is one of three persons serving sentences of from 20 years to life for the killing.

Max Silverman, who Special Prosecutor Hiram C. Todd has been a fugitive on a warrant for months.

James J. Kleinman, father of the Assistant District Attorney.

Carmine Anzalone, formerly clerk of the State Assembly.

The circumstances surrounding the death of Drukman and subsequent investigations have been the subject of several official inquiries.

The body of Drukman was found stuffed into the rumble seat of a coupe in a Brooklyn garage March 3, 1935.

William W. Kleinman, an Assistant District Attorney of Kings County, and Guiseppe F. L. Dardis, a former New York City detective, were among those indicted.

Also named in the indictment was Henry G. Singer, former Assistant United State's District Attorney for the New York district. Singer is under a previous indictment in the case.

MOVE TO QUASH INDICTMENT AGAINST MRS. BERROYER

Demurrer to Perjury Charge Filed After Not Guilty Plea is Temporarily Withdrawn.

A demurrer and motion to quash the perjury indictment against Mrs. Helen Berroyer, friend of Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, was filed in Circuit Court today after the defendant's plea of not guilty was temporarily withdrawn. The case was continued until the next term of court.

When Mrs. Berroyer entered her formal plea of not guilty before Judge Robert J. Kirkwood on April 17, she appeared in court without counsel. Today her attorney was Samuel Eaken ,not previously identified with her case. The plea for a demurrer and to quash attacked the indictment on nine counts along usual lines, including the contention that the St. Louis Court of Appeals lacked jurisdiction in the Anna Ware baby case, which the defendant maintains, should have been tried in the Circuit Court. Mrs. Berroyer was indicted for perjury because of her testimony in behalf of the Muenches at the habeas corpus proceedings through which Anna Ware recovered her baby.

ESCAPED LEPERS KILL 7 AND LOOT PHILIPPINE SHOPS

Six Moros Murder Four Fishermen, Seize Boat in Flight From Culion Island Leprosarium.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, May 18.—Six Moro lepers fled before the constabulary today after killing seven men in escaping from the Culion Island leprosarium.

The lepers, under the leadership of one who called himself "Abdullah," killed four fishermen, seized a boat and fled to Palawan and neighboring islands.

Stopping at Jalumpang, on Aboabo Island, the fugitives killed three more persons and robbed Chinese stores. Then they went to Bonobono, where they attacked another Chinese merchant, but citizens of the town gathered in force and drove them away. They seized another boat and escaped to sea.

Afraid of Infection.

A call for the constabulary brought the soldiers to Bonobono a few hours later. They were told that the lepers had said they were sailing for Tigabk, Borneo. The officers immediately started their hunt on Palawan and islands in that vicinity.

Citizens told the soldiers they feared to seize the lepers because they were afraid of infection. Lack of police forces on the isolated islands gave the armed desperadoes a free hand.

Culion Island, about 200 miles southeast of Manila, is approximately 15 miles long and 10 miles wide. Although the more than 5000 lepers are in a segregated community, they are not imprisoned. Their community is partially self-sustaining through farming.

Release Was Vetoed.

The leprosarium is the largest of its kind in the world. Less than a year ago the Philippine Insular Legislature, just before it made way for the Commonwealth Assembly, passed a law which would have permitted the release of many of the lepers, allowing them to return home.

Frank Murphy, then Governor-General of the islands, vetoed the measure. Shortly after the Philippines became a commonwealth, with Murphy as High Commissioner, a commission began studying plans for decentralization of the leprosarium..

TWO CONVICTS FATALLY STABBED IN PRISON YARD

William O'Hara and James D. Griffin Killed by Roy Whipkey in Fight at Jefferson City.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 18.—William O'Hara, 35 years old, and James D. Griffin, 22, convicts in the Missouri State penitentiary, were stabbed to death yesterday afternoon by Roy Whipkey, 24, also a convict, following a dispute on the prison recreation grounds. About 3000 other convicts who had just watched a baseball game were on the grounds at the time.

O'Hara, whose home was in St. Louis, was stabbed in the throat, arm, face and back and died five minutes after he entered the prison hospital. Griffin, cut on the neck and chest, died almost instantly. His home was in Kansas City.

Whipkey, who was sentenced in St. Louis, had been in dispute with O'Hara and Griffin Saturday. Prison officials said O'Hara had often taunted Whipkey, calling him a "confessor" because he had pleaded guilty to a robbery charge.

Yesterday, Whipkey related, O'Hara waved a newspaper clipping in his face, called him names and then struck at him with a razor blade which was attacked to a six-inch handle. Whipkey then drew a table knife from his pocket. Its sides had ben sharpened and it was filed to a sharp point. Griffin, who was O'Hara's cellmate, joined in the melee and was stabbed in the neck and chest.

Near the scene of the struggle prison officials found a screw driver which had been sharpened to a fine point. Whether it had been used in the fight by one of the participants is not known.

O'Hara was serving 14 years for robbery. Previously he had served two terms at Leavenworth penitentiary and one term at the United States Disciplinary Barracks at Governor's Island, New York. On Aug. 9, 1933, he stabbed to death Lawrence E. Hamilton of St. Louis, another convict, in a quarrel in I Hall. He was never brought to trial but the penal board ordered him to serve his full 14-year robbery term.

Griffin was serving 10 years for robbery and had been in the penitentiary since Sept. 23, 1932.

Whipkey was sentenced July 3 last to serve 10 years for robbery. He had originally been sentenced to the intermediate reformatory, Algoa Farms, but was transferred to the penitentiary Feb. 8 because he was incorrigible.

Prison officials said no action would be taken against Whipkey, pending a Coroner's inquest, which has been set for tomorrow. So far Whipkey has not been placed in the solitary confinement hall, or "the hole," where convicts engaging in disturbances or breaking rules usually are sent, but he has been isolated from other convicts.

HENRY FORD AT 72 RIDES BICYCLE DAILY FOR EXERCISE

Auto Manufacturer Seems to Have Recovered From Serious Illness in January.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, May 18.—Henry Ford, who has built more than 24,000,000 automobiles, and who will be 73 years old this summer, rides a bicycle. He explains that his cycling is for exercise rather than a means of transportation, which it was before he built his first automobile—largely of bicycle parts—43 years ago.

"I have a mile and a half road on my place where I ride every day," he said. "The ride down to the river and back makes a pretty good trip and helps me keep in shape."

Ford seemed entirely recovered from the second serious illness of his life, a "bad cold," which caused his family concern for two weeks during January this year.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—An effort by Alabama to tax gasoline sold to the Federal Government was held unconstitutional today by the Supreme Court.

In a 6-to-2 opinion delivered by Justice Butler, the court affirmed a ruling by a three-Judge Federal District Court in Alabama, granting the Texas Co. an injunction against paying the 6 cents a gallon levy.

EX-GOV. SMALL OF ILLINOIS DIES AFTER OPERATION

Blood Clot Causes Death at Kankakee When He Seemed to Be Recovering —73 Years Old.

DEFEATED IN APRIL FOR A THIRD TERM

Forced to Pay Back $650,000 He Withheld From State as State Treasurer —Funeral Wednesday.

By the Associated Press.

KANKAKEE, Ill., May 18.—Len Small, former Governor of Illinois for two terms, died yesterday in a hospital here. He was 73 years old.

Apparently recovering after a minor operation performed a week ago, he died of an embolism about 1 p. m., as he drank a glass of milk. He had been talking cheerfully to his two sons, Leslie and Budd, until a moment before a blood clot caused his death.

A daughter, May, wife of Col. A. E. Inglesh of Kankakee, also survives Mr. Small. His wife, the former Miss Ida Moore, died in 1922, during his first term as Governor.

The body will lie in state at the home in West Kankakee tomorrow afternoon and evening and Wednesday morning. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon at the home, with the Rev. W. H. Craine, pastor of the First Methodist Church, and the Rev. M. I. Johnson, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, in charge. Burial will be in Mound Grove Cemetery here.

Mr. Small made his last campaign this spring, running second in a field of seven candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor in the April 14 primary. He lost the nomination to C. Wayland Brooks of Chicago.

His Career: Farmer, Banker, Publisher, Politician.

During his first term he was tried on a criminal charge of conspiracy to withhold state money while State Treasurer, but was acquitted. A civil suit for an accounting was long contested in the courts, but Small lost and finally compromised for $650,000.

Chief among his interests outside of politics was farming. His 600-acre farm near Kankakee has been a laboratory in which he experimented with every branch of farming activity profitable in Illinois. From this farm, annually, more rhubarb is shipped to the Chicago market than from any other single farm in the State.

He was born June 16, 1862 on a small farm near Kankakee, the son of Dr. A. L. Small, a country physician. His parents were not poor.

During Small's boyhood, the railroad dispatcher at Kankakee used to say that he never needed an alarm clock to arouse him when the early morning train pulled in from the South at 4:30 a. m. He said that shortly before the train was due, young Small who had already milked the cows and prepared the milk for shipment to Chicago, would drive up to the depot and awaken him with the clatter of his milk cans.

Early Education.

His education was obtained in he Kankakee County public schools, supplemented later by a State Normal School and a business college course. After his graduation, he taught school for a time, but only to save enough money to buy a small farm near Kankakee. He prospered with his farm. At 18 he became a partner of his father in a retail nursery, garden and forestry business. The profit in this venture was large enough in two years to permit him to buy 16 acres of land nearby, the nucleus around which he built his 600-acre estate.

About the time, fruit growing became an important industry in Illinois and he became keenly interested. He helped organize the Illinois Orchard Co. in Southern Illinois to grow fruit and was for 15 years secretary of the State Horticultural Society. He became secretary of the State Historical Society and in 1895 became a member of the State Board of Agriculture, becoming president of the State Fair Association a few years later.

Mr. Small was one of the organizers of the Kankakee Soil and Crop Improvement Association, one of the first farm bureau bodies in the State to receive Federal aid. He became president of the organization and retained the office and attended meetings even after he became Governor.

Became Bank President.

He purchased an interest in the First National Bank of Kankakee and after a merger became president of the institution. His office now is in the bank building. He also published the Kankakee Republican.

With several others he purchased several hundred acres of land and subdivided it into the section of town known as West Kankakee. He also organized the Kankakee & Southwestern Electric Railroad.

His political career started in 1895, when he was elected to the Kankakee County Board of Supervisors. The next year he became clerk of the Circuit Court and was appointed a trustee of the Kankakee State Hospital, a position he held eight years.

He served a term in the State Senate and was then elected State Treasurer. After his two-year term expired, President Taft appointed him Assistant Treasurer of the United States and placed him in charge of the Chicago sub-treasury. At the beginning of the Wilson administration, he resigned. He was again elected State Treasurer in 1916 and later served as securities examiner under his successor in the Treasurer's office, Fred Sterling. He held this position until elected Governor in 1920.

He served two consecutive terms as Governor, but was defeated for the Republican nomination in 1928 by Louis L. Emmerson. He then retired for a time to civil life in Kankakee.

Ex-Gov. Small was proud of the fact that the present system of hard roads in this state was started during his first administration. He liked to be called "the Hard Roads Governor." One of his favorite methods of relaxation was to take the wheel of his car and go spinning over the highways he helped build. Seven thousand miles of hard road was built while he was Governor.

$40,000 FOR RECORDING OF BOOKS FOR BLIND

Roosevelt Allocates Money Enough to Provide 10,000 Transcriptions.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Allocation by President Roosevelt of $40,000 for the manufacture of book recordings for the blind was announced yesterday by Works Progress Administrator Hokins.

Hopkins said the money would be enough to pay for the making of 10,000 recorded books. About 2000 already have been made and given nation-wide free distribution by the Library of Congress.

It was stated that three-fourths of the blind do not read Braille because the intricate system of dots and dashes is too hard for them.

The average full-length novel may be recorded on both sides of 15 records.

'LUCKY' LUCIANO AGAIN LINKED TO VICE RING

Woman Operator of New York Resort Testifies About Paying Money.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 18.—A witness, Mollie Leonard, alias Mollie Glick, testified in Supreme Court today that one of the bookers in New York's vice syndicate assured her she need have no fear for her security as a disorderly house operator because the ring was backed by "Lucky."

That is the name, according to Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey, by which Charles Luciano was known in the underworld. Miss Leonard was called as a witness at the trial of Luciano and nine others on charges of compulsory prostitution.

Miss Leonard said she was forced to join the ring and pay $10 a week for each of her girls. She testified she told Pete Harris, alias Pete Ballitzer, a booker and one of the three men who pleaded guilty a week ago, that she had misgivings about the payments. Ballitzer, she said, told her not to worry, that "Lucky" was behind it and would take care of her.

Testimony connecting Luciano with the ring also was given Saturday.

KILLED WHEN PARACHUTE FAILS

By the Associated Press.

TUSCOLA, Ill., May 18.—Sherman Henderson, parachute jumper, was killed in a 5000-foot fall yesterday when his parachute failed to open during an air circus performance. His body was found a mile from the take-off point of his plane.

Henderson was a married resident of Terre Haute, Ind. He was a member of the Pierson Flying Circus.

BUOY TELEPHONES ADOPTED FOR SWEDISH SUBMARINES

Instrument May Be Sent to Surface If Craft Is Sunk by Accident.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 18.—A submarine buoy telephone, by which a sunken craft can communicate with rescuers, has been adopted by the Swedish navy.

An ordinary telephone instrument is enclosed in a buoy that can be released to rise to the surface when a submarine is sunk by accident. The buoy, carrying telephone wires from the submarine, is equipped with a flashlight to attract attention on the water.

Another communications novelty is the "laryngophone," which receives' sound impulses from the larynx of the speaker, and hence is not affected by nearby noises. It is designed for use in such places and engine rooms and airplanes where there is so much noise that the speaker's voice would be drowned in an ordinary telephone.

Killed in Leap or Fall at Hotel.

CHICAGO, May 18.—The body of Edwin Eder, 45 years old, of New York City, was found yesterday on the roof of a court in the Stevens Hotel. Police said he apparently had leaped or fallen from a twenty-first floor room where he had registered Saturday.

$4,800,000,000 Relief Act Declared Unconstitutional

project for construction of 750 low-rent houses was started with relief funds. The immediate complaint of counsel for the township was that it would lose needed revenues, since the Government-owned property would not be subject to local taxation.

The Court of Appeals, however, held the case involved "much more than the mere matter of taxation."

"The impairment of its (the township's) powers in the exercise of its franchise is the chief subject of concern," the ruling said.

Solicitor-General's Comment.

Solicitor-General Stanley Reed said an appeal would be taken to the Supreme Court at once. He told newspaper men after a hurried reading of the opinion that he believed it was "narrow" and confined to construction projects for shifting population under the resettlement administration. The part of the act setting up the Resettlement Administration was under attack in the case at issue.

"I am not trying to minimize the opinion," he added. "We wanted it the other way."

Rexford G. Tugwell, Under-Secretary of Agriculture, in charge of resettlement, was the author of the resettlement provisions of the act.

In response to a Senate request, Tugwell reported Thursday that the Resettlement Administration had spent $98,347,005 up to April 15. He said out of $275,549,944 made available, there were incumbrances on $173,091,832, leaving a balance of $102,458,112.

Same Flaws as in NRA.

After reviewing provisions of the Relief Act and the executive orders of President Roosevelt which set up the resettlement agency, Justice Van Orsdel said:

"This is delegation running riot."

Referring to opinions of the United States Supreme Court which found NRA, AAA and the original "hot oil" Control Act unconstitutional, Justice Van Orsdel said the same legal flaws were found in the Resettlement Administration.

"There is nothing in the act directly prescribing the power or duties of the President with respect to housing," he said.

"Assuming that it may be inferred from the act that the funds are to be used by the President, yet there is nothing requiring their use, either absolutely or in any specified condition or circumstance.

"He is free to use them or not, as he sees fit. . . . There is no guide as to where or when or how these funds are to be used for housing."

Condemning the broad powers under the Relief Act, the court said that in the language of the Supreme Court's NRA decision, the President was "virtually unfettered." "He is at liberty to set up agencies and prescribe such rules of conduct and fix such standards as he may deem proper," the decision continued.

After noting the power of the President to transfer amounts to various projects under the Relief Act, the majority said:

"It logically follows the President and not the Congress is to legislate with respect to housing.

"The President, not the Congress, is to set governmental agencies to carry out the purposes of the act. The President, not the Congress, is to prescribe the regulations and rules of conduct which shall govern.

"The President, not the Congress, is to decide where and when and how, if at all, this enormous sum of money is to be expended 'for housing.'"

Congress was said to have set up "neither path nor program" for the Resettlement Administration.

No Limit to Authority.

"Obviously, if the President were so disposed," the Court said, "he could use the entire sum appropriated in building houses exclusively for our colored, or, on the other hand, he could just as well exclude that portion of our population from any benefits whatever. . . .

"The houses for which this vast sum of money is to be spent may be rented or sold, at a profit or a loss.

"They may be constructed in cities where there is no demand, or in the country to create and build a new city in its entirety.

"Indeed, they may be built and left unoccupied."

The Court said that "this may be said to be mere fancy," but that the principle involved was that "in the appropriation of public moneys the congressional mandate shall include a reasonable limitation on the discretion of the executive in their use."

"We are not here confronted with an appropriation for internal improvements of a national character or importance, or the erection of public buildings or the grant of loans to a state or municipality to carry out Public Works projects.

"As to these we might find in the nature of the objectives a well-beaten path by which to supply the omitted means to that end."

U. S. and State Sovereignty.

The majority said:

"While it is true that the Government of the United States in the exercise of its sovereignty has jurisdiction over every foot of soil within its territory and acts directly upon its citizens, the exercise of its sovereignty is limited to those powers which are delegated to it by the Constitution, namely, the power to regulate interstate commerce, and the power over the mails.

"In the exercise of its sovereign power, within the limits thus imposed, its jurisdiction extends throughout the states and territories, but it must be remembered that, where the exercise of its sovereignty is not justified by any reasonable construction of the Constitution, the United States possesses no power to invade the sovereignty of the states. . . .

"The threatened action of the defendants is merely incidental to the execution of the orders of the President, assumed to be authorized by the exercise by Congress of a power which it does not possess.

The Fundamental Question.

"The fundamental question here is not merely whether Congress, in the attempted exercise of its power, failed to exercise it in a manner which would permit its enforcement.

"The question is a deeper one. Has Congress, under any circumstances, the constitutional power through legislation to put in operation the proposed resettlement project? . . . The fundamental question involved is the total lack of constitutional power on the part of Congress to put into operation through legislation a (resettlement) project such as is here contemplated; and this can be ascertained, not from any possible determination of fact, but from the very terms of the statute itself."

The United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia corresponds to the United States circuit courts in the states. It receives appeals from the District of Columbia Supreme Court, regular trial tribunals for cases in the capital. Government adminstrative officers often are defendants in test cases, hence the suits are frequently instituted in the district supreme court and are carried thence through the court of appeals to the United States Supreme Court.

Government's Contentions.

"The statute is sought to be sustained upo nthe theory (and it is the only possible theory) that it is an appropriation for the general welfare of the United States. . . . The obvious limitation of this power is that the welfare be national," said the Court.

"The mere declaration in the statute that it is enacted to meet an emergency or for the general welfare adds nothing to its constitutionality," the opinion said at another point.

"The argument that the emergency relief appropriation act of 1935, making the most stupendous single appropriation ever made by a legislative body, was necessary to meet an emergency due to a universal depression and crisis is not sufficient to expand the power of Congress to tax and spend for purposes exclusively within the reserved powers of the states," the Court said.

New Relief Bill Pending.

Possible effects of the opinion on the pending relief-deficiency bill was the subject of immediate study by administration leaders.

Like the $4,880,000,000 appropriation last year the $1,425,000,000 relief bill now before the Senate Appropriations Committee would be allotted only by broad 'classifications.

For "rural rehabilitation and relief to farmers" the measure allots $85,500,000. President Roosevelt has said the Resettlement Administration would be continued on a curtailed basis with funds provided by this bill.

Also, as in the 1935 act, the pending bill would grant the President authority to shift money from one classification to another within a 15 per cent limit.

Announcement of the ruling, which resettlement officials said was a complete surprise to them, found Undersecretary Tugwell in conference with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

Relief Office Statement.

A spokesman for Administrator Harry L. Hopkins said the work relief program would go on despite the decision. With Congress in session, he said, the act can be amended to meet the court's objections.

Up to March 31, the last date for which figures are available, $2,515,082,158 had been spent under the relief act.

Allotments which Roosevelt has made include: Resettlement Administration, $275,549,944; Works Progress Administration, $1,363,926,901; Bureau of Public Roads, $500,000,000; Civilian Conservation Corps, $527,479,450; Puerto Rico Reconstruction Administration, $33,377,380; Reclamation Bureau, $76,680,000; Navy Department, $17,542,716; Public Works Administration, $447,476,447; Rural Electrification Administration, $10,546,812; Treasury, $50,241,066; War Department, $146,341,386.

In addition, $938,530,085 was spent on direct relief during the transition from the dole to relief work. Not all of the sums allotted has been spent.

Up to March 31, officials said, the work relief program had incurred obligations totaling $3,466,159,327. This would have left $1,413,840,673 unobligated on that date.

GOV. HORNER ISSUES CALL FOR FOURTH SPECIAL SESSION

Authorizes Legislature to Take Up Permanent Registration of Chicago Voters.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 18.—Gov. Horner's call today for the fourth special legislative session authorized action on several subjects, including permanent registration of Chicago voters and another attempt to amend the revenue article of the state constitution. The call also made it possible to legislate against Eastern standard time in Chicago.

The fourth special session will convene tomorrow night, meeting concurrently with the second session on relief.

Permanent registration is the big controversy, with Horner Democrats and most of the Republicans lined up against the opposition of the Kelly-Nash Chicago Democrats to the election reform proposal.

Opposition of Mayor Kelly of Chicago to permanent registration was one of the Governor's major issues in his successful campaign for renomination.

"Official time observance to be used in the State and its localities" was mentioned in the call. This was aimed at Kelly's sponsoring of Eastern standard time in Chicago, which was another political issue in the Democratic primary campaign.

Authorization of another attempt to amend the restricted revenue article of the State Constitution is the result of requests by several legislators that an income tax proposal be submitted to referendum.

The call also would provide for the handling of unemployment relief by municipalities.

HOMICIDE VERDICT GIVEN IN KILLING WITH HATCHET

J. E. Murphy Held in $5000 Bond Pending Inquiry by Grand Jury.

A Coroner's verdict of homicide finding Joseph E. Murphy killed Michael Orlosky was returned today. Orlosky, a laborer, 62 years old, died Saturday at City Hospital of a fractured skull suffered the previous Sunday when he was hit on the head with a hatchet in a brawl in the yard of his home, 7215 Bulwer avenue.

Murphy, a crane operator, 32 years old, of 1857A North Market street, is under $5000 bond. Held with him for the grand jury inquiry, which will be made June 2, are Clinton Staggs, 21, of 1927A Sullivan avenue, and Frank Burkett, 25, of 7210 North Broadway.

During the fight, which occurred after Murphy and Staggs had taken Orlosky home from a tavern where they had been drinking, a poker, an automobile crank handle, a flat iron, a mop handle and the hatchet were used as weapons. Orlosky's widow testified that Murphy took the hatchet away from her husband and hit him with it.

GLIDER PILOT KILLED, ANOTHER HURT IN FALLS

Two Smash-Ups Half Hour Apart in Exhibition at Willow Grove, Pa.

By the Associated Press.

WILLOW GROVE, Pa., May 18.—Two gliders crashed on Pitcairn Field yesterday, killing one pilot and seriously injuring another.

Hundreds of spectators, who turned out for a series of exhibition flights sponsored by the Soaring Society of Philadelphia, witnessed the smash-ups.

The victims were: Thomas Condax, 23 years old, of Philadelphia, killed, and Paul Sze, 35, Chinese glider enthusiast, who suffered a fractured skull.

Condax had soared over the field for half an hour when suddenly the spectators saw the right wing of his motorless ship crumble and fall away. The craft went into a dive from an altitude of 600 feet, and struck near the center of the field. Condax had no parachute.

Half an hour later, Sze, in another glider, was towed down the field by an automobile until his craft was about 200 feet in the air. While the tow-line was still attached to the glider, he tried to make a sharp bank into the wind. The glider nosed downward, gathered speed and crashed a short distance from where Condax was killed.

INQUIRY INTO SHAKEUP IN JUVENILE COURT

Women Voters' League and Others to Ask Judge Reasons for 8 Dismissals.

Reasons for the dismissal Saturday of eight members of the staff of the Juvenile Court will be asked for in a letter to Circuit Judge Eugene J. Sartorius, presiding officer of the Court, it was decided today at a meeting attended by representatives of the League of Women Voters and other organizations interested in child welfare.

Mrs. J. Hardin Smith Jr., head of the league, who presided at the meeting, said she also would ask Judge Sartorius on what basis eight persons were appointed to the probation staff of the Court of Domestic Relations. So far as the league has been able to determine, she said, the new appointees were without training for their duties.

Mrs. Smith said she would ask that the Judge make public a list of candidates for places on the probation staff last February, whose names were to form an eligible list to fill possible vacancies.

The League would like to know what the results of the examinations were and if those best qualified were among the new appointees, Mrs. Smith said, adding that several persons known to have been trained in child welfare work had taken the examinations, but were not among the recent appointees.

Four of the eight officers who were dismissed, effective June 1, went to the meeting, held at the Kings-Way Hotel, but remained outside when the meeting was called. Two officers still on the probation staff also attended.

Deputy probation officers dismissed from the Juvenile Court staff are: Mrs. Emily F. Runge, a widow, who has been a member of the staff for 30 years; Mrs. Katherine Anderson, Miss Jennie Mincke, Herbert F. Roessel, Miss Mildred L. Calhoun, a sister of former Circuit Judge John W. Calhoun; Miss Sadie Tucker, Mrs. Marie Ammon, former Republican Committeewoman in the Twelfth Ward, and Beauford Miller.

New members of the staff of the Court of Domestic Relations are: Felix A. Chopin, Edna Faulkner, Julius Feist, Ann Hornburg, Helen C. Moynihan, Michael A. Murray, Agnes Jane Tucker and Mrs. Mamie Weisman.

Four officers were ordered transferred from Court of Domestic Relations to Juvenile Court, where all have had experience. They are: Mrs. Florence Carr, Mrs. Theresa Davis, Miss Laura Sherman and Miss Anna Koeneke.

FRENCH PREMIER-DESIGNATE PROPOSES NEW ARMS MEETING

Asks British Foreign Secretary to Join Him in Calling Conference.

PARIS, May 18. — Leon Blum, Premier-Designate of the incoming People's Front Government, has asked British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden to join him in calling a disarmament conference, the foreign affairs expert, Pertinax, reports. Writing in the newspaper Echo de Paris, Pertinax says Blum proposed that Germany be invited to such a parley in an effort to give the Reich a legitimate military strength in proportion to its status among the world powers.

Leon Jouhaux, general secretary of the Labor Federation, said today that before his organization would enter into the People's Front government it demanded a program including: Immediate nationalization of the arms industry, a 40-hour week without wage cuts, workers' participation in industrial control and an increase in the maximum school age.

He told the federation's national committee that the organization would not support an attempt to "bring liberty to our brothers in Germany and Italy on the points of our bayonets."

Man and Woman Found Dead When Car Is Pulled Off Them in Creek.

Miss Minnie Mae Hacke, 27 years old, a stenographer, 345 Christian avenue, and Harry Bennett, 24, 754 Ponce avenue, were killed early yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding in the rumble seat, ran off Bellefontaine road, at St. Cyr road, St. Louis County, and overturned in a shallow creek. Both were dead of suffocation and internal injuries when the automobile was raised. A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned today.

Miss Hacke and Bennett were in a machine driven by Henry Kulage, 1046 Gimblin street. There is no barricade at the point where the car left the road at a slight curve and went down an embankment and into the creek, a drop of about 15 feet.

Kulage and Miss Marie Kissell, 5805 Thekla avenue, in the front seat with him, were able to get out. It was impossible to raise the car and extricate Bennett and Miss Hacke until a garage truck reached the scene. Kulage and Miss Kissell, cut and bruised, were taken to De Paul Hospital.

The four persons in the accident were members of a party returning home from a tavern in three machines. Miss Hacke, employed by a credit agency, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Hacke of Carlinville, Ill. Bennett was employed by a wholesale drug firm.

PENSION PROTECTION FOR RAIL WORKERS

Pending Ruling on Law They May, By Agreement, Delay Retirement Until 70.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18. — The Railroad Retirement Board announced today special provisions to protect the pensions of aging and workers pending the outcome of a court attack on the Retirement Act. Although the law provides a reduction in annuities for men who work beyond the 65-year retirement age, men reaching that age now are offered a temporary stay of this provision until the constitutionality of the Retirement Act is settled.

The question arose because many of the roads offer retirement at 70, under their own pensions plans, while the Government provides for retirement at 65.

The board ruled that: "An employe who is 65 years of age or over and under 70 on Aug. 31, may continue in carrier service without subjecting his annuity to a reduction" if he files with the board a written agreement with the carrier providing extension of his employment for one year, "ut no beyond the end of the month in which the employe attains age 70."

An employe who reaches 65 after Aug. 31 may avoid a cut in his Government annuity by filing a similar agreement "on or before the last day of the month in which he attains age 65."

Men reaching 65, and men over that age now, who do not file such an agreement, will be subject to a cut in Government annuities. The reduction will be about one-eightieth of the total annuity for each month served beyond the 65-year limit without filing an agreement with the Retirement Board.

Retirement Board officials said the Federal pension plan probably would not become operative until after settlement of the suit of 136 railroads asking for injunctions to stop enforcement of the act. The District of Columbia Supreme Court will hear arguments on May 20 on the railroads' demand that both the Retirement Act and the Tax Act passed to finance pensions be declaired void.

The retirement system was originally scheduled to take effect June 1, while the excise tax on roads and wages tax on employes was scheduled to become effective Aug. 1. Lawyers said they expect the District Court controversy to be settled before Aug. 1.

WOULD BACK TRADE PACTS WITH A PRICE STABILIZER

James A. Farrell for "Some Form of Gold Standard" Behind Currencies.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 18.—James A. Farrell, chairman of the National Foreign Trade Council, speaking at a world trade luncheon today, in observance of Foreign Trade Week, hailed reciprocal trade treaties as an important step in reviving foreign trade but said the problem could not be solved as long there were unstable currencies.

"To reap the full advantages of the agreements already completed," he asserted, "we require stable price levels and some form of gold standard that will put an end to depreciation of currencies. It is the firm belief of competent financial authorities that return to a carefully considered gold standard is the best safeguard against the manipulation of currencies for trade purposes.

"While managed currencies have resulted in relative improvement in some countries, there is no indication that those resorting to this alternative have established a firm hold on future prosperity in world markets."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OLD MINES, Mo., May 18.—Tiff miners, members of the International Union of Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers, who had voted 534 to 431, to strike, will remain at work for a 15-day period ending June 1, to test a new proposal by the National Pigment Chemical Co.

By the terms of a recent offer made by the company after the secret strike vote at a mass meeting here May 10, miners will receive $6 a ton for tiff delivered at Fountain Farms. The new rate amounts to about a 75-cent increase per ton over the old terms, according to Jess Gonzalez, International executive board member and organizer of the tiff workers' local.

The decision not to strike was made yesterday when a mass meeting of miners was informed that the executive board of the International Union, meeting here, declined to sanction the action at this time, by vote of 4 to 1. At the end of the 15-day trial period, however, miners if still dissatisfied with company terms, may resubmit the proposal to the board.

U. S. AND FINLAND SIGN RECIPROCAL TRADE PACT

Fourteenth Such Agreement to Be Negotiated by State Department, Details Withheld.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The United States and Finland signed a reciprocal trade agreement today.

The pact, the fourteenth negotiated by this Government with a foreign nation, was signed by Secretary of State Hull and Eero Jarnefelt, Minister from Finland.

Details of the agreement temporarily were withheld, although the State Department said it would become effective for an initial period of three years 30 days after being ratified by the two countries.

Present commercial relations between the United States and Finland are governed by a general treaty signed in Washington on Feb. 13, 1934, providing for mutual most favored nation treatment. The State Department said he new agreement does not affect the rights and obligations under the 1934 accord, but merely defines more precisely the meaning of most favored nation treatment in connection with new international trade practices.

NOTED PHILADELPHIANS IN AMATEUR ART SHOW

Famous Surgeon Enters Landscape — Architects, Business Men Compete.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—George Wharton Pepper Jr., and Dr. Chevalier Jackson, landscape artists, and Ralph T. Senter, painter of portraits, are found in the ranks of Philadelphia's pastime painters—persons who paint in oils, water colors or pastels and a few sculptors whose artistic pursuits are limited to pastime and not followed as a vocation.

In everyday life, George Wharton Pepper Jr., is an architect, son of the former United States Senator. Dr. Jackson is known most widely as inventor of the bronchoscope and for his use of it in removing foreign objects from human lungs and bronchial tubes.

Senter is president of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co. One of three paintings he entered in the 1936 exhibition of the amateur group won first award for popularity among oil paintings.

Many others in the list of 96 exhibitors this year offered as much interest as their better known contemporaries.

Dietician Wins Third.

Julian E. Amerise, chief dietitian in a hospital, won the third popular award for oils with still life, "Roses." Herbert E. I'Oranger, a railway postal clerk, was represented, as was his sister, Ruth L'Oranger, a music teacher. Both entered still life oils.

Near each other on the gallery walls were canvases by Edward C. Page, Bryn Mawr coal operator, and Alfred C. Adam, a Lansdowne hair dresser. Dr. Walter Chrystie, a physician, was represented among the pastels and his wife among the water colors. Two paintings of horses drew attention in one corner. The artist was Francis B. Hall, Bryn Mawr tailor who specializes in riding habits.

Col. J. Franklin McFadden, a cotton merchant who is chairman of the Eastern Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Red Cross, was another prize winner, so was G. Potter Darrow, who operates an advertising agency.

Artist's Model Enters Own Work.

Marie L. Ramsey, an artist's model, figuratively turned the tables on her profession by exhibiting her own work, a landscape. H. C. Teorey, a bank vault inspector; George E. Starr, a department store section manager, and Dr. Isolde T. Zeckwer, a physician, were among exhibitors. Mrs. Levin Campbell, whose husband is the commandant at Frankford Arsenal, won a prize with a painting of the Arsenal.

Among the entrants, 50 different occupations or professions were represented. Seven clerks and six physicians topped the list. Although 22 indicated no occupations on their entrance cards, only one listed himself as unemployed.

The annual exhibition is limited to original work, not previously shown in Philadelphia, open to adults only. There is no association to join.

Awards are made by a jury of professional artists and popular awards are given by the vote of visitors.

INVESTMENT BANKERS ASSAIL TAX PROPOSAL

Resolution Urges Balanced Budget and Reduced Governmental Expenditures.

By the Associated Press.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 18.—The board of governors of the Investment Bankers' Association of America in a resolution yesterday condemned the proposed Federal revenue act of 1936 as "unsound in principle" and urged a balanced budget and reduced governmental expenditures.

"It is our opinion," said the resolution, "that the fiscal policy of the Government must be based on the principle that the budget be balanced during the coming fiscal year; that expenditures, both ordinary and extraordinary, be curtailed.

"It is our further opinion that taxes levied for purposes other than for revenue are misleading unless the purpose of such taxes is fully disclosed at the time of their impositon.

Lists Reasons.

"Be it further resolved, therefore, that this association is opposed to the revenue act of 1936 as passed by the House of Representatives, for the following reasons:

"First: Because any legislation which by its nature leaves industry uncertain as to its future course, or which fails to disclose the share which industry must contribute to establish a balanced budget and a sound fiscal policy, will of itself increase the difficulty of effecting a balance between revenues and expenditures, by retarding industrial progress and by increasing the burden of relief.

"Second: Because the real effect of the tax is to establish an experimental social reform, a fact not adequately disclosed, and the desirability of which is neither openly advocated by our Government nor accepted by our people.

Unsound Economically.

"Third: Because it is unsound in economic principle and, in the opinion of competent authorities, it will not produce the estimated revenue."

T. Stockton Matthews, chairman of the Federal Taxation Committee of the association, and a partner of Robert Garrett & Sons, Baltimore, presented the resolution.

Orrin G. Wood, association president, and a partner of Estabrook & Co., Boston, said: "Willingness of the governors of this conservative organization to break a policy of long standing in order to express an attitude on Government finances indicates their concern regarding the tax and budget situation."

CO-RECEIVER OF M. & ST. L. ON PROSPECTS FOR ROAD

L. C. Sprague Tells Senators He Believes It Can Be Profitably Operated As At Present.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Business prospects of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad were pictured as "better than ever" today by L. C. Sprague, co-receiver and president of the road. He told a Senate subcommittee he believed the line could continue to operate profitably under present management.

Sprague said he had tried to attract industrial business since he became connected with the road a year and a half ago, instead of viewing the road as a purely agricultural carrier.

He corroborated earlier testimony of J. W. Devins, geneal manager, that the company's physical property was worth much more than the $7,200,000 offer made by a group of Northwest railroads.

The committee is hearing testimony on the resolution by Senator Benson (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, asking for a Sente investigation of the proposed sale of the M. & St. L.

Devins told the committee his $17,000,000 valuation on the road's property represented bare salvage value, divided as follows:

Real estate, $7,000,000; ties and rails, $4,000,000; equipment, $4,500,000; bridges and other structures, $1,000,000, and supplies and materials, $500,000.

DENIES PWA PROMOTED CITY-OWNED POWER PLANTS

Deposition Submitted by Government in Utilities' Suit to Bar Loans for Such Purpose.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The Government placed evidence before the District of Columbia Supreme Court today designed to show the Public Works Administration had not encouraged municipalities to build public power systems through offers of Government funds.

This testimony was brought before Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat as PWA attorneys opposed the plea of four private utility companies for an injunction to halt Government financing of municipal power projects. The power firms have contended PWA is unconstitutional and that it is trying to exercise illegal control over intrastate electricity rates.

John W. Scott, special assistant to the Attorney-General, submitted a deposition by Herbert Dysant, City Councilman of Plainview, Tex., which said the city decided in 1931 to build its own power plant. This decision, Dysart said, followed prolonged efforts to obtain rate reductions from the Texas Utilities Co., then serving the community. He added that PWA officials had never suggested that the city should control the municipal electrical system, nor did they urge it to accept Federal loans and grants.

MEDICAL WITNESSES CALLED IN TRIAL OF PHYSICIAN

American Accused in China of Trying to Poison His Fourth Wife.

TIENTSIN, China, May 18.—The American Government, trying Dr. John W. Colbert on the charge of attempting to murder his socially-prominent wife, called a succession of medical witnesses today to dispute his contention that she was suffering from pernicious anaemia.

Federal prosecutors are seeking to prove the 50-year-old physician, formerly of St. Louis, tried to poison Mrs. Colbert over a long period of weeks. She is his fourth wife.

Among today's witnesses was Dr. Harold Mourer of Los Angeles, now director of a sanitarium at Kalgan. Virtually all the testimony today was technical.

The "Invisible" Heirs of Your Estate
CONTROL WHAT YOUR ACTUAL HEIRS RECEIVE

Estate taxes and administration costs are the first beneficiaries of your estate, its "invisible" heirs. They must be paid before one dollar can be transferred to your actual heirs.

The amount payable to these "invisible" heirs affects materially what your actual heirs receive. But you, in turn, by the manner in which you leave your estate, can exercise control over both sums.

For most estates, there are four general methods of transfer possible by will:

1. Outright transfer, usually the most costly method.
2. Transfer by testamentary trust, whereby you may save one set of taxes.
3. Transfer by a voluntary trust agreement whereby you may save not only one set of taxes but administration expenses as well.
4. Transfer by gift through an irrevocable trust, the least costly method of all.

Mississippi Valley Trust Company has had wide experience in handling the transfer of estates. We shall be glad to show you the cost of various methods of transfer as applied to your own estate. There is no obligation on your part.

SOCIALIST PARTY TO DISOWN ROOSEVELT

Leaders Say Convention Will Make Plain He Has Not Adopted Objectives.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 18. — Socialist party leaders said today the keynote of their national convention at Cleveland this week would be "Disown Roosevelt." The party's "biggest job," Secretary Clarence Senior declared, was to "teach the voters that the New Deal's program is not the Socialist program."

Confusion existed in the public mind over "so-called socialistic measures," Senior asserted, because, he said, the administration had "taken over the language" of socialism without taking over its goal.

The difference between the New Deal and socialism would be sharply defined from the very beginning of the Socialist convention, which opens Saturday, the party secretary said.

The task would probably be allotted, he added, to the keynote speaker, who was expected to be the national chairman, Leo Krzycki of Milwaukee.

Constitution an Issue.

The Socialist platform, Senior predicted, would be "very short," with two probable outstanding planks: (1) A proposed constitutional amendment "to make possible adequate social security legislation on a nation-wide scale," and (2) A declaration that "Socialism is now an economic possibility."

Senior and other party leaders agreed there was little opposition to nomination of Norman Thomas of New York for President, but there were a number of aspirats to be his running mate.

Woman May Be Running Mate.

One of these was a woman, Mary Donovan of Indianapolis, who served as secretary of the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee. Others were Powers Hapgood of Indianapolis, United Mine Workers official; Howard Kester of Nashville, Tenn., and James Maurer of Reading, Pa., former president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor.

Cheerful over last fall's municipal victories in Bridgeport, Conn., and Reading, Pa., the party headquarters expressed unconcern over resignations of labor leaders who turned from the Socialist party to the Democratic in the last few weeks.

RALPH PIERSON ON TRIAL THIRD TIME FOR FIRE DEATH

Jury Being Chosen to Hear Murder Case Resulting From Hotel Blaze.

Selection of a jury for the third trial of Ralph Pierson on a murder charge growing out of the Buckingham Hotel fire began this afternoon before Circuit Judge James M. Douglas. Seven persons died in the hotel fire, in 1927, and Pierson was charged with the murder of each and with arson.

In his first two trials Pierson received, successively, the death penalty and life imprisonment, but both convictions were reversed by the Missouri Supreme Court. The third trial was scheduled to begin May 11, but Verne Lacy, counsel for Pierson, filed an application for a writ of prohibition in the Supreme Court. The trial was postponed pending action on the application, which was overruled.

When the case was called again this morning Lacy presented a motion demanding that the State consolidate all the charges against the defendant. Judge Douglas overruled the motion. Lacy obtained a court order to produce as witnesses four convicts from the Missouri penitentiary, Hubert Harvey, George Christup, C. C. Cooper and Harvey Lidholm. The State will use two convict witnesses, Andrew Meadows and Robert Cotham, former employes of the Buckingham Hotel. Cotham is seriously ill, but will be brought to St. Louis in an ambulance.

Assistant Circuit Attorney John L. Sullivan anounced that Pierson would be tried for the death of Joseph J. O'Brien. The previous trials were for the death of Miss May Frazer.

YOUTH ADMITS BREAKING INTO NEIGHBOR'S HOUSE

John Cunningham Pawned Articles Taken in Three Burglaries in Two Weeks.

John Cunningham, 19 years old, 2528 Elliot avenue, has admitted, according to police, that he broke into the home of his neighbor, Charles Bueltmann, at 2526 Elliot avenue, three times within the past two weeks and stole articles which he pawned for small amounts.

Police quoted Cunningham as saying that each time he entered through a rear window. On his first trip he took a pair of shoes. The next time he got two suits of clothes. And last Thursday he took a catcher's mit and mask, a basketball and a revolver.

Police said Cunningham also admitted entering the home of Charles Mossmann at 2526A Eliot avenue last January and taking a rifle which he pawned for $1.50.

TO SUE TO QUASH GEN'L AMERICAN LIFE STOCK SALE

Former Judge Dawson Also to Move to Dissolve Voting Trust Agreement for Shares.

ASSAILS O'MALLEY SUIT OVER LOAN

Declares State Superintendent "Is Starting Action That I Intend to See He Shall Finish."

Former United States District Judge Charles I. Dawson of Louisville, Ky., made public today through Attorney Ernest A. Green a statement that he was preparing to file suits to set aside the recent sale of stock control of the General American Life Insurance Co. to the Southwestern Life Insurance Co. of Dallas, Tex., and to dissolve a voting trust agreement for the General American Life stock.

In a vigorously worded statement he assailed the action of State Insurance Superintendent R. Emmet O'Malley in naming him, as a former director of the insolvent Missouri State Life Insurance Co., as a defendant in a suit filed last week by O'Malley to recover for the Missouri State Life from its 13 former directors, $850,000 alleged loss on a loan of $800,000 made by the company in 1932 to its then board chairman, Julius H. Barnes of New York.

"O'Malley is starting an action that I intend to see that he shall finish," Dawson said in his statement, "and if he in good faith wants to fasten liability upon those responsible for the $800,000 loan, I will furnish him with all the evidence he needs to bring his action to a successful conclusion."

To Call O'Malley to Account.

"Furthermore, before this action is over with," Dawson added, "I propose to call Mr. O'Malley himself to account for his connection with the reinsurance of the Missouri State Life Insurance Co. and for the other matters in connection with that company above referred to."

Dawson was named as a defendant in the suit filed last week in St. Louis Circuit Court by Supt. O'Malley, although he was not present at the directors' meeting Dec. 16, 1932, when the $800,000 loan to Barnes was approved.

As has been told in the Post-Dispatch, Dawson, on Dec. 17, 1932, wrote to William T. Nardin, then president of Missourri State Life, protesting against the loan and saying that in his opinion the action was illegal. He then demanded that the president call a special meeting of the board to reconsider the action, and said that if such meeting was not called his letter was to be considered as his resignation as a director.

Replying to that letter, Nardin said he would not call the special meeting and that Dawson's resignation was accepted.

The defendants named in O'Malley's suit, in addition to Dawson, Nardin and Barnes, were Eugene D. Nims, Frank O. Watts and Thomas M. Pierce of St. Louis; Ernest Woodward of Louisville, Ky., and Theobald Felss, Paul M. Davis, Machir Dorsey, Stephen Paul, Harry S. Tressel and Melvin L. Emerich.

Details of Barnes Loan.

The loan in question was made to a corporation controlled by Barnes to enable Barnes to purchase stock control of the Missouri State Life. The loan was defended at the time by Nardin on the ground that it made possible consolidation of control of the company and the elimination of dissension among stock interests. Four other directors besides Dawson resigned because of their opposition to the loan. They were Woodward, Emerich, Paul and Tressel. Collateral for the loan was stock of other insurance companies which O'Malley alleged in his suit last week is practically worthless. O'Malley alleged the loss sustained by Missouri State Life was the amount of the loan, plus $50,000 interest the insurance company paid for money it borrowed from banks so that it could make the loan to Barnes.

This loan was one of the assets of Missouri State Life drastically written down by State Insurance Department examiners in August, 1933, when Missouri State Life was adjudged insolvent. Its assets then were sold to the General American Life Insurance Co. under a reinsurance contract.

Reviews Transactions.

Reviewing these transactions, Dawson said in his statement:

"On Sept. 7, 1933, O'Malley, as Insurance Superintendent of Missouri, brought about the reinsurance of the Missouri State Life Insurance Co. with the General American Life Insurance Co., which was organized for that purpose. This reinsurance agreement was executed without advertising for bids, on the ground that it was not required under the Missouri law, inasmuch as the impairment exceeded 25 per cent, and to make

TOWNSEND CARAVAN REACHES WASHINGTON

18 Autos Make Trip From California—Three Truck Loads of Petitions.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18. — The Townsend old age pension plan caravan, which left Los Angeles 13 days ago with three truck loads of petitions, arrived at non yesterday, halting before the Grant Memorial at the foot of Capitol Hill. It was met by four members of Congress headed by Representative Tolan (Dem.), California, a Townsend supporter.

"We have traveled 3000 miles and endured hardships to bring you the signatures of 10,581,000 persons who insist that the Townsend plan be enacted into law," Miss Lois Jean Johnson, leader of the Townsend youth movement in San Diego, told Tolan. Tolan, only member present of the House committee which is investigating the Townsend organization, said that the petititons would be presented to the committee when it convenes Tuesday.

Dr. Francis E. Townsend, leader of the movement, did not arrive in Washington from California in time for the presentation. He has been summoned to testify Tuesday at the resumption of committee hearings.

The Congressmen with Tolan who turned out to welcome the caravan included Representatives White (Dem.), Idaho; Smith (Dem.), Washington, and Kramer (Dem.), California.

Ralph Lepine, Los Angeles, leader of the group of 43 which crossed the country in 18 automobiles, reported the party had come safely through three sandstorms and two heavy rainstorms, that the caravan had been escorted from the time it left California by official police patrols, and that once they had driven 973 miles without stopping to sleep.

TO SUE TO QUASH GEN'L. AMERICAN LIFE STOCK SALE

this showing O'Malley took the ridiculous position that policy loans could not be regarded as assets.

"The General American, under the reinsurance agreement, took over all the assets of the Missouri State Life as trustee for the policyholders, the stockholders under the contract being made residuary beneficiaries. Among the other assets taken over was the controlling interest in the Southwestern Life Insurance Co. With O'Malley's consent, the General American has recently executed a voting trust agreement, under which the voting power of the Southwestern stock owned by the Missouri State Life is surrendered by the General American and vested in three officrs of the Southwestern. . . .

Control Bought With Own Funds.

"Very recently the Southwestern Life Insurance Co. has been permitted to use and to furnish in the aggregate $2,600,000 of its funds for the purchase of 83½ per cent of the General American stock, the price being $60 a share, which was 50 per cent in excess of the price paid for the stock less than three years ago when the company was organized. In this way the Southwestern has been permitted to use its own funds to buy its own control.

"When I learned of these transactions, as attorney for the Kentucky Home Life Insurance Co., which owns some of the stock of the Missouri State Life Insurance Co., I protested to the Insurance Superintendent of Missouri and to the General American Life Insurance Co., and insisted that they should each take such action as was necessary to set aside the voting trust agreement with reference to the Southwestern stock, and to compel the return to the treasury of the Southwestern of the $2,600,000 paid out by it for use in the purchase of the General American stock.

"They both refused to bring any such actions, and they were then advised that in behalf of my client I should be compelled to institute such actions. . . .

"I am satisfied that in so far as the action (O'Malley's suit) against Mr. Woodward and myself is concerned, it is a bluff suit to keep us from coming to Missouri for the purpose of prosecuting the proposed actions. I am calling his bluff."

BARTENDER SHOT IN NECK BY UNIDENTIFIED MAN

Albin Yakutis Suffers Wound and Father Is Struck on Head in Holding Assailant.

Albin Yakutis, bartender, suffered a wound of the neck, yesterday, when one of a group of men who entered the saloon where he is employed at 1701 Cass avenue, fired several shots at him, apparently without provocation. Yakutis' father, Stanley, suffered a lacerated scalp when he was struck over the head as he attempted to hold the man who fired at the bartender. The men fled.

The elder Yakutis and his wife, 3230 Bailey avenue, were seated in the establishment when three or four men came in about 3:30 p. m., they told police. One man flourished a revolver, but was seized and drawn outside by his companions. A few minutes later he ran back in and fired several shots at Albin Yakutis. The family was unable to identify the assailant or ascribe any motive for his act.

U. S. and British Champions Lose in Golf Tourney

Five Americans Win, Three Are Eliminated In the Opening Round

By the Associated Press.

SOUTHPORT, England, May 18.—Wanda Morgan, the defending champion, Mrs. Glenna Collet Vare, the American champion, and two other United States players, were eliminated in the first round of the British women's golf championship today. The second and third rounds will be played tomorrow.

Mrs. Vare, who was among the favorites, was defeated by another American, Charlotte Glutting, South Orange, N. J., 5 and 3. After being two down at the turn, Mrs. Vare blew up on the last nine while Miss Glutting, driving far and well, never gave her a chance to get even.

The defeat of Miss Morgan was not so much of an upset. She was beaten by Bridget Newell, the youthful English barrister, who won the medal in the qualifying round. The score in this match was 3 and 1, and it was featured by Miss Morgan's great comeback on the last nine after being four down at the turn.

Miss Morgan won the twelfth when Miss Newell three putted, and she holed a 45-foot putt at the fifteenth for another win, but Miss Newall played the sixteenth and seventeenth in birdies to close the match out.

Patty Berg Advances.

The other Americans who survived were Mrs. Maureen Orcutt Crews, Coral Gables, Fla., who defeated Mrs. Grant White, Great Britain, 4 and 3; Patty Berg, Minneapolis, who trounced Marjorie Barrow, Great Britain, 6 and 5; Marion Miley, Lexington, Ky., who defeated Doris Park, Great Britain, 4 and 3, and Mrs. Leona Cheney, Los Angeles, who thumped Mrs. Helen Holm, Great Britain, 6 and 5.

In additon to Mrs. Vare, the other two Americans who were eliminated were Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite, Fort Worth, Tex., who was beaten by Mrs. H. W. Newton, 4 and 2, and Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City, who lost to Molly Gourlay, veteran British player, 3 and 2.

This leaves five Americans to play in the second round tomorrow morning. The third round will be played tomorrow afternoon, reducing the field to eight. Two other rounds will be played on Wednesday, cutting the field to the finalists, who meet at 36 holes for the title on Thursday.

Pam Barton, runner-up for the title the last two years, defeated Diana Plumpton, a member of the 1934 British Curtis Cup team, 1 up.

Results of other early first-round matches follow: Nell Forrest, Great Britain, defeated the Scottish champion, Robertson Durham, 2 and 1; Mrs. Edith Rhodes, Great Britain, beat Gloria Minoprio, the Frenchwoman who used only one club all the way around, 7 and 6; Mrs. J. #### Yarosz Meets Turner.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 18—Teddy Yarosz, former world's middleweight champion, takes on Bob Turner of Norfolk, Va., tonight in his first fight since he lost the title to Eddie (Babe) Risko last September.

Give and Take, as the Hornsbys Battled the Macks

MIZE SMASHES HOMER IN FOUR-RUN INNING; WHITNEY GETS PAIR

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—Bill Hallahan failed again this afternoon, the Phillies knocking him out of the box in the third inning, but the Cardinals again had their heavy guns working and Frankie Frisch's forces scored their second straight victory at Baker Bowl, 11 to 6. It was the Redbirds' seventh triumph in nine games played on the trip.

A tactical blunder by Manager Jimmy Wilson, who doesn't make many mistakes, enabled the Cards to break a 6-6 tie in the seventh inning. Joe Medwick tripled with two out, driving in two runs to tie the score and Wilson chose to let Orville Jorgens pitch to Johnny Mize. When Mize finished swinging his bat the Cardinals were two runs aheadX as he hit over the right field wall for his fifth homer o fthe season.

Medwick drove in four runs and Mize three during the afternoon to play a prominent part in the triumph.

Ryba relieved Hallahan in the third and was credited with the decision. He retired for a pinch-hitter in the seventh and Paul Dean hurled for last three frames.

GEORGETTI LEADER IN BICYCLE TITLE RACE

By the Associated Press.

NUTLEY, N. J., May 18. — Mike de Filippo and Franco Georgetti captured 25-mile, motor-paced bicycle races yesterday, the first of six in a series of qualifying events to determine the championship cast.

De Filippo, Italy, earned his victory after takng the lead from Alf Letourner, France, at the 16-mile post. Letourner barely staved off Franz Deulberg, Germany, in a last-minute duel to finish second.

Georgetti passed Gerry Debaets, Belgium, after eight miles of hard pedaling and held the lead to the end.

The standing of the leaders in the qualifying series now is: Division A—Georgetti, 5; Debaets, 3; Tino Reboli, 2. Division B—De Filippo, 5; Letourner, 3; Deulberg, 2.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Bring on Brevity!

YOU just can't help falling for Bold Venture, Derby and Preakness winner. Twice in major stakes, against great opponents, he has shown that quality which grips us all—bulldog resolution.

In the Derby the horse esteemed to be the country's greatest three-year-old looked him in the eye all down the stretch. But Bold Venture looked right back and stuck to his job. He just got his nozzle home ahead of Brevity—but he did it.

Saturday, after taking the worst of the racing luck, being in trouble for almost a mile and going the overland route, he looked the flying Granville in the eye. Granville looked back, too. But Bold Venture couldn't see him. He went right on about the business of winning, got his nose in front and held it there to the finish.

There's a horse to our liking. You can almost bank he'll give 100 per cent every time he goes to the post in condition. And that, Mr. and Mrs. Racing Fan, is all that we ask of any race horse.

Brevity may be a faster horse than Bold Venture, but if he beats him when they meet in the Belmont, he must show courage as well as speed, for this son of St. Germans seems to be the type that never quits. Perhaps he may not be as brilliant as that other son of St. Germans, Twenty Grand. But we're willing to gamble he'll be more consistent.

Hogsett Joins Ranks Of Winners, Browns Beat Athletics, 8-5

By James M. Gould.

While victories for the Browns this season have been so infrequent as to get in the "man-bites-dog" category and most of the pitching has been by squads rather than by individuals, Manager Hornsby today feels as though he could report real progress in both departments. It took the Browns 11 days to win three games and then they went 16 days without a single victory. And, in his period, it was no trick at all for the Browns to use anywhere from three to five pitchers per day. But, in the past six days, two victories have accrued and the pitching can definitely be proved to be on the upgrade.

Since the beginning of the present Eastern invasion of the Western cities the Browns have played six games, three with the Yanks, two with Washington and one, yesterday, with the Athletics. In only one of these games was there any wholesale use of pitchers. Thomas and Hogsett each started twice and both finished once, being relieved in their other starts only because of the chance to use a pinch-hitter. In five of the six games Hornsby had to use only eight pitchers—far below that April-early May average. Moreover, in the six games the East has outscored the

BUDGE AND MAKO EXPECTED TO PLAY DAVIS CUP DOUBLES

CALIFORNIANS ACCORDED EDGE IN COMPETITION WITH VETERANS

California "Redhead" With Captain Allison Are Likely to Be Named For the Singles Matches.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18. — Unless all indications are tossed into the discard, the slim shoulders of red-headed Don Budge, who admittedly "has everything" it takes for court warfare, will bear the brunt of the United States' Davis Cup zone finals against Australia next week-end.

Not only will he carry half the singles burden—with Texas Wilmer Allison assuming the other half—but the likelihood is the selection committee will turn its back on the "old guard," and name the carrot-topped Californian and his team-mate, Gene Mako, for the doubles competition.

This became apparent with the windup of the first week of training for the Australian match, when the doubles standbys of the last several years, Allison and Van Ryn, went down in straight sets before the impressive racquets of the youngsters from California, Mako and Budge, in a telling two-man team engagement.

Officials Watch Play.

The hour-and-ten-minute victory, by scores of 6—1, 6—4, 7—5—although it did not produce the best tennis in the world by either side—was put on for the benefit of an impressive gallery, which included Holcombe Ward, the selection committee chairman, and Walter Pate and Joseph W. Wear, the 1936 and '35 Davis Cup captains.

After it was all over, Ward admitted the performance would bear considerable weight when the committee makes its playing selections Tuesday night in New York.

In addition to the big doubles dispute, the major question during the first week of practice was just what part Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, the "Mighty Atom" from Atlanta, will play in the Davis Cup picture. A great clay court competitor, the Atlanta mite, himself, admits he isn't nearly the performer on grass that he is on the harder surface. But despite that, he is not yet ready to admit defeat in his try for a singles berth on the American squad in the international competition. And, with grass surfaces hardening under warmer skies, he is of the opinion, he may yet come through to an appointment as a playing member of the squad.

Australians Work Out.

Meantime, while the Americans were going through their paces at the Merion Cricket Club in suburban Haverford, the Australians held several workouts at the Germantown Cricket Club, scene of the zone matches Friday, Saturday and Sunday, but relaxed toward the end of the week to prepare for a return to the stretch drive tomorrow.

Vivian (Two-Hand Backhand) McGrath, Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist, the invading delegation, spent part of the week-end around a billiard table, but expected to settle down to serious work again in their windup practice sessions, their worry over McGrath's blistered finger at an end.

Six Nations Advance.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 18.—While the United States and Australian teams are tuning up at Philadelphia for the final clash of the American Zone Davis Cup competition, six nations have reached the quarter-final in the European Zone. The ultimate winner will oppose the victor between America and Australia in the inter-zone series for the right to challenge England.

Two encounters were delayed over the past week-end in Europe but the ones that have been completed sent Belgium, France, Germany, Argentina, Ireland and Switzerland into the third round.

Germany, topping the lower half of the draw, triumphed over Hungary, 5—0, in matches concluded yesterday and will oppose Argentina, which previously had eliminated Greece. Ireland and Switzerland, victorious over Sweden and Denmark, respectively, will meet in the other lower half encounter.

In the upper half Austria leads Poland, two matches to one, and Czechoslovakia has the same margin over Yugoslavia by virtue of yesterday's doubles victory. The final singles matches of the Austria-Poland tie, the winner of which will meet Belgium, were postponed yesterday. Belgium eliminated Norway a week ago while France trounced Holland will meet the winner between Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia.

Another Turnesa Wins.

WATERTOWN, Mass., May 18.—Willie Turnesa of Holy Cross, youngest of the seven golfing brothers and an outstanding contender for the 1936 national amateur title, won the New England intercollegiate championship yesterday with a spectacular closing rush at Oakley.

The tiny crusader, who led the field in the qualifying round, scored a sub-par 141, seven strokes better than the defending champion, Lynford Lardner of Harvard.

Gonzales' Whispering Campaign Helps J. Dean Gain His Fifth Victory

By J. Roy Stockton

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—Frankie Frisch's Gas House Gang knocked Curt Davis from the box yesterday afternoon and showed a devastating punch, winning the first game of the series, 10 to 3, but it was a much more interesting afternoon than the lopsided score would indicate. Beating the Phillies by any score is not any great feat, as deeds on the baseball diamond are measured, but to professional observers it was an illuminating contest, proving once again that there can be more than nine men on a baseball team.

Rickey, in East, Says No Deals Are Planned

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.

BRANCH RICKEY, who arrived last night for a conference with Frank Frisch and to see the Cardinals in two or three games, said after a talk with Frank that no trades were contemplated by the St. Louis club. He said, however, that if opportunity knocked he would lend a willing ear.

For five innings Davis toyed with the Cardinals as Popeye would toy with Olive Oyl's little sister, if Olive has a sister. Joe, the Duck, Medwick, hit a home run in the second inning, it is true, but then, Joe, the Duck, is an extraordinary batter. He is likely to hit a home run against any pitcher at any time.

Except for that four base smash into the left field seats, the Cardinal attack for five frames was feeble, unproductive. Durocher got an infield single in the fifth and that and Joe, the Duck's homer were the only safeties off Davis. And meantime the Phillies had taken advantage of a Cardinal fielding lapse and were leading, 3 to 1. Dolf Camilli, using his new square batting stance, hit a homer in the second and Grace followed with a pop fly which Medwick could have caught easily, but which Durocher tried for and missed, the ball falling safe for a two base hit. Dizzy Dean tightened his belt and struck out Norris and Whitney, but he then became careless and before he could retire the necessary third man, Curt Davis had doubled, Sulik had tripled and the Phils had three runs.

Redbirds Tie It Up.

That lead of 3 to 1 looked very large as Davis was turning back the Red Birds with the greatest of ease, that is until things began to happen in the St. Louis sixth. The first two Red Bird hitters in the inning went down without trouble. Then Pepper Martin smashed a triple against the wall in right center. There was jubilation in the Cardinal dugout. Medwick followed with a triple against the same right center field wall and when Mize singled to center the score was tied at 3 to 3.

Gelbert flied out, but in the seventh the Cardinals resumed their firing. Something had happened to Davis. Coach Mike Gonzales knew about it, whatever it was. He wispered to Durocher, first up in the seventh and Durocher doubled to left center. Mike then whispered to Ogrodowski and Brusie doubled over Ethan Allen's head, a tremendous clout. And when Dizzy Dean listened to whispered Gonzales words and dropped a double in left center, Manager Wilson of the Phils decided he needed a new pitcher.

Bucky Walters took over the job, but whatever mistakes Davis had been making were not eliminated from the routine when Walters went to the firing line. It may have been the way the shortstop was carrying his glove. It may have been the way Catcher Earl Grace was wiggling his fingers. But to professional observers it seemed that the Cardinals had suddenly come into possession of the Phillie signals. Redbird batters went to the plate and dug their spikes into the dirt. They stood up there confidently and when they swung they connected. There were only two hits in five innings—two hits and one run—but before the game ended, the Gas House Gang had staked itself to 14 safeties and 10 runs. The hits included a triple and a homer by Pepper Martin; a homer, two triples and a single by Joe, the Duck; a single and a double by Durocher; two doubles by Ogrodowski and a double and a single by Dizzie Dean.

Perhaps it was just a sudden change of form. Perhaps Curt Davis suddenly lost his cunning. Perhaps his curve would no longer dip and dart with disconcerting abruptness. But it is more likely that a tenth man on the Cardinal squad was the real hero. Was it Senor Miguel Gonzales? You'll never know. Ballplayers wont' discuss a thing like that. If signals are discovered, nothing is ever said about it. There will be no admission, no boasting. But it is this observer's guess that Senor Miguel Gonzales saw something, that he relayed it to his comrades, and that the big, bad Curtis Davis straightaway became just a batting-practice pitcher for the Gas House Gang. It makes that much difference, when you know what is coming. And the Cardinals, after five innings, acted suspiciously as though there was no mystery about the pitchers of the Philadelphia hurlers.

The game attracted the Phils' largest crowd in three years, 13,997 persons paying to see the Gas-House Gang.

Stuart Martin is playing an excellent game at second base. He made a fancy catch of Camilli's line drive in the eighth.

---

HOGSETT FINISHES STRONG TO WIN FROM THE ATHLETICS, 8 TO 5

Browns by only six runs—29 runs to 23.

It has been suspected right along that the Browns still might be dangerous if all their departments Sometimes the pitching—notably in the recent cases of Thomas and Hogsett—has been acceptable, but, on those occasions, the fielding would go sour or the batters would go on a vacation so far as base hits were concerned.

Another Losing Streak Stopped.

Yesterday, however, all departments clicked as the Browns defeated the Athletics in the opener of a three-game series by a score of 8 to 5, thereby recording their fifth victory of the season and putting an end to a second 1936 losing streak which had reached four games.

In the field the Browns played errorless ball. At bat, they gathered 11 hits of assorted sizes and, in the box, Chief Elon Hogsett, batted rather briskly in the early innings, showed "stuff" and stamina by permitting but one hit and no runs in the final four frames.

It wasn't so much the victory—though, heaven knows, it was welcome—as the manner of winning that was most pleasing yesterday. Wildness on the part of Lee Ross—he gave three passes right off the reel — Bottomley's base-clearing triple and a single by Sam West after Herman Fink had relieved Ross, gave the Browns a dashing start with four runs. The Athletics picked up one in the second, two in the fourth and two more in the fifth to tie the count at 5—5, the Browns having added one in the fourth.

Now, in previous games, the Browns seldom have been ahead. The few times they were, and the opposition tied it up, it was the signal for Hornsby's men to "play dead" and the enemy's late-inning rush decided the issue. But not so yesterday.

Hogsett, with the score tied, was a far better pitcher than Hogsett with a four-run lead. With the deadlock in force, the Chief became a master. Only two men reached first in the last four innigs, and neither advanced even to second. And the Brownie batesmen showed their appreciation of this kind of pitching by walloping out a victory for the ex-Tiger.

There were two out and nobody was on in the seventh when Fink worked Julius Solters to a three-two count. He had to put the next one over, and he did, much to Solters' delight, for the husky outfielder lifted one into the left-field seats for the circuit. The way Hogsett was pitching, this was the only run needed, but the Browns scored another in that half and then made assurance of victory doubly sure by scoring once in the eighth.

The Browns' road to a clean sweep over Philadelphia will not, however, be made easy for them, for, tomorrow, in the second game, the Athletics' hurler will be Gordon Rhodes, ex-Yankee and ex-member of the Red Sox, whose work for Mack, after he had been thrown in as "boot" in a deal with Boston, has been of the highest class. Already, the cast-off owns victories over New York, Boston, Detroit and the Browns. In Philadelphia, the big right-hander allowed the Browns only seven hits and beat them, 7 to 4.

Opposed to Rhodes will be Jack Knott, who, on his last appearance, worked six nice innings before tiring. Hornsby wants four regular starters so he can work them in turn. In Thomas and Hogsett, he appears to have a sure two and he believes Knott will be No. 3.

BRADBURY WINS EASTERN ZONE SKEET HONORS; HARRISON NEXT

Repeating the brilliant performance that enabled him to take the Class A honors, William H. Bradbury came back in yesterday's final round of competition with a 94, which, with Saturday's 98, enabled him to capture the main title event in the Missouri Eastern Zone Skeet tourney with a total score of 192. Yesterday's shoot, which was conducted on the grounds of the St. Louis Skeet and Trap Club (formerly Riverside), marked the end of a two-day program in which 81 entries competed.

Bradbury, who played in the outfield for the Danville club of the Three-I. League in 1927, missed but eight "birds" in 200 shots with his dad's shotgun. He played amateur hockey in the local Intercollegiate League last winter. He has spent the summer months during the past few years practicing on the clay "birds." His father, Walter W. Bradbury, heads the Missouri State Skeet Association and is a former State champion.

The newly crowned zone champion also takes over the Creve Coeur Skeet Club's 1936 title as a result of his victory. W. L. Harrison of Hannibal, not only finished second to Bradbury Saturday for the Class A title, but also finished in the runner-up position in the zone event with a score of 189. G. E. "Bing" Crosby of the Lakeside Skeet Club at Bagnell Dam, chalked down the best round yesterday with a 95. He is secretary of the State body.

The five-man team event which was a very closely contested affair, was finally won by the St. Louis Skeet Club with a total score of 450, just seven more than scored by the Creve Coeur Club members. The winning team was composed of Harold Siebens—94; Ted Dahlke, 90; R. Warren Ketchum, 92; Sidney Weber, 89, and Howard A. Johnston, 85. Both teams had 114 points at the end of the first round. Creve Coeur took the lead after the second, 224 to 221, while both teams again were tied, 335-335, going into the final round.

That jackpot that the Cardinal players contribute to for failure to score a man on third under certain conditions is all right as far as it goes but it is rather tough on the $2500 rookie who kicks in the same amount as the $12,000 star and probably oftener and may not be among those present when the pot is divided.

NORTH END MEN RESCUED AFTER SHELL SMASHES UNDER A BARGE

Mishap Occurs After Finish of Freshman Race—Western Boat Sinks—Scull Also Swamped.

Swirling muddy waters of the Mississippi scored the major victory at the opening of the rowing season yesterday, as Western Club oarsmen won three of the four races.

Rough and choppy at the St. Louis Club landing, the old man of rivers swamped North End's eight-man shell and smashed it beneath a freight barge downstream from the finish line. No lives were lost, but the hull of the racing craft was ripped severely.

The mishap occurred after the last event, the freshman eight for men who never had won a race. The one and one-half mile race began between Eads and Municipal Bridges.

Central North End and Western crews pulled evenly for a quarter mile. Western, stroking about 30 per minute, nosed ahead, but with the finish in sight, the boat took in too much water and "went under," while Central skimmed along to victory.

Western Men Towed In.

The Western men, clinging to their half-submerged shell, hooked on to the official launch for a hitch hike to the landing. The boats drifted beyond the finish mark down to where North End's craft, after placing second in the race, had shipped more of the river than it could carry.

The North End crew went over the side and hung on. A motorboat and the starter's launch stood by. As those in the motorboat prepared to aid the North End boys, the official launch returned to the landing with the Western eight in tow.

A few hundred yards down river from the drifting North End shell and crew was a string of anchored barges and steamboats, a powerful current rushing beneath them. The shell got away from the motorboat and headed for the barges, with two or three boys still hanging on.

"We kept hold until it reached the barge," said Elmer Boman, No. 7 on the North End team. "Then we grabbed the edge of the barge, and the shell dived under. There was a lot of suction. My legs were swept up against the bottom of the barge."

Shell Found.

The boys were pulled out and a half hour later the shell was found wedged beneath a barge and steamboat about 100 yards farther down.

One other boat was swamped in the races. The St. Louis double scull, with Johnny Adelsberger and Clarence Horner aboard, filled up. An eighth mile from the finish, they jumped out. Horner was picked up, while Johnny served as the connecting link between launch rope and the waterlogged scull to pull it ashore.

Western's first places came in the junior four, the senior barge and the junior doubles.

The races were scheduled to start at 2 o'clock but didn't. The first was finished by 3 p. m., the second at 4:15, the third about an hour later and the fourth shortly after 6 o'clock.

Some Fun.

Three men in a canoe entertained the crowd of 300 by riding the backwash of the passing steamer, Minneapolis.

The races were not officialy timed, but all were slow. All except the junior doubles race were won by several boat lengths.

Vosmik, Batting .210, Is Benched By Indian Leader

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, May 18.

JOE VOSMIK, Cleveland Indians' outfielder, who came within one point of the American League batting championship last year, is going to warm the bench for a few days because of the worst batting slump in his career, Manager Steve O'Neill said last night.

Vosmik, according to unofficial averages, has hit only 22 times in 105 trips to the plate for a .210 percentage. He has gone hitless since last Monday at Detroit, when he got to Tommy Bridges for a single.

Kocsis Leads In Big 10 Golf With 139 Score

CHICAGO, May 18.—Charles Kocsis, ace of Michigan's defending Big Ten golf champions, slipped off his brilliant sub-par morning round pace this afternoon, but a 73, three strokes over even figures, gave him a 36-hole total of 139 and an apparently safe lead over the field in the annual Western Conference tournament.

CHICAGO, May 18.—University of Michigan golfers swept to the fore in the Western Conference championship at Kildeer Country Club here today, with Charpes Kocsis, individual titleholder in 1934, setting the pace with a par-smashing 31-35—66.

The Wolverine team had a four-man total of 281, as a result of consistent play. Woodrow Malloy turned in 37-33—70 to take a strong grip on second place and Allen Saunders had 36-35—71, putting him in a deadlock with Wilbur Hokes of Illinois, 38-33—71, for third place.

Illinois had a team total of 299. Northwestern, runner-up last year, had 305 and Minnesota, 313.

Kocsis gave a remarkable exhibition of the game in his final fling in the tournament, as he finishes his college career next month. His 31-35—66 was four under par, which is 35-35—70. Putting like a wizard, Kocsis had six birdies, one at the Twelfth by sinking of a chip shot of 18 yards from the rough.

DENNY SETS RECORD IN HORSESHOE PLAY

Brooks Denny set a double-ringer record in the Greater St. Louis Horseshoe League play last night, hooking 45 doubles in four games for the new mark. The Kuhlmann & Kuhlmann team increased its lead to two points over the Fosters squad by blanking the Berry Bros. team, 4—0. Fosters won from the Stroot-Carroll squad, 2—1, and De Lucas defeated Dirksmeyers, 2—1.

FRANCE LEADS, 12-7, IN MATCH WITH BRITONS

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 18.—The English holders of the Davis Cup lost to France's Davis Cup players, 4-1, yesterday—but it was only in fun.

Playing in the annual Franco-British Club matches, Christian Boussus defeated H. W. (Bunny) Austin, 7—5, 7—5, and Jean Borotra and Marcel Bernard beat George Patrick Hughes and C. R. D. Tuckey, 6—4, 9—7, while only Fred Perry among the British Davis Cup stars was able to record a victory. Perry defeated Bernard Destremeau, 6—3, 6—3. In the first day's matches Boussus upset Perry and Destremeau defeated Austin.

The downfall of the British Davis Cup players helped France gain a 12-7 lead over the English team at the end of the second day of the three-day series. The French won in five matches yesterday and the British four. France took a 7-3 lead yesterday in the opening competition.

Yesterday's other matches saw Andre Merlin defeat Tuckey, 6—3, 7—5, Borotra trounce E. R. Avory, and Paul Feret defeat C. E. Hare for the other French victories.

Except for Perry's triumph, the British victories all came in the doubles. Hare and F. H. D. Wilde defeated Jacques Brugnon and Merlin, 4—6, 6—3, 9—7; Avory and Nigel Sharpe defeated Pierry Landry and Georges Glasser, 6—4, 7—5, and D. H. Williams and Westmacott defeated Raymond Rodel and Pierre Blancy, 6—4, 1—6, 6—3.

GERMAN DAVIS CUP TEAM SWEEPS SERIES WITH HUNGARY'S SQUAD

By the Associated Press.

DUSSELFORD, Germany, May 18.—Germany made a clean sweep of its second round Davis Cup encounter with Hungary by winning the last two singles matches yesterday for a 5—0 triumph. The Germans clinched the series by winning the doubles yesterday.

Baron Gottfried von Cramm, German ace, had little trouble defeating George Dallos, 6—1, 7—5, 6—3. Heiner Henkle won over Emil Gabory in three harder sets, 8—6, 6—3, 7—5.

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, May 18.—Czechoslovakia took a 2—1 lead over Yugoslavia in their second-round European zone Davis Cup matches yesterday when L. Hecht and F. Malacer defeated F. Punec and J. Kukuljevic, 4—6, 9—7, 2—6, 6—3, 6—4, in the doubles.

VIENNA, May 18.—The concluding singles matches of the second-round Davis Cup encounter between Austria and Poland were postponed because of rain. Austria led, 2—1, after Saturday's doubles victory.

BRITISH, AMERICAN GOLF CHAMPIONS LOSE IN THE FIRST ROUND

Miss Glutting was 2 up at the turn and won the eleventh and twelfth with pars when Mrs. Vare slipped one over on each. The American champion, who was one of the favorites, went 5 down on the thirteenth, where she took a 6 to Miss Glutting's par 4, and though she rallied and won the next one with a par, she lost the match at the short fifteenth by taking a 5.

Twice Mrs. Vare had reached the finals in the British championship, in 1929 and in 1930. The first time she was beaten by her old nemesis, Joyce Wethered, 3 and 1, and the second time by the fair-haired Diana Fishwick, 4 and 3.

With Miss Wethered now in the professional ranks, it was thought that Mrs. Vare this year had her best chance to win.

Manager Connie Mack, 53 Years In Game, Visions Another Pennant-Winner

By W. J. McGoogan

Connie Mack, tall, lean, white-haired leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, stood at the corner of the grandstand in Sportsman's Park looking out across the field as his 1936 edition of the famous A's were going through the batting drill before tackling the Browns.

Probably in his mind's eye Mack could see other men in those uniforms—Jack Barry, Frank Baker, Eddie Collins, Stuffy McInnis, Rube Waddell, Eddie Plank, Chief Bender, Mike Schreckengost—those stars of yesteryear who helped him win nine American League pennants and five world championsips.

But instead of those greats he was looking at Finney, Warstler, Moses, Puccinelli, Higgins, Newsome, Bob Johnson, visualizing the changes which would have to be made to bring this team up to a par with his past aggregations. Mack constantly looks forward and does not live in the past. Which probably explains why this quiet-spoken man who will celebrate his 74th birthday next December, is spending his fifty-third season in baseball.

What Baseball Means.

Aside from the fact that it is his business, though, just what does the game hold for him? You would picture a man of his age and temperament on a warm Sunday afternoon sitting in his armchair in his home in Philadelphia rather than in the dugout of the visiting team at Sportsman's Park.

Yet when he was asked how he was standing his long years in the game he smiled and replied:

"I can't think of any place I would rather be than on the bench with my team. Where would I be except where I am?"

And somehow you got the impression that his love of the game—a young man's game—is what keeps him looking 20 years younger than he is.

"But how about all these train rides, year in and year out, Mr. Mack, which men much younger than yourself complain about. How do you stand them?"

Again the pale blue eyes of the veteran manager lighted as he smiled:

"Why, I don't know anything wrong with trains, they're all a part of the game. And I love the game.

"You know, they said when I sold some of my famous stars to Boston last winter that I should be run out of baseball," he went on, "and I replied that if I hadn't sold these players, I would be out of baseball. Instead, I want to remain in the game, so I sold my great players and am still in it.

"They say I like to break up great teams in order to rebuild," he went on with some feeling. "How silly! Would you like to give up something good you happened to have and gamble on something else? No? I thought so. Neither do I. But I owed money, my club owed money and we had to part with some of our greatest stars in order to pay off. Thank God we have paid off. They say I made a lot of money out of selling my players. I have never seen a cent of the money, neither have my partners. People to whom we were obligated did. Now we owe nothing, but we have no surplus although Shibe Park in Philadelphia is ours.

Fans Come Back.

"And those fans who have made possible our owning Shibe Park have come back. They like our young, hustling team. It was said they would blacklist us if we sold some of our players and at the start it appeared they were going to, but now since they have seen that we have a team which is trying every minute they have come back until our crowds equal those we had last year.

"You know Philadelphia has not recovered as yet from the depression. It used to be that we had many business men who would come out to see our team once or twice a week but they can't do that now. Some of our biggest firms in Philadelphia are working only part time and their employes cannot give up a day's wage to go to the ball game.

"Just as I said at the Penn Athletic Club recently, we are not seeking sympathy. We know that times are hard for everybody and we do not expect people to make undúe sacrifices for the benefit of the Athletics. But we just thought if we could hold on long enough, there would come a year when we would have another great ball team and it would not be necessary for us to sell our stars to keep going.

"I have no doubt but if we were able to play night baseball we would profit tremendously, But I am not for night baseball. My partners are against it, so is the American League, so I won't say I want it although I know it would be to our advantage under existing conditions."

About that time a stranger walked into the conversation and told Mack that he was from Boston and he would rather see the team playing ball that Connie had under his direction now than the stars sold by Connie to Boston.

"Well you see," Mack said, turning to his hearers, "that's the answer. It is very gratifying to hear things like that. We have a ball club which will lose a lot of ball games. We are just five or ten per cent below what we should be for a pennant contending team. We will give them a run for their money but we will lose many games by one run.

Promising Youngsters.

"Still we have a number of promising youngsters I hope will develop into stars. Take this young Peters, a third baseman. You know what he did to the Browns when they were last in Philadelphia. Why, I put him in the game when Higgins was hurt and he did so well I had a hard time getting Higgins back into the lineup.

"Our pitching is not what it should be but we have young men I hope will come along. Take Ross, who is to start this afternoon's game, I have hopes for him. (Of course Ross had a bad afternoon walking the first three men, Bottomley hitting a triple, passing the next man, then being yanked.) Also I like a young pitcher named Bullock who has not pitched a game for us as yet. He joined us directly from Millsaps College.

"True, all these youngsters are question marks. I had four pitchers last spring I would have bet my life on. None of them came through. But that's the only way you can get players today, develop them yourself. It is seldom you can buy stars, but I am looking forward to another great team!"

And then the bell rang, warning Connie that the game was to start and the veteran leader turned to his bench to direct the play of his men as he has done for more than 50 years and his listeners all hoped that he would again see the day he would have a championship team.

Papa and Mamma Zivic Didn't Care Much for Boxing Until The Money Began to Roll In

Picture, if you can, a home with five sons of assorted sizes and ages, all of them boxers. Such was the nice, quiet atmosphere in which Papa and Mamma Zivic of Pittsburgh have to live.

It all started more than 10 years ago, when the two eldest sons, Jack and Pete, began boxing. Their parents did what they could to dissuade them, even to the point of burning a couple of pairs of gloves, but the boys sold newspapers to buy some more, and finally the old folks gave in.

And they liked it even better when Jack began coming home with purses of the kind which boxers got in the swollen era of boxing—$5000 for this fight, $7500 for that—until he had amassed gross earnings of nearly $250,000. Not that he kept it, what with one thing or another whittling it away until now he is working on a State job. But it was good while it lasted.

Youngsters Grow Up.

Finally, when Jack and Pete hung up their gloves the Zivic parents thought they would have some peace and quiet, until they noticed the same signs of restlessness stirring in the two youngsters, Fritzie and Eddie, and again they had to resign themselves to seeing two more sons professional boxers. In between, Joe had done a little boxing, but he liked baseball better and forsook the ring for the diamond. Now he confines his interest in boxing to refereeing.

But Fritzie and Eddie are at it, and are here now to complete their training for two bouts on Friday's card at the Auditorium. Fritzie is a welterweight. He is to box Billy Celebron, Sammy Mandell's Rockford (Ill.) 147-pound hope, while Eddie, a lightweight, boxes Joe Ghnouly.

The younger Zivics have not found the financial going so profitable as did their older brothers, and although each has had more than 50 professional fights, neither has received a purse of more than $500. But they are going along hoping, as all boxers do, that they will reach the top and be in demand for the big money.

Meanwhile Fritzie has put his savings to good use, establishing a peanut business in Pittsburgh. He has a roaster working for him who, he says, is good and he has built up a line of trade for his wares.

Fritzie fought Celebrom before, dropping a decision in Chicago but he still thinks he can win over Billy and hopes to prove it Friday.

Eddie recently fought Wesley Ramey and gave that fancy boxer a trimming in Ramey's home town of Grand Rapids, Mich. Eddie has been stopped once in his career.

Loses to Champion.

"But it took a world champion to do it" he said proudly. "I lost on a technical knockout to Canzoneri in Pittsburgh last year. He dropped me twice with powerful left hooks. But I got up, knew what I was doing and getting along all right but Tony kept asking the referee to stop it and finally the official, thinking he was doing me a favor I guess, waved me to my corner."

The Zivics, American born of Czechoslovakian parents, started their amateur careers as lightweights and reached the final of the same tournament. They were in the ring and the crowd gasped as the fans thought they were going to see two brothers fight for a title but an A. A. U. official said such a bout would be against the spirit of the organization. They flipped a coin for the crown and Eddie won. But since they turned professional Fritz, the younger, has grown out of the 135-pound division while Eddie has stayed in it.

BOLD VENTURE TO OPPOSE CHIEF RIVALS IN THE BELMONT

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Two game horses hooked up in the stretch, when the Preakness was run Saturday, and the camera shows what a desperate time Bold Venture had in getting his nose ahead of Granville's. First one and then the other forged ahead in the stretch drive, but the photographic record shows that Bold Venture was slowly increasing his lead, as the pair flashed past the finish post.

BREVITY AND GRANVILLE TO GO TO POST IN RACE, JUNE 6

Red Rain Is Also Scheduled to Seek Honors in $50,000 Event — Schwartz's Ace Proves Real Champion.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Bold Venture, winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, has proved his right to wear the three-year-old crown.

Like a true champion, the chestnut flyer from Morton L. Schwartz's New York stable has shown he can run in front or come from behind and still be on top at the judges' stand. He was a front-running colt when he beat J. E. Widener's Brevity in the Derby. In the Preakness, he came from the rear with a dramatic stretch drive to whip William Woodward's Granville by a nose.

Bold Venture's margins of victory were so narrow, however, that there are many who still declare Brevity would have won the Derby had he not been roughed at the start, or that Granville would have taken the Preakness if Jimy Stout had saved his mount on the back stretch and not gone wide at the final turn.

Will Meet in Belmont.

Regardless of the arguments, the outcome of the famous Kentucky and Maryland classics turned the $50,000 Belmont Stakes into a natural, which should draw one of the largest crowds in New York turf history to Belmont Park, June 6. The mile and one-half race will find three colts, plus C. V. Whitney's Red Rain, matching strides for the first time this year. Granville was in the Derby, but never got a chance after tossing his rider at the start.

Already a member of that select group of five horses which have won both the Derby and Preakness, Bold Venture will be seeking an even more coveted honor in the Belmont. Only three horses, Sir Barton, Gallant Fox and Omaha, have won the American "triple." Burgoo King was successful in the Derby and Preakness, but did not start in the Belmont.

The added distance of the Belmont should make little difference to either of the big three, for each has indicated he can go the route. Bold Venture ran the one and one-quarter miles of the Derby in the third fastest time in history, 2:03 3-5, Brevity closing strong. In the Preakness the Schwartz colt stepped the mile and three-sixteenth in 1:58, a time beaten only by Omaha and High Quest, and was going strong at the end, with Granville only a nod away.

Wins by Narrow Margin.

Unlike the Derby, when he took the lead on the back stretch, Bold Venture did not stick his nose in front in the Preakness until an eighth of a mile from home. Then he found a stubborn rival in Granville, which took command again by the narrowest of margins, only to give way under Bold Venture's relentless drive in the final strides. The finish was so close that the judges called for an official photograph before posting the numbers.

Granville had clear sailing from the start, while Bold Venture, slow to get under way, had only three horses beat when he passed the judges' stand the first time and then dropped back to last as his jockey, George Woolf, sought racing room.

A quarter of a mile after the start, Granville took the lead from E. R. Bradley's Bow and Arrow and raced down the back stretch with a length margin over Mrs. Silas B. Mason's He Did, W. M. Jeffords' Jean Bart and Mrs. Marion du Pont Sommerville's Transporter, with Bold Venture gradually improving his position.

Rounding the final turn, the Derby winner turned on the steam and when Stout took Granville wide at the turn, Woolf sent Bold Venture up fast to hook up in the ding-dong battle that started at the eighth pole and did not end until the final stride. Jean Bart was third, eight lengths back, and a head in front of Transporter.

11 MATCHES DECIDED IN TRIPLE A EVENT

Eleven matches have been completed in the first round of the annual Triple A Club handicap tennis tournament. The remaining matches in the opening round will be completed this week, weather permitting.

Carl Burst, veteran Triple A member, became eligible for the second round by defeating L. A. Jaquith, 6—3, 6—3, yesterday. H. F. Boettler also advanced at the expense of Carl Angel, while Ed Senturia was forced to a 6—4, 8—6 battle before downing Dr. D. Stutsman.

When the first round has been completed the winners will be redrawn for second-round matches. This plan will be followed throughout the tournament until the final round, when the two remaining players will fight it out for first honors.

Joyce Portnoy, former Washington University star, won the singles honors last year. He defeated Charles McMillin, former Cleveland High star, in the final round.

Louis' Punching Power Not Due to One Asset; He Has Everything, Says Harvey

By Damon Runyon.

(Copyright, 1936.)

NEW YORK, May 18.—Charley Harvey sums up the secret of Joe Louis' punching power in a few words.

Charley Harvey says:

"It isn't a matter of one thing. He's got everything!"

Now Charley Harvey probably knows as much about fighters and fighting as any man alive. He would undoubtedly prefer that we speak of them as boxers, and of their game as boxing, because Charley Harvey regards the manly art as strictly a science, and not the crude pursuit that synonyms of combat might suggest.

Charley Harvey has always been a profound admirer of scientific boxers, which is not surprising because he has been associated with some of the most scientific men the game has ever produced, notably Jim Driscoll of England. Many old-timers assert that Driscoll was the cleverest man that ever wore boxing gloves.

He was one of quite a number of English fighters that Harvey imported to this country during a managerial career that has covered many years. Ted Kid Lewis, who won the welterweight championship of the world, was a protege of Harvey's, though Lewis reached his peak in this country, and had more of the American style of fighting than the English.

The Natural Equipment.

"Louis' natural source of puncning power is his rear shoulder muscles," says Harvey. "They are superbly developed. They are loose, and strong. Now then, add to this natural source, Lewis' boxing inteligence, his co-ordination, his sense of timing, his accuracy, his balance, and you've got the answer—EVERYTHING. That's the secret of his punching power—EVERYTHING.

"To me," Charley Harvey continues, "the beauty of Louis is his superb balance when he is punching. Most fighters go off balance when they fire a punch, but Louis has mastered the art of always keeping in balance. I love to see that in a fighter. It's a rare asset."

Charley Harvey thinks Louis is in a class with Driscoll as a boxer, which is very high praise. Of course they cannot be compared as punchers, even proportionately. But Charley doesn't rate puching ability without boxing skill very high, anyway, and, as a matter of fact, he would probably rather sit back and watch Louis merely box an opponent 10 rounds than knock him out in a couple of heats. Charley admires good boxing that much.

Still, he has also had some fellows under his management who were more strictly fighters than boxers that he admired. One of them was Owen Moran, a little English featherweight, who was a great ring performer years back. He fought the best we had on this side, and never failed to give a good account of himself.

No Camouflage to Charley.

Harvey is a blunt, outspoken chap in his judgment of fighters. His honesty is proverbial in fistic circles throughout the land, and it extends to his opinions. So when he talks of Louis, you can bet that what he says is what he thinks, and isn't said merely because it is what others are saying.

Some years ago an amateur lightweight was creating a tremendous furore in amateur bouts in New York. He was a handsome kid, clever, and a puncher, and the folks were saying that he would rival the then champion, Benny Leonard.

One day the kid went to Harvey, and said he wanted to turn professional, and asked Harvey to manage him. At that time, every professional manager in town was trying to cast a lasso over the youth's pro career.

"You've got a job somewhere, haven't you?" asked Charley.

"Yes, a pretty good job, too," replied the boy.

"Stick to it," advised the old manager. "I don't think you should turn pro, and if you do, I don't want to handle you."

"Why?" asked the youngster.

"Well," Charley said, "I don't think you'll make a good professional boxer. To be brutally frank with you, son, I don't think you've got sufficient courage for the pro game."

Blackburn Deserves Credit.

The youngster found another manager who wasn't so critical, and while he fought for some time as a pro he never got anywhere for the very reason that Charley had suggested—lack of courage.

"Yes," Charley Harvey says, "I've seen 'em come, and I've seen 'em go, but I'll admit this Louis comes closest to being the perfect heavyweight that I have ever seen. He is beautiful to watch in the ring. He gives you so much. Of course Jack Blackburn is entitled to a world of credit for developing him, but he had sheer pugilistic genius to mould and shape. He had those shoulder muscles to begin with, and Louis' intelligence.

"Yes, sir, the boy has EVERYTHING."

"And there you have the secret of his punching power that seems to be troubling you."

(Tom O'Rourke, patriarch of pugilistica, tells Damon Runyon, in the next article, that the secret of Joe Louis' punching power may be the caliber of the Louis opponents.)

FELDKAMP NINE TURNS TRIPLE PLAY IN MUNY LEAGUE BATTLE

There wasn't a single shutout victory in the Municipal Baseball Association's program of games played yesterday, as the sluggers dominated most of the games. That no-shutout record was made despite the fact that Emmett Elz, pitcher of the Club Buffet, kept the Virginia A. C. from getting a hit as his teammates were winning, 8—2, in a five-inning game. Elz was wild, however, and walks and errors enabled the Virgina A. C. to score in the first and fourth innings.

The heaviest hitting and run-scoring came in the Community League, with the Lon's nine getting 28 hits off four Ivanhoe pitchers for a 26—16 victory. Ivanhoe batters made 14 hits off two Lon's pitchers.

The Gebkens, last year's champions, rallied in the ninth to score four runs and send their game with the Schaefer-Lafayette team into an extra-inning, but lost out in the tenth, 12—10, in a South Side League contest.

A triple play was made by the Feldkamps in the North Side League as they beat the Freund nine, 11—5. It came in the seventh inning. First Baseman Schmidt took a line drive from Fossell, stepped on first to double Straith and tossed to Diebel for the third out.

A 10-inning victory for St. Raymond in the South Side Sodality League over Holy Trinity, 4—3, put St. Agatha and St. John Nepomuk into a tie for first place, Holy Trinity having previously been tied for the lead. St. Agatha beat St. Vincent, 9—2, and St. John Nepomuk won by the same score from St. Joseph. St. Raymond scored all four of its runs in the last two innings.

WRAY'S COLUMN

52,000 persons present on one occasion.

Set an Eastern record for a single day's handle in the mutuels, with something like three-quarters of a million.

Averaged $300,000 daily handle so far this season, a figure which if maintained for 50 racing days during the year would give it a mutuel turnover of better than $15,000,000.

You don't need any more than the above to realize that if the facts are as represented in various news reports, this track is not merely a gold mine; it is a Bonanza.

And yet its kind-hearted owners now want to sell this new El Dorado to the public. If we didn't know better, we'd think there was a legislative move on to kill racing in Rhode Island.

Too deep for us.

Bookies and Old-age Pension.

HANDBOOKS, illegal in almost every state and closed up tighter than a drum in Chicago and other large population centers, may become whiter than snow, in Michigan.

Voters there next fall will bave an opportunity to ballot on a plan to license handbooks at $1500 annually, the proceeds to go to the old-age pension fund.

Our local experience has been that some of the small time handbookies would themselves be glad to get their names on the pension rolls, long before old age overtakes them. Handbooking has ceased to be the profitable game that it once was.

Whatever disposition may be made of the fee, the bookies seem to deserve recognition. It appears inconsistent for any state to declare it illegal for a man to handle racing bets, paid off on mutuel odds, when the same state legalizes mutuel betting.

Might as well recognize the bookies and put a little more money in the state treasury, since that is the state's sole interest in whitewashing race track betting.

Riverside to Open Again.

YES we have no legal racing in Missouri. But Riverside Park, near Kansas City, will soon open its spring meeting, with plenty of betting.

Ask Tom and Bill.

The situation is not new. We understand it has even been mentioned to officials. But the only reply seems to have been an aggrieved look such as could come only from those who have been grievously misunderstood.

Missouri almost had race track betting legalized, at the last legislative meeting. The bill got as far as Gov. Park, and there it got the works.

So, it's yes, we have no race track betting, but still we have Riverside Park. It's very confusing. But profitable.

Ask Tom. Ask Bill.

MIDGET AUTO RACING TIME TRIALS TO BE HELD IN AFTERNOON

Time trials for tomorrow night's program of midget auto racing at Edward Walsh Memorial Stadium will be held in the afternoon instead of the evening, according to an announcement from Promoter Earl Reflow.

This new system has been devised to speed up the program and also to give drivers a chance to repair any mechanical difficulties which may develop during the trials.

St. Louis drivers have been advised to have their cars at the reconditioned stadium track at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon for the trials, and Reflow has also notified out-of-town entrants of the change in plans.

Democrats Softball League.

The Fourth Ward defeated the Eighth Ward, 6-4, in the feature of the games played in the Young Democrats' Softball League yesterday morning. In other games, Eighteenth Ward won from Fifth, 2-1; Twenty-sixth beat Twenty-eighth, 5-1, and Twenty-secenth scored in the last inning for a 6-5 victory over First.

STAGS DEFEAT MOUNT VERNON BY 14-3 SCORE

The Stags of Belleville won their third straight victory in the Missouri-Illinois Trolley Baseball League yesterday, defeating the Mount Vernon team, 14-3, aided by seven errors by Mount Vernon, all of which figured in the run scoring. In the other games, the Hufschmidts of East St. Louis kept its percentage tie with the Stags by defeating Vandalia, 4-1, for its second consecutive victory, and the Edgemont A. C. won from the Alpen Braus of Granite City, 4-2.

Cookson, right fielder for the Stags, shared honors with Glen Barthleme, pitcher. Cookson had a double, triple and two singles in five times at bat, while Barthleme allowed 10 hits but kept them scattered to gain his second victory.

Oberkramer pitched his first game for the Hufschmidts and held Vandalia to three hits and had 11 strikeouts. Clark, hurling for Vandalia, matched Oberkramer's pitching until the seventh inning when he weakened. Three hits and two errors enabled the Hufschmidts to score three runs.

Edgemont dedicated its new park in the game with the Alpen Braus and celebrated by winning its first game of the season in league play. A four-run attack in the seventh inning was Edgemont's only rally, but it was enough for victory with Eichelberger pitching a five-hit game.

HIGH SCHOOLS CLOSE ATHLETIC PROGRAM WITH MEET FRIDAY

Since Blewett's 18-5 victory over Roosevelt last Saturday enabled it to win the baseball championship, only one more athletic event remains in the scholastic year before the City High School League closes its records for the 1935-36 season. The interscholastic track and field championships at the Public Schools stadium, Friday afternoon will mark the end of athletic competition until next September.

Blewett's championship was a popular one. The school is the junior member of the League, having become a senior high school in 1934, and winning its first major title is sure to help the athletic spirit at the West End school. Moreover, Blewett's victory broke the monopoly McKinley had on championships, which had reached five, including a tie for the football championship in 1934.

McCarron the Star.

Outstanding in Blewett's drive to the top were two persons—C. Don Frankenberger, the coach, and Bob McCarron, the pitcher. After losing the first game, Frankenberger found the winning combination. This he changed, however, in the third game when he called on McCarron for relief duty and Bob responded nobly. Blewett defeated McKinley, 16 to 15, in that game.

After the McKinley game, Frankenberger realized that his best pitching bet was McCarron, so the third baseman earned a starting job as hurler for the Blewett nine. With McCarron carrying the burden, Blewett walloped Beaumont, Central and Roosevelt to win the championship. In so doing, the pennant-winners accumulated 58 runs, an average of 9.67 per game, while the opposition combed the Blewett pitchers for 39 runs, an average of 6.50 per game.

Following Blewett in the standings are Cleveland and Beaumont, tied for second place with four victories and two defeats. Roosevelt and McKinley finished tied for fourth with three and three, Central was sixth with two and four, while Soldan stayed in the cellar with no victories and six losses.

Big Crowd Expected.

FINAL OLYMPIC BOXING TRIALS WEDNESDAY IN CHICAGO RING

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 18.—They'll battle for Olympic glory in the main bouts at the Chicago Stadium Wednesday night, but in five preliminary skirmishes the main idea will be revenge.

Sixteen amateur boxers meet in eight principal bouts to determine the personnel of the United States Olympic boxing team. Before the select 16 do battle, however, 10 youths who fell by the wayside in the long series of eliminations to the Olympic final will meet in bouts which promise to be as full of action as the main goes.

Frank Nelson of Davenport, Ia., stole the show by whipping Milton Shivers of Detroit in the preliminary fights here several weeks ago. Nelson lost to Jimmy Clark of Jamestown, N. Y., however, and while he can't meet Shivers, who has a fractured hand, he will attempt to prove he should be in the finals by beating Nate Bolden of Chicago. Bolden beat Nelson in a Golden Gloves meet last winter.

Patsy Urso, Detroit, meets William Joyce of Gary, Ind., in another warm-up. Verne Patterson of Chicago will meet the lad who beat him, Tommy Pallatin of South Bend, Ind., who in turn was eliminated. Steve Rodak, Chicago, tangles with Sammy Dalton of Boston, the Olympic flyweight alternate, while a fifth bout is yet to be arranged between boys who made excellent showings but lost out in the final test.

Eight alternates, already named, and the finalists, will weigh in Wednesday afternoon. The Olympic card follows:

Heavyweight—Arthur Oliver, Detroit, vs. Willis Johnson, Detroit.

CLUB TENNIS TOURNEY TO BEGIN THIS WEEK

The Maplewood-Richmond Heights Tennis Club, organized last summer, is preparing for an active season this year.. The first event on the program, a closed tournament for members only, will open Saturday afternoon on the courts of the West Richmond Heights School. The events will be men's singles and doubles and junior singles. A women's singles tournament is also likely to be held later this month.

In addition to holding a number of tournaments the club will soon organize teams of men and women players for the purpose of competing in intercity matches. Matches with Fulton, Mo., Flora, Ill., and Centralia, Ill., are being lined up by club officials. The matches will be played on Saturdays and Sundays.

More Tennis Courts Needed To Encourage Junior Stars In Opinion of Mrs. Moody

By Helen Wills Moody

(Copyright, 1936.)

There are some very good junior tennis players in the United States, but there ought to be more. When one considers how popular tennis is, it is surprising that there aren't more young people who are really outstanding. How can junior players be encouraged?

The first thing needed is a greater number of tennis courts, available to every boy or girl wanting to play. Every city should have public courts in its parks — not just a few, but dozens of them, and several courts in every square or plaza. Vines can be trained over the wire backstops, and the courts can be made decorative as well as useful. What better monument could one leave behind to make one's name gratefully remembered, than a bequest of tennis courts to the young.

MRS. MOODY

Another means of encouraging junior players, would be the setting up of centers of tennis where some older person who likes young people and is interested in their games, would be the guiding influence. It should be some person who does it because he enjoys doing it, not because he has to do it. There is a great difference between these two points of view, and children quickly sense it. For example at the Golden Gate Park, in San Francisco, there used to be Dr. Marvin, who loved tennis and found great pleasure in encouraging the boys in their games. He would watch them play. They would come to him with questions. Among the boys he encouraged in those days was Maurice McLoughlin, who became the famous and spectacular "comet" in tennis. Also William Johnston, one of the best players tennis has ever known, and Clarence "Peck" Griffin, who was among the best doubles players in the world and who won many titles. There were a dozen other players, at the time, who were nearly as good as these though—and all were under the guidance of Dr. Marvin. Proof enough of what can be done in developing good players by a person who is genuinely interested in young people and in sport, and who is able to share his enthusiasm with them.

Much Depends on Teachers.

William C. Fuller, at the Berkeley Tennis Club, who is the head of the Junior Committee, has had the same sort of influence upon the many young players with whom he has come into contact. There must be others like them in this country.

Of course a leader must know tennis and, at the same time, have that particular kind of enthusiasm that appeals to the young. I remember distinctly, from my own younger days, how boring I thought some people were who sought to instruct me in the game. I thought them tiresome, and closed my ears stubbornly to any of their advice, good or bad. My listening depended upon whether or not I liked and trusted the person.

Success in teaching a game depends first of all upon the older person's ability to "put himself across" with the young, who are more discerning and more exacting than we sometimes realize.

Young players can learn a tremendous lot by seeing the best players in action, if they are fortunate enough to live near the courts where they practice or if they can see them in tournaments. But this is often not possible. The next best thing is to see movies—especially the slow-motion kind, where the swing of the racquet is followed by dots on the film to show exactly what the path of the racquet has been. Every tennis club should have movies like this, so that the juniors, as well as the older players, can see them and learn what correct form is. Also movies of this sort will be very helpful for schools where athletics include tennis. And they could be used, as well, in recreational centers, and in connection with public playgrounds where there are courts.

Ideal Game for Youngsters.

I may seem over-enthusiastic about the value of tennis for children and young people—but it may readily be understood in view of the fact that I so adore the game. I have tried it out, one might say, thoroughly, and can say with no hesitation that it is an ideal sport for young people. Its mechanics are simple, and it can easily be understood. It does not conflict with school work or studies—provided that school hours do not last too late in the afternoon. To my mind, late school hours are a great mistake. Children can learn just as much, and be more healthy, if their day is divided into two parts—the morning for study, the afternoon for play and sport. Health is just as important as learning.

Tennis is rapidly growing in popularity, and is an international sport, at the same time, it is democratic. Everybody can afford to play. All that is needed is more public courts. It offers wonderful exercise to all ages, and to the school child a healthful activity which is beneficial both mentally, morally and physically.

MacKenzie Wins Race.

By the Associated Press.

LANGHORNE, Pa., May 18.—George (Doc) MacKenzie, Eastern A. A. A. champion, won the 50-mile feature of the opening automobile racing program on the dirt mile track at Langhorne Automobile Speedway yesterday. Nearly 40,000 persons saw MacKenzie drive the 50 miles at an average of 91½ miles an hour, taking the grind in 32 minutes 40 seconds, finishing in front of Harry Angeloni, New Brunswick, N. J.

NAVY OARSMEN AWARDED HIGH 1936 RANKING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Watch out for Navy at Poughkeepsie was the word in rowing circles today as all but a few of the major Eastern crews settled down to a month of intensive preparation for the four-mile championship grind on the Hudson.

Pennsylvania still ranked high among the Eastern eights and Cornell loomed as a distinct threat both at Poughkeepsie and in the Olympic trials to follow at Princeton in July, but the midshipmen held top rank with their "sprint" season completed.

Sailors Out-Row Penn.

Navy continuing to show the improvement that has marked every race since the middies were beaten by Columbia to start the season, outstroked the previously invincible Penn eight, along with Harvard and M. I. T. to win the Adams Cup Regatta on the Charles Saturday.

Cornell, beaten previously by Navy, staged an even more sensational comeback on Lake Carnegie at Princeton. Not only whipping the Tigers and Yale's Bulldogs but eclipsing the course record Navy had set the week before.

The big red varsity still has one more short distance test before settling down to prepare for the four-mile grind. The Ithacans encounter Syracuse and Harvard in their annual spring day regatta on Lake Cayuga next Saturday but are not expected to find much trouble.

In addition to the Ithica regatta, three of the "younger" rowing colleges, Rutgers, Manhattan and Marietta of Ohio, are slated to race at Philadelphia this week along with Penn's third varsity.

Philadelphia also will be the scene of the windup of the sprint season a week later when the 150-pound college eights have their day in the American Henley.

Cornell's husky oarsmen set a dizzy pace Saturday over the mile and three-quarters Lake Carnegie course to lead Princeton by a half length and sweep the three races in which they were entered. The fourth race saw the Yale 150-pounders regain the Goldthwait Cup by beating Harvard and Princeton in another record-breaking performance. Cornell won both Jayvee and freshman events with Princeton second in both.

Records Are Broken.

The varsity times were: Cornell, 9:01 3-5; Princeton, 9:04 2-5; and Yale, 9:11 1-5; all three under Navy's mark of 9:12 3-5. The Eli 150-pounders traversed the Henley route in 7:01.2 with Harvard and Princeton close behind, all faster than the old course record of 7:11 3-5, made by Princeton.

New England weather again gave the varsities trouble at Cambridge although the water was smooth when Harvard took the freshman race and Navy the junior varsity. The start was delayed an hour by the weather.

Major League Crowds Grow As 1935 Champions Falter

In spite of the fact that the 1935 pennant winners are having trouble remaining in the first division—or perhaps for that very reason—major league baseball has suddenly become a paying proposition.

At least four banner crowds turned out yesterday to see teams that are contending for the top places and one clash between a pair that are far down in the standing but usually provide plenty of entertainment.

At Polo Grounds.

A crowd of 28,303 cash customers filed into the Polo Grounds to see the New York Giants, playing their first Sunday home game of the season, continue their pursuit of the St. Louis Cardinals by trimming Pittsburgh, 8 to 6. The Yankees and Indians, first and third, respectively in the American League, drew more than 27,000 into Cleveland's league park to see the home team take an 8 to 4 drubbing while Boston's popular Red Sox drew some 23,000 fans to watch them edge out Chicago's White Sox, 8 to 7.

The erratic Dodgers and Reds attracted some 17,000 Brooklyn customers for an odd contest which the Reds won, 3 to 2, although they got only four hits against Brooklyn's 12. A home run by Lee Handley and a single by the same rookie, preceded by a walk and followed by Kiki Cuyler's blow, turned the trick for Cincinnati.

The Cubs and Bees, rivals for fourth place in the National League, were rained out.

The Giants, hanging up their seventh straight victory, got off to a fast start against Ralph Birkofer, lost their lead in the fourth and finally won out when they belted Guy Bush for three runs in the fifth.

Yanks Beat Allen.

Johnny Allen, the former New York flinger, again failed to subdue the Yankees. They pounded him to cover in the sixth. Lefty Gomez also failed to finish, but his hit drove in the winning run.

After dropping a 6-1 lead, the Red Sox won out over Chicago when Bill Werber socked a homer in the eighth and Rick Ferrell repeated in the ninth. The Tigers also won in the final inning, scoring twice on a double, two passes by Ed Linke and a couple of flies.

IRISH HURLING TEAM TAKES TWO MATCHES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Ireland's invading hurling and Gaelic football teams trounced a pair of picked New York outfits yesterday before a crowd of 50,000 at the Yankee Stadium.

The Limerick hurling team defeated New York, 16 to 9, and the Cavan Gaelic football team won, 10 to 5, from the selected local stars.

The Cavan booters were more accurate and gained a 5-3 lead in the first half, although they had to face the wind and sun. They made a runaway in the second half.

The younger Limerick hurlers had it all over the New York team, leading, 8-4, at the end of the first half.

Shows 1,000,000 Were Dispossessed by Cotton Reduction Program, Ousted Official Says.

KEPT EVEN FROM CONGRESSMEN

Publication by Newspaper Made on Eve of Strike of Tenants in Three Arkansas Counties.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Confirmation of the authenticity of published passages of the suppressed AAA report on the status of share-croppers and tenants in the South under the cotton reduction program was obtained today from a former AAA official, discharged because he sponsored the cause of dispossessed share-croppers.

The report, as published by a Washington newspaper with no indication of how it had been obtained, was made a year ago by experts of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in the Department of Agriculture. Before it was released it was submitted to the AAA for final approval and there underwent drastic revision by this New Deal agency.

The original report showed that nearly 1,000,000 tenants and share-croppers were dispossessed by the AAA cotton reduction program. Virtually all of this material was struck out of the final report as made public by AAA some weeks ago. The final report merely referred in a general way to the possibility that tenants and share-croppers had been dispossessed but that the extent to which this had occurred was not "definitely" known.

Kept Even From Congress.

Although the discharged AAA official, who was ousted at the time of the AAA purge when more than a half dozen aids were removed, declined to permit the use of his name, he said that he had had an opportunity to read the suppressed report. He verified the accuracy of suppressed passages published yesterday.

So carefully was the original report "buried" by AAA officialdom that even members of Congress were denied access to it. Three or four attempts were made by various Senators, among them liberals on both the Democratic and Republican side, to obtain a copy of the report. They were told that it was in incomplete form, consisting chiefly of a preliminary survey, and that it would be made available to them in final form.

Publication of suppressed sections of the report comes on the eve of a strike by tenants and sharecroppers in three Arkansas counties. It was in these three counties, Cross, Crittenden and St. Francis, that numerous evictions recently occurred, largely, it is said, as a result of the formation of the Share-croppers Union, which includes both white and Negro members.

Appeals Reported Unheeded.

According to Gardner Jackson, chairman of the committee on rural social planning, which has helped in the formation of the union, New Deal agencies in Washington have repeatedly promised relief to the evicted families, but representatives of the agencies in the field have refused assistance to these dispossessed tenants and "croppers" despite "orders" from Washington. Jackson recently sent out an appeal for funds for these families, declaring that if private aid was not immediately forthcoming many would starve.

In the three counties in Arkansas, according to Jackson, "choppers," who do the work of weeding, are paid slightly less than 75 cents for a 10-hour day. They are striking for $1.50 a day. Tractor drivers are paid slightly less than $1 for a 10-hour day and they are striking for $2.50.

Strike Set for Today.

A vote taken by the union showed an overwhelming majority in favor of a strike. Despite repeated violence and threats of violence the union has made remarkable headway, according to Jackson, who said that he was waiting word of progress of the strike which was to have begun this morning.

Senator Gore (Dem.) of Oklahoma was so determined to see the report that he put in a resolution demanding it. This resolution was passed Jan. 30. A copy of the report was taken to Gore by special messenger, he was allowed to read it and it was then immediately returned to the office of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

'Not Suppressed, But Edited.'

Alfred D. Stedman, director of the information division of AAA said today that the report was not "sup-

Haig Lacked Faith in U. S. Army, Just Before Armistice, Diary Shows

British Commander, Biographer Writes, Also Decided on Peace Because French Morale Was Destroyed.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 18. — Utter exhaustion of the French armies, coupled with the condition of America's "ill equipped, half trained" forces, says a new biography, led Britain's wartime commander-in chief, Sir Douglas Haig, to decide on peace with the Germans three weeks before the Armistice was signed, Nov. 11, 1918.

The biography is a study of Haig written by Duff Cooper, British Secretary for War.

"The French and American armies are not capable of making a serious offensive now," Haig wrote in his diary on Oct. 19, 1918, the book reveals. "The British alone might bring the enemy to his knees."

In a conference at 10 Downing street, with Lloyd George, Lord Milner and Bonar Law, Haig outlined his reasons for ending the war despite the fact that the Hindenburg line had been shattered and the Germans were in flight.

"The German Army," he said, "is capable of retiring to its own frontier, and holding that line if there should be any attempt to touch the honor of the German people and make them fight with the courage of despair.

Allied Army Situation.

"The situation of the Allied armies is as follows:

"French army: Worn out, and has not been really fighting latterly. It has been freely said that the 'war is over' and 'we don't wish to lose our lives now that peace is in sight.'

"American Army: Is not yet organized. It is ill equipped, half trained, with insufficient supply services. Experienced officers and N. C. O.'s are lacking.

"British Army: Was never more efficient than it is today. But it has fought hard, and it lacks reinforcements. With diminishing effectives, morale is bound to suffer."

Haig's whole attitude toward the American expeditionary force, as pointed out by Cooper, eventually stirred the resentment of General Pershing—so much so that Haig hurriedly dispatched a note of explanation.

Explanation to Pershing.

"Dear General Pershing," he wrote the American commander, "I have just heard that some of the remarks which I made at the conference at Senlis on Saturday, in French, were misinterpreted so as to give an idea of 'failure' to the work of the American army since it came to France. I write at once to correct this most incorrect impression of what I said.

"I yield to no one in my admiration for the grand fighting qualities of the American soldier and the manner in which you and your staff have overcome the greatest difficulties during the past year."

Pershing replied, courteously but briefly, that he was "more than satisfied with the official correction which you have made."

POPE TO LEAVE THE VATICAN TO DEDICATE CHURCH PALACE

Going to Rome Saturday to Open Headquarters of Administrative Bodies.

By the Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, May 18.—Pope Pius XI will leave the Vatican next Saturday to inaugurate in Rome the largest palace ever built by a Pope. This is the Palace of the Congregations, or administrative bodies of the church. It is in the Trastevere quarter of Rome, one of the poorest sections of the city.

The Pope's short trip to Trastevere will be the first time he has left the Vatican to go to Rome proper since October, 1933, when he visited the Church of St. Mary Major. He passed through Rome the last two summers on his way to the papal summer villa of Castel Gandolfo.

The Pope will be met by the Cardinals acting as chairmen of the various congregations and by many of the other Cardinals functioning on these executive committees.

The land on which the huge edifice is built belonged to the Italian Government until it was handed over to the Vatican under the 1929 Lateran treaty. Known as the St. Calixtus Palace, the new executive office building rises five stories, and contains the Congregations of the Council of Rites, of Sacraments, of the Religious and of the Consistorial.

18 SPANISH CAVALRY OFFICERS JAILED FOR INSUBORDINATION

Refused to Move Troops as Ordered; One Killed, 18 Hurt in Zamora Strike.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, May 18.—Eighteen cavalry officers were reported arrested and sent to Guadalajara military prison today for refusing to move their troops. They were in command of the First Cavalry Regiment involved in an incident at Alcala de Henares. Colonels of both regiments were changed.

The officers balked at orders to transfer their unit to Palencia, after they had quarreled with townspeople in a cafe Friday, when the people shouted "Viva Azgana." (Aganza is the new President.) Five or six persons in the cafe row were hurt.

A general strike, unrelated to the military incident, today paralyzed the normal life of all Zamora province. It followed disorders in the town of Asparíegos yesterday, in which one person was killed and 18 were wounded. Assault guard reinforcements were rushed to Zamora.

Young "red guards," belonging to Socialistic and Communistic groups, began searching passersby for arms but the Governor of the province forbade such action.

Anti-Jewish Paper Suspends.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 18.—The violent anti-Jewish weekly journal, Judenkenner, ceased publication today. Authorities said the journal recently exceeded bounds of propriety and decency in its anti-Semetic attacks and was considered a menace to the Olympic games.

DR. NAHUM SOKOLOW, ZIONIST LEADER DIES

President of Palestine Agency for Four Years—Writer on Jewish Philosophy.

LONDON, May 18. — (Palcor Agency.)—Dr. Nahum Sokolow, 75 years old, outstanding Jewish leader, died here last night.

He was honorary president of the World Zionist organization and the Jewish Agency for Palestine. He had been president of these two international bodies from 1931 to 1935.

Regarded as the dean of Hebrew literature and also as one of the foremost diplomatists and scholars of the Jewish people in modern times, Dr. Sokolow was a principal figure at the Paris peace conference. There he helped to obtain the right for the Jewish people to reestablish the Jewish National Home in Palestine.

In the course of his travels in the interests of the Zionist movement he had conference with the leaders of virtually every nation, including several Presidents of the United States.

One of the founders of the modern Zionist movement, Dr. Sokolow was born in 1861 at Wyzsogrod, near Plock, Poland. Launching upon a literary career in youth, he became editor of Hazefira, a famous Hebrew periodical, in 1884. It was his work during this period in creating a new type of Hebrew newspaper which earned for him the title of "the founder of modern Hebrew journalism."

During his life time he wrote innumerable treatises and volumes on Jewish culture and philosophy, belles-lettres and Zionist problems. His "History of Zionism," a two-volume work, is regarded as a standard authority on the subject.

Specializing in philosophy and modern languages, Dr. Sokolow contributed to the leading European journals in various languages. He could read and write in Hebrew, Yiddish, English, Polish, Russian, French, Greek, Italian, German and others. His versatility could be seen in the fact that he wrote a geography, a primer of self-instruction in English and biography of Spinoza.

Dr. Sokolow visited St. Louis in 1932 in connection with the campaign for reconstruction funds for Palestine.

1318 FEDERAL CREDIT UNIONS

Groups Being Formed at Rate of 100 a Month.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Farm Credit Administration officials said today that Federal credit unions—co-operative saving and lending organizations—were being chartered at the rate of more than 100 a month. A total of 1318 Federal unions with a membership of nearly 200,000 had been organized on May 1 since the passage of the Credit Union Act in June, 1934.

This act authorizes the FCA to help employes of businesses and Government to organize themselves. The FCA has several field men to help start the organizations. It operates as a general supervisor and audits the books. The employes who belong to the unions run them, officials said, and there is no Federal money involved.

SOCIALIST JUNTA ESTABLISHED TO GOVERN BOLIVIA

Army Forces President Tejada Sorzano to Resign, Calls Chaco Hero, Col. Toro, to Rule.

By the Associated Press.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, May 18.—A provisional junta of soldiers and Socialists ruled Bolivia today after forcing out the civilian government of President Jose Luis Tejada Sorzano.

The new council called Col. David Toro, hero of the war with Paraguay, back from the Gran Chaco to become President, forced suspension of a general strike movement and proclaimed as its objective to "orient the nation toward a socialistic state by prudent, gradual means, without convulsions."

Advices from the interior indicated no disorders. Bolivia has a population of nearly 3,000,000.

The overturn of the Government was the second to follow the long Chaco war. Three months ago the Paraguayan army ousted President Eusebio Ayala of Paraguay and installed Col. Rafael Franco as chief executive.

Col. German Busch, acting chief of the Bolivian army general staff, led the uprising.

So sudden was the movement that President Tejada Sorzano worked at his desk until late Saturday night, left the palace without noticing the slightest indication of a plot and announced he would return to his office this morning. The revolt came into the open when a sub-Lieutenant went to the palace at 4 a. m. yesterday and notified the chief of the guard of the army's intention to take power. The guards' chief, Capt. Aguirre, was arrested.

President Resigns.

Col. Busch then went at the head of a delegation of militarists and Socialists to the home of the President. He demanded Tejada Sorzano's resignation and received it promptly. The deposed President went into retirement in his home.

Heading the provisional junta until Col. Toro's return, Col. Busch issued a manifesto announcing creation of the new Government and calling for "reconstruction of the country at a moment of intense public agitation, lack of confidence, financial and economic exhaustion and other grave dangers which threaten national ruin."

Army spokesmen maintained the people were opposed to elections called for May 31 and a general strike which started Friday night imperiled Bolivia's economic stability.

The labor federation, in sympathy with the new Government, suspended the strike movement. An early settlement of the walkout apparently was in prospect.

The new Government announced its desire to prepare the people for a "free election" later. Col. Toro was the candidate of the National Socialist party of war veterans and students.

All Treaties Recognized.

The new Foreign Minister, Enrique Baldivieso, Socialist leader, said, "The new Government recognizes all pacts with all nations and hopes to maintain friendly relations with all countries."

Other Ministers named were: Lieutenant-Colonel Luis Cuenca, Communications; Lieutenant-Colonel Oscar Moscoso, Agriculture; Lieutenant-Colonel Julia Viera, War; Gabriel Gosalvez, Justice; Pedro Silveti Arce, Labor, and Fernando Campero Alvarez, Finance.

The term of office of Tejada Sorzano, who came to the presidency by another coup in 1934, would have expired in August. He encountered opposition for his continuance of a state of war, even after the end of the 1932-35 Chaco conflict.

Post-war discontent also resulted in virtual destruction of the old Civilian Republican and Liberal parties and formation of the Socialist organization, which called for military dictatorship.

The President-designate, Col. Toro, said recently: "I sympathize with this plan only in case anarchy threatens, the President approves and the most important parties ask it," but apparently he swung later to support of a temporary dictatorship.

COPENHAGEN, May 18.—Grace Moore, American opera and motion picture star, was honored by King Christian of Denmark last night after singing "La Boheme" at the Royal Danish Opera. After the third act the monarch received Miss Moore to the royal box and pinned on her a gold medal of the Order of "Ingenio et Arti," the country's highest artistic decoration.

48,000 RAIL MEN IN MEXICO CALLED ON STRIKE TONIGHT

President Cordenas Makes Eleventh Hour Effort to Avert it—Tourists Flocking to U. S.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO, D. F., May 18.—President Lazardo Gardenas intervened directly at the eleventh hour late today in an effort to avert the strike of 48,000 railway employes called for tonight. He visited his office in the presidential palace today for the first time since undergoing an operation for appendicitis, and called officials of the company and representtaives of the workers into conference at the palace. The President's intervention prevented a strike on the national railways last year and resulted in a labor contract which is still in effect.

Tourists Hurry to U. S.

American tourists crowded northbound trains in anticipation of the strike.

The exocus, making necessary extra cars on all outgoing trains, started despite a general opinion that the projected strike would be adjudged illegal and workers would have 24 hours to return to their jobs.

This opinion was strengthened after the National Revolutionary (Government) party newspaper El Nacional, in its leading editorial, declared the strike call was "entirely illegal," economically unjustified and an outgrowth of "irresponsible" labor leadership. No Government official would acknowledge that the editorial represented the administration's views. Troops were ordered held in barracks ready for possible guard duty.

Possible Procedure.

If the strike, which would tie up all except emergency traffic over 9300 miles of rails out of the capital, started as scheduled at 5 p. m., one well-informed source predicted the administration would follow this procedure:

Declare formally, through the Department of Labor, that the railways are public services, that the strike hits at the entire national economy and therefore is illegal.

Order workers back within 24 hours.

Authorize the management, if the

GUATEMALA GIVES REASONS FOR RESIGNING FROM LEAGUE

Says Organiaztion Failed to Achieve Its High Ideals That Prevailed When It Was Organized.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, May 18.—The Governmet of Guatemala, in a cable explaining its decision to resign from the League of Nations, said yesterday the League had failed to achieve its high ideals.

Dr. Joseph A. C. Avenol, secretary-general of the League, received a message from the Government stating that the withdrawal was "due to economic reasons imposed by a reorganization of public finances and the fact events have demonstrated the impossibility of realizing the high ideals entertained at the time when the League was founded."

The cable added that Guatemala did not desire to evade payment of dues, and said the action was not connected with current world politics. This was considered a denial of assertions by League officials that Italy had influenced the decision of the Latin-American country.

French Seize Nazi Storm Trooper.

SARREGUEMINES, France, May 18.—A German storm trooper, pursuing a citizen of Saarbruecken, unwittingly went over the French border near here yesterday and was promptly arrested, with his quarry, by French frontier police. Both Germans were held for examination.

SOLDIERS ENFORCING CURFEW IN JERUSALEM

Killing of Three Jews Results in Order to Keep Streets Clear at Night.

By the Associated Press.

JERUSALEM, May 18.—Soldiers and police guarded all roads of this city today, searching suspects for arms and enforcing a curfew order to prevent a spread of Arab anti-Jewish disorders.

The order, calling for streets to be cleared of traffic and pedestrians between the hours of 8 p. m. and 6 a. m., was issued after three Jews were killed and two wounded Saturday night by an Arab who fired into a crowd.

The Palcor News Agency reported the Government might declare a State of emergency, placing Jerusalem under virtual martial law.

Tense Strike Situation.

The city faced an increasingly tense strike situation, Arabs deciding to continue their civil disobedience strike throughout Palestine in protest against Jewish emigration.

Sir Arthur Wauchope, high commissioner for Palestine, conferred with Government officials yesterday on measures to avert further disorders, and the executive Jewish agency met in a night-long session.

A Christian immigrant from Austria, Karl Brietinger, was killed in a street today by an Arab, the Palcor Agency reported. The Arab escaped.

Ten thousand Jews jammed the space around the Hadassah Hospital here as Isaac Ben Zvi, president of the Jewish National Council, delivered a funeral oration for the three Jews killed Saturday night.

"We shall not allow England to yield to murder," was the keynote of the speech.

"We Jews came to Palestine to build up the country and we have been met by a campaign of destruction and bloodshed," Zvi asserted. "We shall not allow ourselves to be placed at the mercy of a mob that spills our blood. The world must ask England how long this situation will be allowed to go on. We demand that these conditions be terminated forthwith."

Formal Reply to Arabs.

The Palestine Government gave formal reply to the Arab National Council's demand that Jewish immigration be stopped by announcing in the Official Gazette, said Palcor, that a labor immigration schedule of 4500 Jews has been allotted

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Hogs and Suits of Clothes.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, in his New York speech, made this suggestive comparison: "Before the war, a Nebraska farmer could take a 200-pound hog to market and buy a suit of clothes made in New York. But in 1932, to get that same suit of clothes, he had to take two and a half hogs to market."

If the garment workers had reduced the prices of the suits 60 per cent—to the one-hog level—there would have been no glut in either the hog or the clothing market. The pre-war parity between farm and factory prices would have been re-established. This would have also re-established the pre-war parity between the necessities of life and that half of the population known as consumers. The pre-war level would create a demand for two and a half times as many suits, and the garment workers could not supply the demand without largely increasing their working force.

Higher wages do not increase the workers' standard of living. From "Real Wages in the United States," by Prof. Douglass, we get this information: In 1890, factory wages averaged $11.94 weekly; in 1920, when Mr. Roosevelt said the depression began, the average was $33.81. As wages increased, the cost of living increased at the same rate; so that in 1920, with nearly three times the number of dollars, the purchasing power was 3 per cent less than in 1890. At no time between the two dates did the purchasing power of a week's wages exceed that of the basic date.

William Green recently stated that wages increased 6 per cent last year, while purchasing power increased only one-tenth of 1 per cent. The past 40 years tell the same story.

Prior to 1900, the price of hogs played around 4 and 5 cents a pound, and consumption of meat averaged 217 pounds per capita. After the turn of the century, hog prices began an increase that carried them above 10 cents. As prices increased, consumption decreased, and, according to the Yearbook of the Department of Agriculture for 1921, consumption dropped from 215.9 pounds per capita in 1900 to 183.8 pounds in 1920. Meat consumption was 147 pounds in 1930, and is now close to 120, under present prices. The farmers are selling about half as many hogs at 10 cents a pound as they would sell at 5 cents.

Practically all prices have doubled in the last 40 years, and consumption has decreased to take care of the increased prices. Instead of eating three square meals daily, people eat one meal and two lunches. Half as much cloth dresses the women, half as much leather makes the footwear, three-room houses have taken the place of 10- and 15-room residences, half as many books are sold.

Chicagoan Favors F. D. R.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I DO not think the millions who put Roosevelt in in 1932 mean to turn him out in 1936 and put back in power those who brought on the panic. Today, people are reading more than ever before about good and bad governments; more than ever they are listening, and weighing what the opposition is saying.

As presently constituted, G. O. P. leadership does not have the confidence of the majority of the voters, and that majority was over 7,000,000 in 1932. The Cleveland convention may divide. We know just where Hoover stands, whether he is a candidate or not. He always did, and always will, favor the vested interests. If Senator Borah is nominated, it will mean a split. If Landon succeeds in getting the nomination, the headlines on the day after election will say that Gov. Landon also ran. Vandenberg does not fit in or suit the vested interests. He has assisted the President at times, and that is poison to Mellon and his crowd. So, without issues, and short of great men, it is laughable to think they can go out and defeat the man the people honestly love.

Human Behavior—Best and Worst.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE year 1936 has already provided history with illustrations of the best and the worst of human behavior. When three men were entombed 141 feet below the surface of an old mine in Nova Scotia, scores of men risked their lives and no expense or trouble was spared in the endeavor to save those precious lives at the earliest possible moment. And the entire civilized world awaited with solicitude the daily progress of that rescue. In this there was exemplified the very best in present-day civilization.

The other picture is that of the war of conquest of a helpless people directed by Italy's dictator, Mussolini, who has sacrificed thousands of lives of Italian youths and Ethiopian defenders of their country with the frightful suffering which comes with the modern use of poison gas and bombing of villages.

And it is only a few years since American Babbitts, returning from Italy after having obsequiously paid their respects to this dictator, told the members of our luncheon clubs that this was just the kind of ruler that America needed in order to straighten out our economic problem. Mussolini hates the democratic form of government. Dictators invariably do.

TRADE TREATY WITH FRANCE.

Revival of international trade is viewed by most economic authorities as one of the requirements for emergence of the nations from the world depression. Secretary Hull has been directing his efforts to this end by means of a series of reciprocal trade treaties, the thirteenth of which has just been signed with France, this country's fifth best customer abroad. If one may judge by the example of its predecessors, notably the treaty with Canada, the results will be beneficial to both nations in the increased employment that flows from increased trade.

France was one of the leaders in the widespread movement to enact higher tariff barriers against the United States after passage of the Hawley-Smoot Tariff Act in 1930. By means of a restrictive quota system, the French Government materially reduced imports from America. The results of the ensuing trade war were nothing short of disastrous to both countries. A few figures will show why the State Department described the situation as "an unprecedented decline in the value of the trade between the countries."

This country's exports to France totaled $265,591,895 in 1929. In 1930, the figure was $223,960,243. In 1931, after the Hawley-Smoot law had taken effect, it fell almost 50 per cent, to $121,819,903. For 1934, exports were $115,936,674.

France sold to the United States $171,485,155 worth of goods in 1929, and $113,774,639 worth in 1930. Its exports, too, showed a precipitous drop in 1931, to $79,174,226. In 1934, they had fallen to $61,037,255.

These shrinkages, of course, were caused in part by the depression, but the tariff war is widely viewed as one cause of the depression's unparalleled severity.

By mutual reductions in restrictions, Mr. Hull envisages restoration of at least part of the lost trade. The markets of France are opened to larger quantities of American fruits, tobacco, motion pictures, some types of automobiles, farm machinery and tractors, radios, refrigerating apparatus—all items in which this country's producers excel. In return, American markets are opened to products on which France has won renown: various kinds of wine, brandy, lace, silks, cheese, candied fruits and other so-called "luxury" items.

As invariably occurs, there will be protests on both sides that the other country has "out-traded" its own representatives. Special interests do not bear in mind that the welfare of the whole country supersedes their own. Increased mass buying power, resulting in greater production, invariably swells the demand for all classes of products.

An instance in Federal revenue may be cited. The increased duty on French champagnes actually brought a reduction in revenue. When the rate went up from 67 to 80 cents a bottle, imports dropped to half the former total.

Critics of the trade agreements have cited the advantage held by foreign nations with devalued currencies. This factor is taken into consideration in the pact with France, through a provision making possible modification or termination of the agreement on 30 days' notice should the relative value of the two countries' currencies change so greatly as to injure the commerce of either.

Only by actual test, of course, can the value of any particular trade agreement be estimated. All signs point, however, to a resumption of trade activities with France that will be mutually beneficial.

MORALLY DISQUALIFIED.

The Board of Election Commissioners has notified State Representative Fontana of the First St. Louis District, now on parole as one of the participants in the political shooting scrape in the City Hall last fall, that he is disqualified from seeking renomination. A question has been raised as to the legality of this ruling under the laws of Missouri. There can be no question that Fontana has morally disqualified himself and should be beaten if he is permitted to run.

"SMEARING" COL. KNOX.

The result of the Illinois presidential primary was succinctly stated by Senator Borah. "I carried Illinois," he said. "Col. Knox carried Chicago." Subsequently, Mr. Knox's headquarters claimed the delegates instructed for Mr. Borah on the ground that the instructions were not binding, that at most they indicated a preference which the delegates were at liberty to ignore.

When he recovered from the shock, Mr. Borah wrote Mr. Knox, asking him if he approved the reported attitude of his campaign managers. Mr. Knox replied that all he knew about it was what he had seen in the papers, and promised to look into the matter when he got home. No further answer to Mr. Borah's question has been made.

Since then, an examination of the Chicago tally has assertedly revealed that some precincts voted solidly for Mr. Knox and in at least two precincts the number of votes cast exceeded the registration. So far as we know, no charge has been made reflecting upon Mr. Knox, unless Mr. Borah's question could be so construed. But Mr. Knox finally has taken cognizance of the developments, which he characterizes "as an effort to smear me."

That will, we believe, strike the average citizen as a rather shallow defense. The Senator from Idaho doubtless has the mortal quota of faults, but "smearing" an opponent never has been a Borah practice.

OUR FADING MESSIAHS.

America's self-appointed messiahs are not doing so well. In Oregon, supposedly a Gibraltar of the Townsendites, Senator McNary swamped two ardent followers of the Long Beach doctor in the senatorial primary. At Washington, the inflationary Frazier-Lemke bill, for which Father Coughlin had been whooping it up, was badly defeated. An analysis of the vote indicates that the radio priest influenced about 20 of the 142 votes for the bill, the remainder being cast by Representatives with rural constituencies who probably would have favored the bill without any urging.

From all indications, Dr. Townsend and his fantastic pension plan are through. Dissension among the Townsend plan leaders was followed by a congressional probe which revealed the huge profits being reaped by insiders from the nickels and dimes contributed by the aged. This revelation proved far more effective, apparently, in disillusioning Townsend followers than the many able opinions of economists that the plan was unworkable. In any event, the Townsend movement has faded to a whisper.

Perhaps it is too early to count out Father Coughlin, for he still has a very large following of persons who are impressed with his ideas on the money problem. These ideas are gaining no headway in Congress, however, which, prior to the adverse vote on the Frazier-Lemke bill, ditched the Patman plan for paying the bonus, which Father Coughlin advocated.

As for the third great messianic movement which has arisen since the depression, Share-the-Wealth, it died with its founder, Huey Long.

It is well that the country's common sense is asserting itself and that trick solutions for the depression are no longer commanding great prestige. Depressions are never licked by prestidigitation.

IF HISTORY REPEATS.

The passing of Mrs. Lydia Ann Graham of Brushy Run, W. Va., a few days ago, has not received the notice which is its due. She was a pensioner of the War of 1812 and her death, at the age of 99, leaves two others who are still getting money from the Federal Government as a result of that conflict of a century and a quarter ago—one widow and one daughter of a veteran.

Mrs. Graham was only 32 when she became the wife of Isaac Graham, a veteran. At the time of their marriage, he was 79. He died at the age of 91, or when she was 44. Thus, she drew a pension for 55 years. We should be the last to take so much as a rose leaf from Mrs. Graham's romance, but we cannot refrain from wondering whether a similar case will grow out of the World War. If so, and if the mathematics of the New York Sun can be relied upon, the war of 1917-18 will be drawing on the public treasury until 2041.

CONQUEST INSPIRES CONQUEST.

The failure of other Powers to prevent Japan's seizure of Manchuria was undoubtedly one of the factors that inspired Mussolini to undertake his conquest of Ethiopia. Now that Italy apparently is successful in its aggression, Japan in turn is encouraged to take another step against China, as shown in the landing of several thousand troops at Tientsin. One conquest thus inspires another, and the end is not yet.

Japan's several explanations—that the move is to fight Communism, to pacify the region and to protect Japanese nationals—fail to conceal the long-run objective, the subjugation of all North China. Aside from Chinese protests, the only official criticism thus far is the contention by foreign diplomats that Japan is entitled to bring in only protective forces under the terms of the Boxer protocol, concluded after the Chinese uprising of 1900. This seems somewhat far-fetched, since it has hitherto had no effect whatever to point out that Japan has violated the Nine-Power Treaty, the Kellogg Pact and the League Covenant.

The conquering nations just now are having their will with only slight obstructions to overcome. And each time an expedition of one is successful, other conquerors receive aid and comfort therefrom. To so low a state has the rule of international law fallen.

RELIEF AND JOB REFUSALS.

The Federal Emergency Relief Administration has conducted a series of studies in communities where rumors of job refusals by persons on relief were especially common. It now reports the evidence as showing that the seriousness of the job-refusal problem has been greatly exaggerated.

In five communities—Baltimore, Washington, D. C., Buffalo, Memphis and Alleghany County, Va.—investigators found only 20 instances of unjustified refusal of jobs among 603 cases calling for investigation. This means about 3 per cent among all job refusals, but a much smaller fraction if based on all those on relief in the communities investigated. With the exception of these 20, all refusals were found to have been due to physical disability, responsibility for small children or invalids, recent employment and the like—all good reasons.

It appears from this investigation that the vast majority of persons on relief are eager to get off and will take almost any kind of employment in order to do so. The communities studied do not, of course, embrace the whole of the Union, but they include Northern and Southern, rural and urban, industrial and agricultural populations, and hence appear to be a fair cross-section of the country.

HANDS ACROSS THE TARIFF WALLS.

Racket Smashers

Better Business Bureaus, now active in 53 cities, are devoted to protecting the public from all manner of swindles; by exchange of information, they head off racketeers who move about the country; many cases of fraud are taken through the courts by organization; citizens are urged to report matters that arouse suspicion.

E. J. Ellison and Frank W. Brock in the Reader's Digest.

IF sharpers and racketeers, like sales managers, maintained large wall maps of their operations in the United States, half a hundred cities would be marked with the red push-pin that means "trouble area." These would be the "Better Business Bureau towns."

If you live in one of these cities, your bureau protects your purse in a hundred ways you never even suspect. Should you become involved in a sharper's scheme, you may, as nearly 300,000 people did last year, take your troubles directly to the bureau. Here a sympathetic and informed listener will see you through the labyrinth.

It will cost you nothing—bureaus are supported by the reputable business houses of your community who are members. Swindles which might amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars never happen, because your bureau has spiked the sharper's guns before he got them fairly into position.

These outposts of public service originated nealy 25 years ago. The "patent-medicine school" of advertising was then in its fullest flower, and business was infested with rackets and bunco schemes that siphoned millions from the channels of legitimate trade into the pockets of crooks.

In 1911, the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World appointed a committee to see what could be done. The result was what is now the National Better Business Bureau, with headquarters in New York City. The function of this body is to combat business abuses that are national in scope.

It was quickly seen that local groups would also be necessary, for each city had its own coterie of racketeers and business chiselers; these could not be effectively dealt with by a single national bureau. And so the first local bureau was formed in Minneapolis. There are now 53 in the United States and Canada.

Although each bureau is an independent project of its own community, all are affiliated through a national association. The files of some of the larger bureaus contain as many as 200,000 entries concerning fraudulent schemes. This information is available to other bureaus and to the public.

Bureaus also maintain shopping staffs, who police the newspaper ads, comparing actual articles with the advertisers' descriptions of them. If an advertised "camel's-hair coat," purchased by a shopper, is found by textile experts to be half cotton, the advertiser must answer. And his answer had better be good, for no reputable newspaper in a bureau town will knowingly publish misleading advertising.

With the exception of an authorized volume on bureau anti-racket work, bureaus never recommend anything. Hence, when you encounter the phrase "recommended by the Better Business Bureau" (racketeers sometimes use it in their literature) you will know at once that something is seriously amiss. Nor can bureaus give legal advice. They can, however, take your part whenever you are victimized by any sort of misrepresentation or fraud, and they can, if you will "investigate before you invest," save you from being victimized in the first place.

The coast-to-coast chain of bureaus presents a combination even the cleverest confidence men find it hard to beat. In some cases, the bureaus gather complete evidence against an offender, then turn it over to the prosecuting authorities and see it through the courts. At this moment, 261 bureau-instigated cases are pending in the United States and Canadian courts. But often the job is handled without troubling these authorities.

A few months ago, a gentleman arrived in San Francisco, representing a "far-flung society to foster and encourage Americanism." His main office, he claimed, was in New York City; branches were opening in all parts of the country. Branch managerships were, incidentally, for sale at $300 each.

On the San Francisco bureau, however, his patriotic fervor was wasted. They telegraphed the New York bureau, verified their conviction that the scheme was a racket, learned that the New York "home office" consisted of a mailing address in a typewriter-cleaning establishment, and that the bald-headed promoter, who sponsored "Americanism" under one alias, put on a toupee and operated a puff-sheet under another. The swindler at once saw the advisability of getting out of San Francisco.

Simultaneously, letters went to 52 bureaus. One of them reached Portland at the same time he did. No sooner had he set up his racket again than the Portland bureau quashed it. In bureau cities, at least, he's through.

Again, in Long Beach, Cal., the bureau lately picked up news of a swindler who was promoting a stock listed on a large Eastern stock exchange. The inter-bureau wing-play again went into action, and in 48 hours this exchange, learning that one of its stocks was being racketized, removed it from the lists. No one will ever know just how much money this move saved over-credulous investors.

Here are a few of the rackets the bureaus have exposed and battled during the past quarter of a century. There have been stock swindles, real estate swindles, insurance swindles and charity swindles; swindles in every conceivable type of merchandise from trucks to teakettles and pajamas, and in all manner of livestock and poultry; in cemeteries, factories, warehouses and boats; in employment, talent of all kinds, lotteries, oil, advertising, gas, steel and gold; there have been hearse-chasers, heir-chasers and spinster-chasers. There have been rackets in religion, philosophy, psychology, medicine, vanity, temperance and intemperance. Each day there are new ones around the corner.

Better Business bureaus urge people to report transactions that have aroused their suspicions. Through tips from private citizens, bureaus acquire much information used as ammunition against rackets. And through their steady pursuit of those who operate "within the law," but outside the bounds of honesty, "bureau towns" enjoy a wide reputation in the underworld as excellent places not to visit.

A Tear for the Trolley Car

From the New York Times.

HARDLY a day passes in New York town without another street car line reeling back into defeat and dissolution and a shiny new fleet of busses lording it in their place. Among a number of things to be said in favor of the conquering busses is the nonchalance, the aplomb, and we might as well go the limit and say the savoir-faire, with which they step into the picture.

Only a few minutes ago, the battered veterans of the rails were clanging and clattering along in the ancient way, and now a sleek, blunt-nosed, gay and green young bus noses up to the curb for its first passenger, as if it had been on the job since McKinley's administration. One cannot help admiring the complete self-confidence with which they step into their heritage. Those young busses must have been reading in the papers that the world belongs to youth.

What becomes of the old cars that are being evicted by the hundreds from the streets of New York? Research is now engaged on many less important and less interesting problems. It might try to find out what happens to a green Eighth avenue car when it dies.

Once upon a time, the technological discards of the metropolis were absorbed by the backward regions. Steam locomotives from the old "L" went to do duty on mine sidings and spurs in Peru, and perhaps Siam. The old horsecars became lunch wagons over the face of America.

Will the trolley cars go the same way? It is a far from unpleasant fate, after a quarter-century of deep sea duty in the Roaring Forties on Broadway, to come to rest in some quiet harbor as Joe's Palace Diner across from the depot somewhere in Indiana.

REPRESENTATIVE JOHN J. McSWAIN, chairman of the House Committee on Military Affairs, and himself an alumnus member of the University of South Carolina chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, tells the following story "with the consent of President Roosevelt himself":

"During an interview with the President about an important phase of legislation, I incidentally referred to the fact that he, Representative Lister Hill of Alabama and I were all wearing Phi Beta Kappa keys, accepted the world over as a mark of scholarship. The President said that he had an interesting story about the key.

"He said that at a certain conference of Governors, while he was Governor of New York, he and two other Governors were seated in a friendly chat, and one of them made mention of the fact that each of the three Governors was wearing a Phi Beta Kappa key. The President said he immediately remarked that his key was honorary and not awarded for academic attainments. Thereupon, each of the other Governors confessed that his key was also honorary, and there was a laugh all around."

Today and Tomorrow

By WALTER LIPPMANN

The 1936 Platforms: II. Republican

IN discussing the writing of a Democratic platform for 1936, it was suggested here the other day that the main difficulty is to reconcile Mr. Roosevelt's personal conversion to the kind of collectivism exemplified by NRA with (1) the contrary principles of the 1932 platform, (2) the unconstitutionality of Mr. Roosevelt's new principles, (3) the political impracticability of these new principles.

The Republicans also have to write a platform. And they also have some reconciling to do.

It may be taken for granted that the Republicans will wish to take a stand against the whole conception of an economy in which production, prices, wages, are regulated by Government, particularly by the central government. It is certain that they will wish to argue that the great expenditures and the bureaucratic expansion can be stopped by a revival of spontaneous private enterprise which will absorb the unemployed. It is also certain, as Gov. Landon has already indicated, that they will accept the other Roosevelt reforms in principle, namely, the regulation of the stock market and of the issuing of stocks and bonds, the banking measures, and social insurance.

Their political problem is to convince the people that, in opposing Mr. Roosevelt's collectivism and the continuance of his inflationary expenditures, they will not throw the country back to the conditions which preceded and led up to 1929. For however much the people may be disposed to dislike many aspects of the New Deal, they like much less the cruel deflation which they suffered just before the New Deal.

It will be necessary, therefore, in the first instance for the Republicans to formulate a monetary policy which shows that they too have learned something from the experience of the past 10 years. They ought to make it evident that they are at least as enlightened and progressive about the nature of the post-war gold standard and of monetary policy as the Bank of England and J. P. Morgan, in short, that they now appreciate that a sound currency is one which permits business to expand to full employment and, after that point is reached, is neither deflationary nor inflationary.

Unless they do this, if they come forward with a monetary policy based on what they were taught by Mark Hanna in 1896, they can talk till the cows come home about reviving business; they will create throughout the country a paralyzing fear that deflation is to be resumed.

They can criticise the administration for counteracting its own measures by frightening the investor and discouraging enterprise. They can point to the potential danger of a credit inflation. But what they cannot do, and still stand forth as the restorers of prosperity, is to talk as if a fixed international gold value for the dollar, rather than good business and full employment, is the criterion of a sound currency and prudent finance.

When they come to take their stand as the defenders of what they will call the American system as against the collectivist ideal, they also have to break with their own recent past. The fact is that th 12 years of Republican rule up to 1932 covered the period of the greatest concentration of corporate power, the fastest growth toward monopoly, the most drastic destruction of competition, the largest amount of price-fixing, in the whole history of the Republic. Now anyone who wishes to oppose a state collectivism, like the NRA or AAA must be prepared to oppose private monopoly and to demand the restoration of competition.

For a truly competitive system may be able to regulate itself. But a system of private monopolies will not regulate itself. If the country is to go back to the American economy, and that is what a growing multitude wish, it must restore the competition which monopoly and concentrated corporate power have destroyed.

Among the Republicans, there are many who see this clearly and sincerely wish to take this line. Men seemingly as far apart as Senator Borah and Ogden Mills have seen the handwriting on the wall, have realized that it is no use attacking collectivism unless there is a genuine move to restore competition. Gov. Landon, in his radio interview the other day, was particularly enlightened and reassuring on this point when he said that government must intervene i business, but that it must intervene to restore fair competition and not as, under NRA, to multiply and perpetuate private monopolies.

But this view is contrary to the record of the Republican party under Harding, Coolidge and Hoover. The record is one of tolerance and encouragement of private monopoly. Moreover, there is a vast amount of Republican propaganda about "liberty" which appears to mean only the liberty of monopolists to practice monopoly. That is not what liberty means in the American political tradition, and the Republicans will have to make that clear in their platform if they wish to avoid the charge that their return to power means a return to the order of things which ended in the depression.

They will have to make it clear that they do not propose to let monopolistic business alone, that their quarrel with the New Deal is that the Government has fostered monopoly and entrenched it, that it is competitive business which they mean not to meddle with, that what they are aiming at is an economy which does not have to be regulated from Washington because it regulates itself by free competition in the open market.

The skeleton in the Democratic closet is Mr. Roosevelt's personal affection for a directed collectivist order. But such an order is the necessary result of accepting as inevitable the development of private monopoly and the destruction of competition.

The skeleton in the Republican closet is their long association with the development of those private monopolies, their long failure to preserve competition. Therefore, if they wish to attack Mr. Roosevelt as a collectivist, they must break with their own recent past and become the exponents of a free economy ruled by competitive markets.

Reciprocal Trade Agreements, Such as That With France, Are Putting Our Tariff Structure Out of Existence and Violating the Constitution.

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON.

NEW YORK, May 18.

WHEN such a reciprocal "trade agreement" as the one with France becomes effective, the tariff reductions made in favor of France or any particular item are instantly and automatically available to any other country with which we have a "most favored nation treaty."

We trade it out with France and say, "If you will let more of our asparagus come to France, we will reduce our tariff rates on your lace."

That sounds fair enough. Each side gives something and each side takes something. But if we reduce our tariff on French lace, instantly Belgium or Italy has a right, under their "unconditional most favored nation treaties," to the same reduced tariff rate on their lace and they haven't given us anything at all. It is reciprocity between us and France, but it is just a horizontal reduction in our tariff wall with no offsetting advantage as to other countries.

It is easy to imagine that by the time we have made similar agreements with all countries, each covering a different range of commodities, we will have traded our present statutory tariff structure out of existence.

The effort to restore world trade is in the right direction, but when we give something to any nation we ought to get something from that nation. We are not here using our trading opportunities to the best advantage.

And we are not acting lawfully. The tariff is a revenue measure. The Constitution requires such legislation to originate in the House of Representatives. These trades are treaties. The Constitution requires that treaties be ratified by a two-thirds vote of the Senate. We dodge that by calling them "agreements."

There is no blinking the fact that what is going on here is a progressively broadening amendment to the tariff acts, by treaty and by the executive alone, without reference to either the House or the Senate and in violation of the Constitution of the United States.

DR. FISHBEIN ON EVILS OF GROUP MEDICINE

In St. Louis Talk He Cites Danger of Political Control —Points to Germany.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Journal, said last night Americans soon would have to choose between the individual type of medical practice they have known and the newer standardized systems of medicine which have developed under social security programs.

He spoke at the final session of the spring Liberal Forum program at the Y. M. H. A.

Dr. Fishbein said he thought the medical profession would have the co-operation of the people of this country "who have learned medicine as it is given to them today is the highest type of medicine that exists anywhere in the world." He cited the experience of Germany with health insurance as an example of the evils of group medicine.

"When the modern German gets his pay envelope," Dr. Fishbein said, "he finds the Government has deducted from his salary a sum for the veterans, for persons on relief, sickness insurance, unemployment insurance, for burial and, if a married man, for maternity wards in hospitals.

"The saddest thing about the German system, which has become in a way a system of state medicine, is the demonstration of what the politicians can do to a medical profession and to sickness care. The head of the German sickness insurance system has suddenly taken an immense interest not in scientific medicine, but in what we call the "naturo-pathic" system of practice, whose adherents believe the real life for the human being is to get away from all this scientific medicine, particularly as many of the great discoveries were developed by men who were Jewish or related to work sponsored by Jewish funds.

"That is happening to a medical system owned and controlled by the state and taken over by politicians who don't happen to be of the right kind. Knowing what our democratic government is, any of you can imagine what would happen if a President were elected who thinks that the chiropractic practice is the only real system."

FAKE CHECKS FOR CATTLE, NEW METHOD OF RUSTLERS

Illinois Authorities Warn Farmers Against Buyers Unknown to Them.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 18.—Cattle rustlers, met by increasing vigilance in rural Illinois, have turned to swindling, according to the State Bureau of Criminal Investigation. The procedure of the thieves is to represent themselves as independent cattle buyers, write a bad check and hurry away with the cattle.

"The farmers are accustomed to doing business with independent buyers and accept the cheks without investigating," it is explained by Chief T. P. Sullivan. "The next thing, the police find the cattle truck abandoned and the farmer is the victim of a several hundred dollar swindle. Search for a new marking system for cattle, Sullivan said, was aimed at halting thefts by checking the buyer of the stolen beef. The bureau head said branding was not successful because the thieves skin the cattle, leaving the identification of the stock behind with the skin.

"What we need is something similar to the method of tatooing chickens under the wing," he said. "Then when we find a meat market where that part is cut away from several birds we have a lead, which if followed usualy results in an arrest for selling stolen property."

Roosevelt Kitchen Catches Fancy of Delinquent Girls

And National Training School Gets Its First Gas Stove Following Their Visit as Guests of President's Wife.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18. — The White House party which gave 60 delinquent girls a personal acquaintance with Mrs. Franklin D. Rosevelt was the topic yesterday of their Sunday school lesson.

They were back at the bare old chapel of the Federally-owned National Training School for Girls, outfitted in old-fashioned school desks, where they held their dress rehearsals for the big doings at the White House yesterday.

But the scarred 40-year-old piano had had its first tuning and varnishing of a decade and the whole atmosphere was newly keyed to starting over again.

"Remember, one of the most important women in the world has singled each of you out for her gracious attention," their superintendent, Dr. Carrie Weaver Smith, told them.

Life Put to Test in Kitchen.

"There were no strings tied to it, except the hope that the impression on you would be worth while. I shall expect your behavior hereafter to show that it has been worth while. You all behaved beautifully on the White House lawn, but life isn't all on the White House lawn. It has its kitchens and laundries, and it is there that it is put to the test."

After the girls had gone back to their routine, Dr. Smith said:

"They are not very articulate; they don't think out very original things, but there is a new spirit among them. That was the big event of their lives up to this time, and it isn't just going to be an event that happened yesterday and is forever gone today."

She told how the engravings of the White House, given as souvenirs to each girl, "by Mrs. Roosevelt's own hand," would continue to have meaning in the weeks to come.

Mostly Interested in Kitchen.

"There is no decent place for the girls to hang the engravings, but we have decided that each girl can frame her own picture and we will hang them as soon as the place is renovated. The girls can write on them that Mrs. Roosevelt gave them to them and can keep them to hand down to their children and grandchildren."

Dr. Smith revealed that Mrs. Roosevelt's interest had been thoroughly aroused and would be continued.

"Before I left the White House," she said, "Mrs. Roosevelt told me if we would arrange a track meet, she would be glad to come out to witness it and to give a prize."

The superintendent reported the stainless kitchen cabinets and model stove in the White House kitchen appealed to the girls more than the glittering chandeliers and gold piano in the East Room. She added the training school was to receive its first gas stove this week.

SUPPRESSED AAA REPORT ABOUT SHARE-CROPPERS

pressed." It was merely, he said, a preliminary study, subject to "editing," such as might be done to any report.

"There are in the published report many facts damaging to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration," Stedman said. "It was not edited with any intention of putting the administration in a favorable light but from the point of view of a long term policy."

Details of the original report showing how share-croppers were dispossessed did not come as a surprise to those familiar with the way in which the AAA has been administered. It has been plain almost from the beginning that the committee administering the AAA program in the field was dominated by planters and landlords who gave scant consideration to the position of the share-cropper and the tenant. Complaints sent to Washington about how the tenant classes had been treated were referred to local committees and often brought severe reprisals against those who had made the complaints.

Recent Publication.

Confirmation of all this was contained in a slim volume, "The Collapse of Cotton Tenancy," published several months ago. One of the authors of this book was Dr. W. W. Alexander, Assistant Administrator of the Resettlement Administration. The other co-authors were Charles S. Johnson and Edwin R. Embree, director of the Rosanwald Foundation.

The findings of Dr. Alexander and his co-authors confirm the suppressed passages of the AAA report, showing the great extent to which dependent tenants have been put off their holdings. As a result of the reduction of cotton acreage, and how landlords have retained benefits intended for share-croppers under the AAA contract. The Alexander book goes even further than the economists of the Department of Agriculture, reaching the conclusion that what the AAA has done, essentially, is to accentuate all the worst tendencies of the plantation system.

Reply by AAA Employe.

Extremely sensitive to criticism of this sort, the AAA has relied upon a study, "Cotton and the AAA," published by the Brookings Institution to refute these charges. The author of this book, Henry I. Richards, declares that rumors of the dispossession of hundreds of thousands of tenants are "alarmist" and not substantiated by facts. Richards is on the payroll of the AAA as senior agricultural economist.

The Federal Emergency Relief Administration made a study of the plight of tenants and share-croppers in Alabama which belied all the claims of the AAA that dependent tenant classes were participating in AAA benefits. This study showed that in a large percentage of cases the AAA benefit payments intended for tenants and share-cropper go instead to the landlords.

Many tenants, it was shown, were compelled to turn over their payments to their landlords. Although the FERA report was not suppressed, it was not given out to the press and only a few persons have ever seen it. An account of this report was published in the Post-Dispatch last November.

Censored Paragraph.

While the final report published by the AAA shows that the share-croppers and tenants had lower incomes under the 1934 program of AAA than they received under the 1933 program, the report adds: "This relative cash income disadvantage of croppers in 1934 may have been offset by the benefits derived from the privilege of using the rented acres for the production of food and feed crops."

The paragraph struck out by the AAA censors read:

"A considerable proportion of the surplus labor on cotton farms was utilized to good advantage in the production of farm food and feed, but the amount of time so spent was probably small as compared with the labor that would have been used on the acreage usually planted to cotton. The hiring of wage labor, particularly temporary seasonal labor used in hoeing and picking, was curtailed."

MAN CONVICTED UNDER GUN REGISTRATION ACT

U. S. Judge Wham Upholds Law—Jury Votes East St. Louisan Guilty.

Max Sonzinsky, proprietor of a secondhand store at 453 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, today was found guilty by a jury in United States District Judge Wham's court on two counts of an indictment charging him with violation of the Federal Firearms Act of 1934 requiring registration of machine guns, sawed-off shotguns and similar weapons popular with gunmen. A directed verdict of not guilty was ordered in two other counts of the indictment. The defense presented no witnesses and no argument to the jury.

Judge Wham deferred sentencing the defendant pending a motion for a new trial, which his counsel expects to file on Thursday. Maximum punishment is five years in the penitentiary and a $2000 fine on each count.

The jury deliberated less than 10 minutes before finding Sonzinsky guilty of selling fierarms without registering as a dealer and paying a $250 fee, and possession of an unregistered sawed-off shotgun. Judge Wham upheld the constitutionaltiy of the act under which the case was prosecuted in overruling a demurrer.

Attorney's Contention.

Sonzinsky, a former convict, was indicted May 6 after the arrest of three men who were held on State burglary warrants and Federal warrants charging them with possession of an unregistered firearm. The demurrer of his attorney contended the firearms act was unconstitutional as an invasion of State's right.

Defense counsel also argued that the act "while pretending to be a revenue measure" actually "dealt with a police matter properly in the province of the states." The $300 registration fee, he said, was confiscatory.

Counsel said that no Court of Appeals had passed on the constitionality of the Firearms Act and that the only decision in a district court had been that of Judge Halstead L. Ritter of Florida, recently impeached, convicted and ousted for "general misbehavior," who upheld it.

Judge Wham passed on the demurrer before District Attorney Arthur Roe had had an opportunity to discuss it.

Tells How He Bought Gun.

Wesley Le Grand, 463 North Twenty-fifth street, testified that he bought the shotgun with a 15-inch barrel from Sonzinsky for $10. At the time, he said, Sonzinsky told him the gun had belonged to James Hickey, Shelton gangster, who was shot to death by deputy sheriffs Dec. 8, 1934, in a house in Signall Hill, East St. Louis suburb. Deputies said Hickey at the time was plotting to kidnap G. Locke Tarlton, East St. Louis contractor.

Another Government witness was John Dowling, 813 Bond avenue, who said he was with Le Grand when the gun was purchased and that Sonzinsky had showed them two or three others of the same type.

The Government rested after testimony of officials that Sonzinsky was not a registered firearms dealer.

Sonzinsky pleaded guilty of conspiracy to steal interstate freight shipments in 1928 and was sentenced to a three-year prison term by Judge Wham.

Answering Parliament Member, He Welcomes "At All Times" Economic Co-operation.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 18.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today he was unaware of any steps which could be taken usefully to bring the United States into the League of Nations.

His statement was in reply to a question by Ellis Smith, Labor party member of the House, who asked if anything was being done to induce the United States to join the Geneva body.

Smith also asked Eden if he would ask the United States to open negotiations with a view to reaching an agreement on economic cooperation.

Eden answered: "If Mr. Smith has in mind the removal of obstructions to international trade, that is the constant aim of his majesty's government.

"It will at all times welcome the co-operation of the United States Government as well as of other Governments in this sphere, but I am most doubtful as to whether the opening of general negotiations would facilitate the attainment of the object Mr. Smith has in mind."

'WORST SMASH IN HISTORY IF RAILROADS DON'T MEND WAYS'

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—A prediction that the "worst smash in the history of the country" would result unless railroads improve their management was made before a Senate committee today by John B. Campbell, former Interstate Commerce Commissioner.

Campbell, formerly of Spokane, Wash., appeared before an Interstate Commerce subcommittee in opposition to the Pettengill bill. The bill would repeal that section of the Interstate Commerce Act which prohibits railroads from charging less for a long haul than for a shorter haul over the same route in the same direction.

Campbell declared financial difficulties encountered by the railroads were not due to the long-and-short-haul clause of the Commerce Act, but to poor financing and mismanagement.

He said the railroads got in trouble not because of regulation by the Interstate Commerce Commission, but in spite of it. He said, "If there was a railroad that ever retired a bond out of earnings, I would like to know it."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The Supreme Court agreed today to pass on the constitutionality of PWA loans for publicly owned hydro-electric projects. Arguments will be heard next fall.

The Duke Power Co., which lost in the Court of Appeals, asked for the review. It contended in a petition filed by Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War in the Wilson administration, that the Government was attempting to "coerce privately-owned utilities to reduce their rates."

The purpose of Secretary Ickes, the PWA Administrator, the petition added, "is te establish yardstick regulation of intra-state rates and promote public ownership."

Missouri Public Service Commission Defendant in Action by Interstate Haulers.

A permanent injunction against the Missouri Public Service Commission to prevent regulating or assessing license fees against the trucks of James W. Ward, operating as the J. W. Ward Transfer, contract haulers, was issued today by Circuit Judge Granville Hogan.

Ward, who operates a fleet of trucks between Murphysboro, Ill., and St. Louis, contended he was engaged in interstate commerce under the Federal Motor Vehicle Law of 1935 and was not subject to regulation by the State nor to annual license fees ranging from $25 to $500 a truck. The Commission replied that the Federal Act did not hinder the State in exercise of its police powers, nor in charging fees for maintenance of highways, since Ward's trucks use city streets in reaching their St. Louis terminal.

MEAT PACKERS REPLY TO WALLACE ON TAXES

Open Letter to Senate Finance Comittee Assails "Levy on Unjust Enrichment."

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 18.—The Institute of American Meat Packers took issue yesterday with views it ascribed to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and asserted "any successfull attempt to wrest from the packers" the impounded processing taxes restored to them by the Supreme Court would "immediately force many small firms into bankruptcy."

In an open communication to Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, the institute said: "We respectfully request that, in the interest of accuracy and fair play, the following information concerning the statements made in Secretary Wallace's letter of May 7 be read to the committee:

"Notwithstanding the persistent efforts to make it appear that the proposed 'tax on unjust enrichment,' so-called, is sound and that additional processing taxes on various foods, clothing, and other necessities of life would be desirable, the facts remain that:

"The processing tax on hogs and the use to which it was put in reducing hog production forced a number of pork packers into bankruptcy and brought hundreds of others to the brink of financial ruin.

"Those others were save from bankruptcy by the discontinuance of the tax.

It is the general opinion in the industry that any successful attempt to circumvent the decision of the Supreme Court and wrest away from packers the impounded sums returned to them as a result of the court's decision would immediately force many small firms into bankruptcy and concentrate the packing business into fewer hands."

The communication, signed by William Whitfield Woods, president of the institute, said Wallace's letter to Harrison made it appear that the processing tax program had no part in troubles of small packers. Woods quoted Wallace as saying: "Small packers were bound to have difficulty following the sharp reduction in hog supplies caused by the drouth."

To this the institute head wrote: "The committee should also be informed that falling hog supplies were caused, not only by the drouth, but also by the processing-tax-financed program of reducing hog production."

Woods' letter asserted the AAA was on record in one of its publications ("Corn Hog Adjustment") as saying concerning the 1935 market supply: "A little over one-half of the total expected reduction is represented by the (AAA) contract rerequirements.

"It was not the drouth which urged swine growers to sign contracts for reducing hog supplies and paid them for doing so," said Woods.

CONGRESSMAN SAMUEL B. HILL NAMED TO TAX APPEALS BOARD

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Representative Samuel B. Hill of Washington State, tax bill expert on the House Ways and Means Committee, was nominated by President Roosevelt today for a 12-year term on the Board of Tax Appeals.

The President also sent to the Senate the nomination of David E. Lilienthal of Wisconsin for reappointment as a member of the board of directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority, for a nine-year term beginning today. Lilienthal's nomination was confirmed immediately without objection at Senator Norris' request. Norris explaining his term expired today.

to the Jewish Agency for Palestine during the six months beginning April 1.

Each certificate permits a Jewish immigrant to enter together with his family. This type of immigration is in addition to the "capitalist" category of immigration under which a Jew possessing $5000 may enter the country without restriction.

Tanks and armored cars rumbled through various Northern and Southern Palestine districts after a week-end of disorder. The Jewish Telegraphic Agency said 25 Jews had been killed since April 19. Official estimates placed the total at 23.

One hundred and ninety-three houses in Arab villages were ordered seized by the Northern District Commissioner for non-payment of collective fines. The fines were imposed because of incidents of alleged arson and guerilla warfare in connection with the Arabs' anti-Jewish drive.

In the Jewish quarter of Rehavia, in Jerusalem, Arabs fired from a speeding automobile into a Jewish barber shop near the headquarters of the Jewish Agency for Palestine. No one was hurt.

An uprising of 400 Arab prisoners at Nursham was quelled last night by guards who killed one prisoner and wounded others.

British Royal Commission to Make Inquiry in Palestine.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 18.—J. H. Thomas, Home Secretary, announced today a royal commission would investigate the causes of unrest in Palestine.

"It's good news, Mrs. Sweeney"

"Twins, did y' say?" says Mrs. Sweeney. "Sure now, and what do y' know about that!"

It's easy to see that Mrs. Sweeney is a busy woman. Probably that's why she expects so much of her telephone: The latest news of her nieces and nephews, for example. Calls that are both fast and clear. And, once a month, a telephone bill that she expects to be reasonable.

The job of the men and women who work for this company is to give Mrs. Sweeney the sort of telephone service she expects.

This means much more than just operating switchboards, or keeping lines in repair. It means getting ready—sometimes far ahead—to meet problems as they come up. It means doing the daily job a little better all the time.

A fortunate thing it has been for Mrs. Sweeney that these men and women who manufacture her telephone calls have behind them the advice and help of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. staff—the scientific research of Bell Laboratories—the skillful buying and manufacturing of Western Electric.

Mrs. Sweeney may seldom give these organizations a thought. Yet—

"Twins, did y' say?" she beams into her telephone.

And with every call she makes, she benefits from the work they have done. For not only have they helped make her calls faster, clearer and better. In the face of the growing complexity of the telephone system, they have helped this company hold the cost down to a price she is willing and able to pay.

EUROPEAN SHIPMENTS OF GOLD RESUMED

Federal Reserve Report Shows $150,000,000 Has Been Sent to U. S. in Recent Weeks.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18. — The Federal Reserve Board reported last night that the inward flow of gold had been resumed, with net imports since mid-April through May 8 amounting to $150,000,000.

The board said $125,000,000 came from France, which, until recently, had been transferring its funds to England.

"Gold movements to this country, which had practically ceased by the beginning of this year," the board said, "were resumed on a considerable scale in the last week of April.

"From April 24 to May 8, about $125,000,000 of gold was engaged for shipment for France to the United States. Earlier in the year an outward movement of gold occurred, and for the three and a half months as a whole to the middle of April, gold imports were smaller than any similar period since January, 1934.

"This was mainly due to a reduction in the volume of European short-term balances held in this market. Foreign purchases of American securities continued on substantially the same scale as in the latter half of 1935.

"The reduction in European short-term balances held in this country appears in its earliest stages to have reflected in part the gradual subsidence of the war fears that had initiated the transfer of British and other balances to this market in September and October, and in part the passing ofthe acute fiscal and political issues in France which had come to a crisis in November.

"When capital again began to leave France in the latter part of January, it was transferred to England rather than to the United States.

"The anticipated effect on the budget of legislation for adjusted service compensation and of the court decision which invalidated taxes imposed in connection with the agricultural adjustment program, together with the extension of the President's power to devalue the dollar, created some uncertainty abroad as to the course of American monetary policy, and the slow reduction of European balances in this country continued."

The board added that by the end of March foreign uncertainty in regard to American monetary developments lost much of their force, and the inward flow of gold began again.

strikers refuse to return, to void collective labor contracts and resume operation either with new employes or with personnel provided by the army or by the Communications Department.

Backing by Other Unions.

Most observers thought the problem for President Cardena's government, despite its pro-labor leanings, would be grave if the workers were told to end their strike and refused to do so. The railway Syndicate, with 62,000 members, apparently was solidly behind the strike. The equally powerful Miners' and Oil Workers' Unions voted solidarity with the movement.

Apparently unimpressed by warnings of illegality, the workers, led by Juan Gutierrez, secretary-general of the syndicate, cheered speakers who urged them at mass meetings to enforce the strike, and completed preparations to quit.

President Antonio Madrazo and officers of the line, having declared the wage increases demanded would increase annual expenses more than $4,000,000 and mean an annual deficit of nearly $200,000, maintained their stand that granting of the workers' demands was "economically impossible."

Several Trains for Laredo.

Several trains, among them one bound for Laredo, Tex., left the capital this morning. Workers decided that passenger trains en route at the strike hour would be taken to their terminals. Moving freight and express will be delivered to the stations of destination.

Emergency mail service was arranged, one train daily each way between Mexico, D. F., and Laredo, one each way between Mexico and Guadalajara, and similar service over the Mexico, D. F.-Puebla-Jalapa-Vera Cruz and Mexico, D. F.-Toluca-Morelia-Patzcuaro-Uruapan routes.

The War Department, at the Conciliation Board's request, directed chiefs of military zones throughout the country to provide guards for railway property but not to interfere with strikers' rights.

The Department of Public Economy warned merchants they could not use a strike as an excuse to raise prices, but housewives carried home market baskets fuller than usual.

The tourist office of the Interior Department, remarking on the flight of tourists, announced several tours to Mexico from the United States points set for May and June had been canceled, among them excursions from Brownsville, Laredo and San Antonio, Tex.

BRIDGE ASSESSMENT SUIT GOES TO TRIAL

Hearing Opens on City's Objection to $3,000,000 Valuation on Illinois End.

Trial of the tax objection suit of the city of St. Louis against the St. Clair County Board of Review, over the $3,000,000 assessed valuation of the Illinois end of Municipal Bridge was begun before County Judge Joseph Fleming at Belleville today.

The city, which has been taxed by St. Clair County on the eastern portion of the bridge since 1920, has protested against the $3,000,000 valuation, as fixed in 1933-35, and a previous $2,000,000 assessment for 1931-32. Its suit related to the taxes under the $3,000,000 valuation.

Of the $161,028 tax bill for 1933 the city paid $53,676 outright, this being the equivalent of taxes on an earlier $1,000,000 assessment and it paid in connection with its appeal to court, under the law, three-fourths of the balance, or $80,514, leaving $26,838 still due. Similarly, on its 1934 tax bill of $164,289 it paid $54,673 outright and $82,144 in connection with the protest, leaving $27,381 unpaid. The 1935 taxes have not become due yet.

Expert Testimony Expected.

It was anticipated that much of the testimony for both sides would be of expert nature.

An important point of contention was over the extent of the bridge within Illinois. It was argued by counsel for the county board that 62 per cent of the structure was in Illinois, with the middle of the principal channel of navigation forming the boundary between the states. The city asserted that only 41 per cent of the crossing was in Illinois and that the center of the deepest part of the stream was the state boundary.

The boundary was substantially the same today as when Illinois was admitted to the Union in 1818, the defense declared. Testimony of the first witness for the city was admitted over the objection of the county board. He was Col. Paul S. Reinecke, district river engineer for the Army Corps of Engineers. Maps exhibited by him, dating from 1837 to 1905, showed that in that period the deepest part of the river was close to the Missouri shore at the Eads Bridge site and close to the Illinois shore at the Municipal Bridge site.

His exhibits included photostatic copies of 1837 maps made by Robert E. Lee, then a river engineer for the Army.

$15,000 Defense Fund.

A defense fund of $15,000 for the suit was raised for the county board by East St. Louis, the East Side Levee Board, the East St. Louis School Board and the East St. Louis Park Board, which were among the principal taxing bodies benefiting from taxes on the bridge.

Since 1920 the city has paid Illinois, St. Clair County and its political subdivisions $760,931 in taxes on the bridge, not counting additional sums held up or paid conditionally. The original assessed valuation on the Illinois end of the bridge, in 1920, was $300,000. The assessment reached $1,000,000 in 1927, remaining at that level for four years. When the valuation was raised to $2,000,000 the city appealed, but lost in court. By its partial payment of the recent taxes the city has recognized the $1,000,000 figure as acceptable. St. Clair County officials have argued that a higher assessment was justified by the earning power of the bridge, resulting from the vehicle tolls collected in the last four years to raise funds for public relief and the railroad tolls collected in recent years from comparatively limited use of the rail deck.

ILLINOIS INSURANCE RULING

Life Companies Not Entitled to Write Liability Policies.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 18.—The Attorney-General's office has ruled that two large Eastern life insurance companies have been illegally selling workmen's compensation and liability insurance in Illinois. The opinion was requested by Ernest Palmer, director of insurance, who said his department would take steps to require the companies to cease the issuance of casualty insurance. Palmer refused to name the two companies.

The opinion held that life insurance companies cannot engage in the business of selling workmen's compensation or liability insurance in Illinois.

ALDERMAN ISRAEL FOR REPEAL OF DANCE HALL RESTRICTIONS

Says He Will Introduce Bill So as to Allow Closed Places to Reopen.

Alderman Harry L. Israel told reporters today that he would introduce in the Board of Aldermen tomorrow a bill repealing present ordinances authorizing the Board of Public Service to revoke dance hall licenses and requiring them to close at 1 a. m. except when permission to remain open was obtained upon such occasions as holidays.

Alderman Israel said the removal of restrictions was desirable in order that owners of property which might be used for dance halls might rent it. The licenses of many dance halls were revoked about a year ago by Director of Public Service Joseph M. Darst after he had received complaints as to the manner in which they were being conducted.

Another bill which Alderman Israel said he would introduce tomorrow would require that owners of vacant lots, used as dumps or for storage of building materials, be required to enclose them with a four-foot fence to prevent possible injury to children or others who might walk across them.

YEAR FOR FALSE AFFIDAVIT IN QUALIFYING AS BONDSMAN

Joe Lasky Sentenced to Workhouse on Plea of Guilty; Three Jumped Bail He Gave.

Joe Lasky, formerly a professional bondsman, was sentenced to a year in the Workhouse today by Circuit Judge Eugene L. Padberg when he pleaded guilty of making a false affidavit concerning his qualifications as a bondsman.

Lasky, in qualifying to sign a bail bond for Michael Novack, swore before Judge Joseph Dickmann in the Court of Criminal Correction in September, 1934, that he was the owner fo a group of tenements at Fifteenth and Biddle streets, which he valued at $25,000.

After the bond had been forfeited, it devloped taht Lasky was not the owner of the property, but the lessee. Lasky, representing himself as the owner, had signed bail bonds totaling $20,000 for three accused fugitives who jumped their bonds.

CLOSE-UP of ST. LOUIS FASHIONS

MARCH of FASHION

By

Sylvia Stiles

IF YOU want to play the leading role in any fashion play, get one of those summer evening dresses which have a full length sweeping cape. Mrs. Richard Kline was wearing one at the symphony concert last night and it was as smart as any evening costume seen hereabouts in many a day. The shade was navy blue and the trimming white pique, both associated with daytime trends but adapted quite successfully this year for evening.

The sketch gives you an idea of the dramatic qualities of these cape ensembles. The dress, quite simply designed with shoulder straps and a pique band going under the arms, has a brilliant clip to give to the bodice a slight V line at the front. The cape is collared with white pique and although very trimly cut at the shoulders measures yards and yards at the hemline!

Purple is a shade that we long have associated with regal splendor so who could blame Miss Virginia O'Hearn, Queen of the St. Louis University Student Conclave, for getting herself a purple evening frock to wear dancing? It's most becoming, too, as those who saw her at the Hotel Jefferson last Tuesday evening will agree. The fabric is mousseline de soie and the style quite worth noting. The bodice is gathered full to a high neckline where a wide bias fold forms a collar that fits high across the front but dips to a deep decolletage at the back. The skirt is very slender at the waistline but quite full at the hemline. Folds of the fabric graduating from a half inch to more than two inches in depth adorn the skirt. A taffeta ribbon sash is tied with a huge bow and a taffeta slip gives a swish to the costume. White sandals and a corsage of white gardenias are exactly right for this dress.

—o—o—

Although there are shades and shades from which to choose this season, St. Louis women aren't the least bit concerned over the recurrence of navy blue. They wear it for evening as well as for daytime, and invariably have at least one costume which calls for blue accessories, although the dominant note may be gray or May wine.

—o—o—

● NAVY PREDOMINATED in the costumes of attractively dressed women seen on a recent evening at Hotel Chase. There was Mrs. Kenneth J. Saunders in a dark blue net jacket frock that used white accents in a striking manner. The fitted jacket had a sailor collar which was finished with graduated bands of white. It fastened with a double button arrangement at the waistline. The one-piece dress was short sleeved, had a high round neckline and a skirt pleated at center front and center back.

Navy blue accessories were chosen by Mrs. Stanley M. Walsh for her May wine silk coat ensemble. The dark red material was dotted with white and was used for the tailored frock as well as for the long fitted coat. The coat had collar and cuffs of white pique. It was quite tailored even to the vent at the back. Mrs. Walsh's hat was a wide brimmed model of navy blue rough straw and her hat and bag were of matching dark blue.

Mrs. Harold E. Gorg wore a light gray crepe frock that employed both wine and navy as accents. The neckline had one fold of wine crepe and another of navy which tied at the front, giving a cowl effect. A four-inch panel made of stripes of the two shades went from the front of the neckline to the bottom of the skirt. Three-quarter length sleeves were bell-shaped. A close-fitting navy hat had an upturned brim. Gloves and bag also were navy.

—o—o—

BLUEBONNET BLUE, navy and wine make a stunning alliance and Mrs. Louis Renfrew, chairman of the Women's Safe Drivers' School of the Safety Council, combines them with a flair that is distinctive. She has been wearing a good looking suit consisting of navy skirt and jacket and an overblouse of the lighter blue flower shade. The jacket has a wide stole of the bluebonnet tone. The third shade is introduced with a belt of the wine tone and a matching carnation. To complete the ensemble, Mrs. Renfrew wears navy strap pumps, a navy hat and copper colored hose.

● ANY WOMAN WHO can make herself a suit that is so well tailored and flattering that she becomes one of the best dressed women in a crowd deserves a bit of praise. Mrs. Raymond Bond is the talented person. She wore the suit to the spring bridge luncheon of the St. Louis Panhellenic Association. It is of navy blue light weight woolen and has the "dressmaker" touch which stamps it as original. The jacket has a fitted band that goes around the neck and swings wide at the front. A short peplum flares slightly at the sides. The skirt conceals its fullness in pleats at the side seams. A handmade blouse of white crossbarred organdie has an upstanding frill around the neck and down the front to yoke depth. This is edged with Valenciennes lace. The short sleeves also are trimmed with the frills. Clusters of fine tucks supply front fullness.

A little brimmed hat of the overturned flower pot type which suits the costume is of navy straw and has a violet cluster at the center front. Mrs. Bond wears a bunch of violets on her jacket. London tan one-strap pumps, a bag of the same light brown leather and white gloves are chic additions to the ensemble.

—o—o—

● THE SUCCESS of a bolero depends upon the wearer. Miss Christine Melcher who is tall and slender looks well in the costume which adds this short jacket. Her springtime version is of light gray sheer faille. The bolero fastens from neckline to waistline with tiny covered buttons and loops placed very close together. A sailor collar stitched at the edge contributes additional interest. Sleeves are bell shaped. When this jacket is removed, the blouse of the one-piece frock proves to be sufficiently dressy that it can go to dinner as well as to a luncheon bridge party. Collar and gilet are of embroidered white marquisette. Short sleeves owe their puffed up appearance to darts at the armholes. A series of white narrow gores gives the skirt a front flare. A navy leather belt fastens with a rhinestone clip and Miss Melcher repeats the navy shade with a large rolling brimmed sailor of navy felt, navy pumps and bag.

Miss Margaret Whitelaw has a clever frock which illustrates how the redingote theme is being applied to young fashions. The redingote is of brown chiffon and is worn over brown crepe dotted with white. The sheer coat has elbow length sleeves which are finished with white organdie cuffs and a turnover collar of the organdie. Brown felt hat and brown fabric and leather pumps complete the ensemble.

—o—o—

DOESN'T A powder puff print sound intriguing? It looks that way, too, as worn by Mrs. Harry Bischoff, who is prominent in musical circles. She has been seen at several spring events in a becoming printed jacket dress, the navy background of which is almost covered with little powder puff designs in tones of chartreuse green, blue and wine. Flowers made of the printed crepe and plain green material hold the shirred neckline of the dress in place. The short sleeved jacket is fitted and has tailored revers. A navy straw hat displays the forward movement which is accentuated with a little eyebrow veil.

● WHEN MRS. RALPH COHEN casually threw the jacket of her spring ensemble over a chair in the costume room of a downtown shop and accidentally displayed the handsome printed lining, it didn't take an ingenious passerby long to discover the possibilities of wearing it wrong side out. So if this well dressed St. Louisan should appear with a red and black printed coat faced with black sheer woolen, it will be because she couldn't resist the temptation to try it. The blouse is of the same print. It is of the shirtwaist type, fastened with crystal buttons and short of sleeve. Mrs. Cohen wears a handsome rhinestone clip at the neckline. A Breton sailor is in keeping with the character of the suit.

PROM WEEK COMES Into PROMINENCE

By Prunella Wood

THIS is the season of June Weeks and Commencement fiestas in general—and it is also the threshold of the organdy evening dress season.

Such lovely colors are to be found in frocks made of this diaphanous fabric, and if the imported variety is chosen, models will stand up surprisingly under packing and wearing. It is a simple thing, anyway, to press out an organdy dress when it gets really crushed and mussed, and to compliment the imported variety again, it is treated with a "permanent finish," which means that it will come out crisp after laundering and ironing, even without the use of starch.

THERE are loads of ante-bellum, Southern belle models to be had, dresses with bouffant skirts and tightly fitted bodices, adrip with ruffles, flutings, flounces, romance and youth.

There are prim, naive, flattering little shirtmaker models with slinky skirts that bell out at the hemline.

SNUG princess models ensembled with saucy little puffed sleeved, nipped-in-jackets set a third popular style trend. Cut-out, openwork organza, shadow-printed organza, organza that is plaided or pin-dotted or striped with color are just a few of the tricks seen in this prom-trotting, flattering fabric.

Cool Frocks in Pastel Shades For Summer

"Frozen Custard" Is Name of One of New Colors for Dresses.

"FROZEN custard" is the name of a new color for dresses, and white-haired women were urged this week to try it.

It looks just like frozen custard—a cool, off-white color, with a tinge of yellow. It is also regarded by stylists as attractive for bridal gowns.

Other new pastel shades for summer are "toast" and "candle-light." "May wine"—a title borrowed from a current operetta, is also on summer's color card, along with "tulip," another wine shade used for many linen frocks.

Gay colored gloves — almond green, raspberry red, king blue and purple—continue to be popular with suits. They highlight the smartest tailored suits and are also seen with print dresses.

Even nightgowns are getting more colorful. Some of the newest ones are of violet chiffon, tied with wine velvet ribbon, and some are of black batiste.

The ballet russe, which recently made its farewell appearance in New York, inspired several designs in new clothes collections. A costume worn by a ballerina in "Scheherazade" was the origin of one designer's idea for a pair of lounging pajamas.

Gingham seems to be slated for a big summer season. It made a town frock which the bride-to-be of a London designer included in her trousseau — a formal-looking, brown and white checked frock over a brown taffeta petticoat. The sleeves had pleated brown taffeta frills.

Checked gingham also makes the shirts many girls are wearing with their riding habits—which usually nowadays are jodphurs, a vest and a low-crowned derby, with boots and a "horsey" bar-pin.

For beach wear, plaid gingham shirts and blue denim slacks are being shown.

THE MOVIE WHIRL

you are planning a trip abroad this vacation I'll tell you about Miss Michael's costume. The skirt was dark blue and there was a waist line cape instead of the usual jacket. The blouse, which showed when the wind fluttered her cape, and the cape lining, were of dark blue French crepe hand-blocked in a gay little floral design. Her blue felt hat was rather high in the crown, which was slightly folded over, and the high heeled pumps and bag were of patent leather. The pictures are supposed to show the absolutely last word in correct attire, so this must be the ocean-going costume.

MASSED CONCERT ENDS SCHOOL BAND CONTEST

Musicians From Middle West Win Highest Praise of Judges in National Competition.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, May 18.—Several thousand young band players in colorful uniforms closed the ninth annual national high school band contest in mass concert Saturday.

A. R. McAllister directed 70 bands in the Star Spangled banner to conclude the three-day event.

All afternoon the country's crack bandsmen paraded before thousands of spectators in the Cleveland Stadium where they received their ratings. Nationally known band directors who also led selections in the massed band concert.

High Praise by Judges.

Three judges in the contest declared the top competing organizations are the best in the world and better than some professional bands.

Edwin Franko Goldman, director of the Goldman band, New York; Frank Simon, director of the Armco band, Middletown, O., and Ernest Williams, director of the New York University band, made the statements immediately after hearing the last of the bands.

Goldman said: "With few exceptions the bands I've heard not only compare favorably with professional bands but surpass them. The standard is higher than ever before and no country in the world can compare with the United States when it comes to school music."

In the opinion of Simon, the "bands we heard are the standard of the world. Several are superior to anything in the world in the way of school music."

"It would be very difficult to find better bands than we've had here," said Williams.

The judges estimated that more than 3,000,000 school children are playing instruments of some sort in the nation's bands.

Centers in Middle West.

"The future of music in America rests in the hands of these young people who will become the patrons and supporters of the art after their participating days are over, Simon stated.

"This cultural development does not center in the East," Goldman said, "but rather in the Middle West." "The bands of the Middle West are 25 years ahead of those in the East. They started later but by using advanced methods soon equaled, then surpassed the older bands of the East."

Awards in the contest here were announced at the close of the contest yesterday afternoon.

There were no "winners." Ratings were made in divisions as follows: Division one, highly superior or outstanding achievement; division two, superior; division three, good; division four, fair; division five, below average.

Division two—Austin of Chicago, Farragut of Chicago, Harrison of Chicago; Elgin, Ill.; Quincy, Ill.

In Class B schools, with an enrollment of 250 to 750, the ratings were:

Division two—Beardstown , Ill., and Taylorville, Ill.

Division three—Collinsville, Ill., and Edwardsville, Ill.

Class C. Ratings.

In Class C, schools of 100 to 250 enrollment, the ratings were:

Husband of Young Woman Victim Escapes by Jumping to Porch Roof, Then to Ground.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, Ky., May 18.—Three members of a family were burned to death, and a fourth was injured yesterday when their farm home near here was destroyed by fire.

The dead: William R. Madin, secretary of the Gallatin County Federal Farm Loan Bank; his wife, Nanny Ellin Madin, and their daughter, Mrs. Theresa Adeline Gex.

William R. Gex, husband of the young woman, suffered burns and sprains in jumping from a window to a porch roof, then to the ground.

Mrs. Gex apparently discovered the blaze, but after screaming to her husband, was unable to aid her parents or herself before the house collapsed.

Confectionery Store Robbed.

Mrs. Bessie Garrett, proprietor of a confectionery at 1011 South Taylor avenue, was held up by a young man, armed with an automatic pistol, who entered her establishment about 10 p. m. yesterday, and forced her to hand him $25 from the cash drawer. He joined a waiting companion and they fled in an automobile.

HINDU LEADER DROPS IDEALS OF GANDHI

"My Life Work Ruined" Says Mahatma, Who Fears Violence.

By the Associated Press.

WARDHA, India, May 18.—"My life work is ruined," the Mahatma Gandhi said yesterdayl in discussing, in his retreat here, the results of the recent Lucknow Nationalist Congress.

"Not even the firmness and repression of the British Government," he said, "have harmed my work as much as the new policy outlined by Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru."

Nehru is new president of the Indian National Congress.

Gandhi referred to a quarrel which has been brewing for a long time; a quarrel which has left him sullen and disappointed, with the feeling that he has been betrayed by his best friends.

It is a clash between the young, politically aggressive Nehru and the soft-spoken Gandhi, still India's man of mystery, who does not believe in force.

The result has been a split in Nationalist circles which, it is expected, will further weaken Nationalist political strength, for Gandhi has as many ardent disciples now as the young Pandit.

Possibility of Bloodshed.

But Nehru has made it clear, through his presidential address at the Congress, that he pins his faith in the explosive qualities of a well-organized peasantry and labor unions. To Gandhi this means a period which might easily be marked by unprecedented bloodshed and the consequent re-introduction of stern repressive measures by the British Government.

"Still, in two or three years' time," said the Mahatma, "this excitable and enthusiastic young leader will return to me and once again invite me to lead India to freedom.

"He is facing a rude setback by persisting in his present policy but when he realizes his mistake, he will find me not only willing to help him but ready with a new program which will startle Britain even more than did my civil disobedience campaign."

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru is the very opposite of Gandhi in character. He is not afraid of a policy of violence, and is said to be planning a movement to shake the British rule in India.

Gandhi's Ideal Abandoned.

As a step towards this he has manifested a political recklessness which older Congress members declare will lead the country into futile chaos.

Some of the fundamental principles of the Congress, it is pointed out, have now been jettisoned. The manual labor qualification for membership, which Gandhi regarded as the foundation stone of his political organization, has been abandoned. "Our members must fight, and not spin," said Jawaharlal Nehru.

Outwardly the Government of India has welcomed this new direction of nationalist policy and program, since it makes possible a fight against an enemy whose methods and reserves are understood. Inwardly, the Government is regarded as fearful of the reaction of such a policy, in that it may drive India back into the arms of Gandhi with more enthusiasm than in the past. There is, moreover, a complete lack of knowledge as to Gandhi's future plans.

Meanwhile, the astute Gandhi sits quietly in his Ashrama, thinking and plotting for the future. Personally he thinks he will have to wait only a year; but if the waiting period extends to two or even three years he will not worry.

"India loves me," explained the Mahatma. "India trusts me. India needs me. I feel, therefore, that my life mission is not yet ended. I still hope to see India free from the domination of the foreigner."

PROPORTION OF SILVER TO GOLD IN TREASURY FALLS

Government Losing Ground in Fulfilling Provisions of Purchase Act.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18. — Calculations by the Treasury today showed it had lost ground in fulfilling the provisions of the Silver Purchase Act.

The law decreed the United States should buy silver until its stocks equaled one-third of its gold stocks or until the price of the metal reached $1.29 an ounce.

The stocks of silver on May 14 equaled only 20.7 per cent of the gold, whereas mid-January calculations showed the ratio to be between 22 and 23 per cent.

As accurately as can be estimated, present stocks of silver amount to $2,139,826,010 as of the close of business on May 14. Gold stocks amounted to $10,323,458,779.

The latest official announcement by the Treasury disclosed a total of 835,112,000 ounces of silver had been purchased in fulfillment of the Purchase Act. This was on Jan. 17.

Present silver stocks consist of the following: $1,194,933,644 of silver and silver dollars; $6,665,077 of subsidiary silver coin; $38,146,421 of standard silver dollars outside the Treasury; $322,653,288 of subsidiary silver outside the Treasury; $361,200 of silver bullion calculated at its recoinage value, and $637,166,379 of silver bullion in the Treasury.

TWO HURT WHEN AUTO HITS TELEPHONE POLE

Men Injured When Their Car Leaves St. Charles Road In County.

Two men were injured seriously when an automobile in which they were riding left St. Charles road, about half a mile west of Woodson road, early today and struck a telephone pole, breaking the pole.

They were taken to De Paul Hospital, where police later said they were William Hasfield, 5880 Highland avenue, and Thomas G. Dunn, 4123 Green Lea place. Hasfield has a crushed chest and broken jaw. Dunn suffered a skull injury.

Mrs. Josephine Deiters, 82, a widow, 3702A Penrose street, suffered skull and internal injuries when struck by an automobile at Grand boulevard and Barrett street at 9:25 o'clock last night. The driver was Clarence Edwards, a butcher, 3772A Penrose street.

Alfred Rich, 5825 Theodosia avenue, suffered lacerations and internal injuries early yesterday when his machine struck a concrete safety zone marker at Kingshighway and Fountain avenue.

Leo R. Alvey, a chauffeur, 3912 North Eleventh street, was taken to City Hospital early yesterday from Broadway and Market street, where he was knocked down by an automobile. He was pronounced suffering from a skull injury and alcoholism, police reported. The driver, Frank Bailey, 915A South Twenty-second street, said Alvey walked against the side of his machine.

Edward M. Schneider, 63, of 1470 Illinois avenue, East St. Louis, suffered cuts and bruises yesterday when a tire blew out on his automobile and he ran into a telephone pole. He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital. Hobart J. Bagley, 1238 Gaty avenue, who was riding with him, was treated at the hospital for minor injuries.

An ambulance from the Kurrus Funeral Home, which was en route to the scene to take Schneider and Bagley to the hospital, collided with a car driven by Cecil S. Wilcox, 1319 Illinois avenue, East St. Louis, on the way. Wilcox and his wife were slightly injured. Another ambulance was summoned for Schneider and Bagley.

St. Louis Woman Fatally Injured Near Kansas City, Mo.

Mrs. Ida Reynolds, 5816 Pershing avenue, wife of M. M. Reynolds, an insurance broker, died Saturday night in a hospital in Kansas City, Mo., of injuries suffered in an automobile accident near there earlier in the day. According to word received here, the accident occurred in Kansas, about 20 miles west of Kansas City, when the automobile she was driving skidded and crashed into a culvert.

Mrs. Reynolds, who was 50 years old, was driving alone at the time. Her husband, who is a partner in the insurance firm of Weissenborn & Reynolds, had gone to Kansas City over the week end on business, and Mrs. Reynolds had driven there to meet him.

The body was returned to St. Louis today and taken to the Ambruster Mortuary, 6636 Clayton road. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

BRITAIN ASKS FOR U. S. VIEWS ON ENLARGING ITS NAVY

Inquiry on Destroyer and Submarine Increase Taken Merely as Polite Gesture.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18. — The State Department has referred to the Navy Department a British request for an expression of this Government's views on England's proposal to increase its destroyer strength.

This was learned today following disclosure that the British memorandum, transmitted through the American Embassy at London, had reached the State Department last Saturday. Great Britain notified this Government of its wish to exceed the limits of the 1930 London treaty by increasing its combined destroyer flotilla from 150,000 tons —the limit set in the treaty — to 190,000 tons on the ground that unidentified naval powers not parties to the treaty had greatly increased their tonnage in this category.

Only Great Britain, the United States and Japan finally adhered to the London accord.

The British action was interpreted solely as a polite gesture, inasmuch as no signatory is required to obtain the consent of other parties to the treaty.

I. C. C. RULING IS UPHELD

Supreme Court Approves Decision On Division of Joint Rates.

WASHINGTON, May 18. — An Interstate Commerce Commission order prescribing the division among the railroads of joint rates on citrus fruit shipments from Florida to the East and mid-West, was upheld today by the Supreme Court. In a unanimous opinion, delivered by Justice Butler, the Court affirmed a ruling by a three-Judge Federal District Court in Eastern Virginia, which sustained the 1934 order.

"We conclude, that the evidence is not sufficient to establish with requisite certainty what has been, or will be, the cost of the service covered by the prescribed divisions and that the District Court rightly dismissed the suit," the opinion said. The Baltimore & Ohio and other Northern carriers had contended the order decreased their revenue by about $300,000 annually and gave this additional amount to Southern railroads.

TWO VERSIONS OF STATE WPA IN CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

Kansas City Contractor Calls It "Obviously a Mess," Administrator Tells of Clash Over 'Services.'

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18. — Readers of the Congressional Record today had conflicting versions of how the Works Progress Administration operations in Missouri.

R. Newton McDowell, Kansas City contractor, who said he was a "lifelong Democrat," in a letter called the WPA in Missouri "obviously a mess."

Matthew S. Murray, State Administrator, in reply said: "McDowell would rather criticise than be helpful,"

Representative Short (Rep.), Missouri, during a recent assault on the WPA, inserted McDowell's letter in the Record. Representative Cochran (Dem.), Missouri had Murray's reply printed in the Record. It said in part:

"Mr. McDowell fell out with the Works Progress Administration program when I said 'no' on a proposition" involving construction at Weldon Springs.

A quoted letter from McDowell to R. H. Daniels, Division Engineer of the State Highway Department, said McDowell estimated WPA funds could be used for a bridge project under terms which would net $76,000 for services to be rendered the Government.

"I could not see my way clear to paying McDowell $76,000 for alleged 'services rendered to the Government'," Murray wrote.

ICKES SAYS REVOLVING FUND MAY GIVE PWA 'A WAY OUT'

Testifies Before Senate Subcommittee on Need for Money for 3000 Projects.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Secretary of the Interior Ickes told a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee today that "a way out" of the Public Works Administration's financial position might be found in the expansion of the $250,000,000 PWA revolving fund and the relaxation of statutes governing its operation.

The PWA administrator, whose organization is scheduled for curtailment under the $2,364,229,712 relief-deficiency bill before the subcommittee, testified behind closed doors.

Senator Hayden (Dem.), Arizona, told reporters after Ickes testified that the Secretary had "indicated" that his needs in getting funds with which to carry out some 3000 approved projects might be found in this manner. Hayden explained that present statutes limit the revolving fund to $250,000,000 with the Reconstruction Corporation acting as selling agent of PWA securities.

Hayden, who advocated an amendment to the bill to give Ickes $700,000,000, said this revolving fund is used for loans.

CHARGES GOV. HOFFMAN HAS MADE 'DEAL' WITH DEMOCRATS

Manager of Opponent Alleges Move to Avoid Defeat for Convention Delegate.

By the Associated Press.

TRENTON, N. J., May 18.—Injection of Gov. Harold G. Hoffman's intervention in the Bruno Hauptmann case as an issue heightened interest today in tomorrow's presidential preference primary test between Alf M. Landon and William E. Borah.

Franklin W. Fort is fighting the Governor for one of four places as delegates-at-large to the Republican National Convention.

O. D. Keep, Fort's campaign manager, charged that defeat of Hoffman was not sure because of a "deal" between the Governor and Frank Hague, State Democratic leader, "which calls for the casting by machine Democrats, voting as one-day Republicans, of at least 25,000 'bullet' votes for Hoffman."

Neither Landon nor Borah formally entered the New Jersey presidential preference primary, but supporters posted their names and delegate slates in almost all the State's 14 congressional districts. On the Democratic side, Henry T. Breckinridge, legal adviser to Col. Charles A. Lindberg, runs unopposed, but the Democratic State organization of Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City is running delegates pledged to President Roosevelt. The Hague candidates are certain of election.

WOMAN, ANGERED BY LENIENCY OF JUDGE, 73, SCRATCHES HIM

Thinks 60 Days Is Not Enough for Man Accused of Attacking Her Daughter.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 18.—Judge Albert S. J. Owens, 73 years old, of the Baltimore Supreme Court, was attacked in his home yesterday by a woman who threatened "to scratch his eyes out."

He suffered scratches on one hand, but was not seriously injured. His wrist watch was broken.

He said the woman, Mrs. William Sleitzer, was angered because of leniency he showed a defendant accused of having attacked her daughter. The defendant was sentenced to 60 days.

During the scuffle, the woman's husband stood by and threatened to join in the attack if Judge Owens struck her. One tussle occurred in the Judge's living room, another just inside the door as he was ejecting her.

"It was an exciting fight while it lasted, but I'm not hurt, so I don't plan to take any action in the matter," Judge Owens said. He explained he had concluded from the testimony in the case that the offense was less serious than charged.

The Sleitzers said they had written to President Roosevelt, Gov. Harry W. Nice, Mayor Howard W. Jackson and the American Federation of Labor, complaining of the court's action. They also are circulating a petition to "arouse public sentiment."

DR. M. DWIGHT JENNINGS, 48 YEARS A PHYSICIAN, DIES

Was Pathologist of Frisco Hospital, 1903-26; First Cousin of William J. Bryan.

Dr. M. Dwight Jennings, physician in St. Louis for nearly 48 years, died of a complication of diseases early today at his home, 4101 Washington boulevard. He was 75 years old and had been in retirement for about a year. He was a first cousin of William Jennings Bryan.

The father of the St. Louis physician and William Jennings Bryan's mother were brother and sister. He traced his ancestry to William Brewster, who came to America on the Mayflower and was a great-grandson of Israel Jennings, pioneer settler in the Middle West, who was in 1818 the first representative of his district in Illinois in the State Legislature.

Dr. Jennings, born at Centralia, graduated from the old College of Physicians and Surgeons in St. Louis in 1888. From 1895 to 1903 he was a member of the faculty of Barnes Medical College, and from 1903 to 1926 was pathologist at Frisco Hospital.

Funeral services will be held at Lupton mortuary, 4449 Olive street, at 2 p. m. Wednesday, with burial at Lake Charles Cemetery. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Cora J. Jennings, two daughters, Mrs. C. W. Kotsrean and Miss Dorothy Jennings, and a son, Dr. Dwight L. Jennings.

NEW MEXICO'S TAX ON AUTOS IN TRANSIT ON ROADS UPHELD

U. S. Supreme Court Rules Levy Constitutional in Unanimous Decision.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—A New Mexico law which taxes motor vehicles being transported by highway through the State for sale was held constitutional today by the Supreme Court.

The unanimous opinion, delivered by Justice Stone, affirmed a ruling last Dec. 24 by a three-judge New Mexico Federal District Court.

The legislation imposed a $7.50 tax on vehicles moving under their own power and $5 on those towed or transported over State highways. Its constitutionality was challenged by the Pacific Wholesale Automobile Co. of Los Angeles and its surety, the United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. They contended the act interfered with interstate commerce, took property without due process of law and denied equal protection.

Escaped Patient Caught.

William Hauptmann, 71 years old, who escaped last Thursday from the City Sanitarium, where he had been a patient since 1893, was arrested last night at Newstead and Maffitt avenues, and returned to the sanitarium.

WHEAT PRICES MIXED AT CLOSE AFTER DECLINE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 18.—Helped by a liberal decrease of the United States visible supply, wheat values rallied at the last today, virtually overcoming earlier losses.

A curtailment of 3,080,000 bushels in the domestic stocks of wheat was reported. This compared with 2,940,000 bushels decrease the week previous and 2,835,000 decrease a year ago.

Wheat closed irregular, ⅜ off ¼ up compared with Saturday's finish, May 93⅝@¾, July 85⅜@½; corn at ⅜ decline to ⅝ advance, May 63⅞@64; oats varying from ¼ setback to ⅛ gain, and provisions unchanged to a loss of 2 cents.

CHICAGO, May 18.—A cent a bushel downturn of wheat values early today accompanied definite reports of crop improvement in four Kansas counties.

A leading unofficial expert touring the Southwest wired the wheat outlook was better in Saline, Kingman, Harper and Sumner Counties, Kansas. Bearish sentiment among traders was influenced also by disappointing cables that showed material setbacks of Liverpool quotations, whereas an advance abroad had been looked for. Action of the Liverpool market was attributed to selling pressure from Australian interests.

Winnipeg messages said there had been no new export business whatever in Canadian grain over the week-end. Meanwhile, dispatches told of favorable rains in West and Southwest parts of the United States winter wheat belt and of a liberal welcome moisture too in the spring crop states Northwest. The forecast was for fair skies and warmer temperatures in Kansas and Nebraska Tuesday.

Corn, oats and rye eased.

Provisions developed firmness corresponding to upturns of hog values.

Around 11:15 a. m. wheat was ¼@¾ lower compared with Saturday's finish, May 93¼, and corn was ¼@½ down, May 63⅛.

Wheat futures purchases Saturday totaled 6,351,000 bushels; corn, 1,427,000. Opening interest in wheat was 74,248,000 bushels and in corn 25,358,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, May 18.—July wheat recovered an early loss and closed unchanged while September was ½c lower. Corn closed ⅛c lower on July.

Winnipeg wheat opened ⅛@⅜c lower and the close was ⅝@¾c off.

Liverpool wheat opened unchanged to ¼d up and in a subsequent cable was ¼@⅝d net lower. The close was ¼ to 1d net lower.

In the cash grain market today wheat was steady to ½c higher, corn unchanged to ½c higher, oats unchanged to ½c lower. Sales made on the floor of the exchange were as follows:

STOCKS RISE ON GUFFEY ACT VERDICT, FALL BACK

Sharp Forward Thrust Lasts Only a Brief Period—Ticker Tape Is Behind Floor Transactions—Close Is Irregular.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 18. — Stocks leaped ahead 1 to around 4 points in today's market, following the Supreme Court's finding of the Guffey Act unconstitutional, but failed to hold.

The sharp forward thrust lasted only a brief period during which the ticker tape was some four minutes behind floor transactions. Then prices began to retrace their upturn. The close was irregular. Transfers were around 900,000 shares.

Brokerage observers were a bit disappointed over the failure of the list to continue the push with more vigor. Quick profit taking was said to have been based on the desire of traders to make a closer study of the Court's ruling.

On the constructive side of the market's ledger was the American Iron & Steel Institute's estimate placing current mill steel operations up .3 of a percentage point over the preceding week.

Bonds emulated stocks and commodities were mixed. Foreign gold currencies were lower in terms of the dollar.

Shares emerging steady to a point or more higher included Dome, McIntyre Porcupine, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Edison, Electric Power & Light, Sears Roebuck, N. Y. Central, Santa Fe, Johns-Manville, Columbian Carbon and American Can.

Unchanged to down a point or so were U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Allied Chemical, du Pont, Distillers Corp.-Seagrams and American Crystal Sugar.

Wheat finished ⅜ of a cent a bushel up to ¼ cent off, and corn was ⅜-cent easier to ⅝-cent advanced. Cotton was unchanged to 30 cents a bale improved.

The French franc, at midafternoon, was .00⅜ of a cent down at 6.58¾ cents, and sterling was ⅞ of a cent firmer at $4.97⅜.

Du Pont Extra Dividend.

Du Pont declared a 70-cent extra dividend, but the stock was listless. The last previous cash extra was 35 cents, voted in September.

The action of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals in finding the $4,880,000,000 relief act of 1935 unconstitutional failed to move the market either way.

The financial sector seemed to feel better regarding the new tax bill which is being threshed out in a Senate committee.

Interest was shown in the announcement that the Federal Reserve Board has undertaken a study of foreign holdings of American stocks and bonds to get an idea of the effect on domestic markets of a possibly heavy repatriation of funds abroad.

Foreign developments were seen as exerting only a mild market influence. Among these were the firming of prices in London, coincident with a steel boom in England, and the cut in the Italian discount rate from 5 to 4½ per cent.

Activity in some of the utilities reflected not only the expanding use of electricity, but hopes that crumbs of comfort for these corporations might be gleaned from Washington happenings.

Company statements were about a standoff. Although International Mercantile Marine sliced its losses, American Crystal Sugar showed a decline in earnings for its fiscal year ended March 31.

Steel Market Review.

The magazine "Steel" provided some market cheer with its prediction that a high rate of steel production probably will be maintained throughout the summer.

It was pointed out that heavier commitments for structural shapes, steel pipe, sheet and tin plate, together with increased pigiron shipments, were imparting a more than seasonal buoyancy to mill activities.

The review also said that, while the preponderance of opinion was that there would be no general price advance for the third quarter, some of the steel makers considered a boost more than a remote possibility.

It was not overlooked, though, that automobile production has been virtually stationary for three weeks, after nine weeks of continuous advance. A further decline in steel scrap prices was seen as puzzling in the light of the impressive showing of steel mill operations.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Gold bloc currencies drifted a trifle lower in terms of the dollar in today's quiet forenoon foreign exchange markets.

The French franc, at midafternoon, was .00⅜ of a cent down at 6.58¾ cents, and sterling was ⅞ of a cent firmer at $4.97⅜.

In New York the French franc yielded .00⅜ of a cent to 6.58¾ cents, or slightly above its gold export point, Holland guilders were .02 of a cent lower at 67.59 cents, and Swiss francs lost .02 of a cent at 32.35 cents. The British pound sterling advanced ½ of a cent to $4.97.

In London moderate speculative offerings of gold currencies brought slightly lower rates in most units. The franc closed at 75.44 to the pound, as against Saturday's rate of 75.35. The dollar was also lower at 4.96 15-16, compared with Saturday's rate of 4.96½.

In Paris the dollar was in moderate demand at 6.586 cents to the franc, compared with Saturday's close of 6.591 cents.

Lowering of the discount rate by the Bank of Italy from 5 to 4½ per cent was ignored by the officially controlled lira, which held unchanged at 7.85 cents.

STEEL PRODUCTION RATE SHADE BETTER

Institute Places Output This Week at 69.4 Per Cent of Capacity.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 18. — The American Iron & Steel Institute today estimated steel production during the current week at 69.4 per cent of capacity, compared with 69.1 per cent in the preceding week and 70.4 a month ago.

A year ago production was at 42.8 per cent of capacity. The increase for the latest week over the preceding seven days was .3 of a point, or .4 of 1 per cent.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, May 18.—"Heavier commitments for structural shapes, steel pipe, sheets and tin plate; an increase in pig iron shipments, and prospects for a high rate of production this summer in many steel consuming industries, including agricultural equipment and railroad car building, impart additional buoyancy to the market," says "Steel."

"While the preponderance of opinion in the industry at present is that there will be no general advance in steel prices for third quarter, some producers consider it more than a remote possibility. Steelmakers in the past few years have publicized contemplated rises more often than they have actually declared them.

"In 1934 when prices were raised for third quarter, after consumers had been given an opportunity to cover requirements, steelworks operations dropped from a peak of 62 per cent in June to an average of 24 per cent in the next three months. Downward revisions were made in July. This year evidently automotive requirements will be at the year's low in the third quarter. A beginning may be made, however, for an effective increase for fourth quarter.

"The automotive industry continues to set the pace in steel requirements, automobile production last week at 117,156 units showing only a slight reduction. Steelworks operations held at 68½ per cent.

"Texas Empire Pipe Line Co., New York, an affiliate of Cities Service and the Texas Co., awarded 41,000 tons of steel pipe for a line between Kansas City and Chicago, to Republic Steel Corp., and A. O. Smith Mfg. Corporation.

"Missouri Pacific is reported to have placed 2000 freight cars. As a result of recent awards, car shops will be busy through July and August, when usually they are shut down.

"Topped by 15,000 tons for Chicago's outer drive bridges and 5300 tons for a Philadelphia vocational school, structural shape awards at 39,914 tons were more than double recent weekly averages, and highest this year. For a building for the Bureau of Engraving and printing, Washington, 6500 tons of rail steel reinforcing bars were ordered.

"Farm equipment manufacturers anticipate a continuation of heavy operations for 30 to 60 days. They are now starting fall production programs, and believe new business will be sufficient to maintain good, if not capacity, schedules during the summer. Many manufacturing lines are more active in ordering steel, including the textile machinery industry.

"In the lighter steel products, formal awards of 65,000 tons of sheets for Chevrolet car frames, booked by the E. G. Budd Mfg. Co., Philadelphia, is expected shortly. Sheet mills are operating at 65 to 70 per cent. Tin plate production is up 5 points to 95 per cent.

"Foundry operations are holding at the year's peak, and from pig iron orders now on sellers' books for delivery this quarter it appears there will have to be a steady upturn through June. Extensive blast furnace rehabilitation work at Pittsburgh is an active factor in the equipment market there. Freight rates from Birmingham, Ala., to five Southern states have been reduced 33 per cent, to enable pig iron to compete with scrap, and shipments are expected to increase considerably this year.

"Scrap still is weak, and prices are off another 50 cents a ton. Mills are waiting while middle interests drive down the market in covering their higher price orders, the latter being aided by the avidity with which smaller sellers are attempting to unload.

"After setting up an all-time high for daily average steel ingot production in March, the British industry made a still higher record in April, with a total of 991,500 tons for the month.

"Steelworks operations in the Pittsburgh district last week advanced 1 point to 63 per cent; Buffalo 2 to 75. Wheeling was down 3 to 89; New England 1 to 77; Cincinnati 4 to 80, while others were unchanged.

"Steel's iron and steel price composite is off 4 cents to $32.94; the finished steel index remains $52.20, while the scrap composite is down 16 cents to $13.38.

J. I. Mange, president, said that more than $196,000,000, or 74 per cent of the company debentures have been exchanged by holders for the new debentures under the plan which was inaugurated in May, 1933. This, Mange said, resulted in an annual interest saving of more than $3,000,000. "Up to the present," he added, "the company has had little cash benefit from this saving because of the expenses involved in carrying out the plan." New properties acquired in Eastern states during 1935 "add about $19,000,000 annually to the system's gross revenues, and increase by 20 per cent the number of customers it serves," the report said.

Servel, Inc., maker of refrigerators with principal plants at Evansville, Ind., reported net profit of $1,381,581 or 77 cents a common share for the quarter ended April 30. This compared with net of $492,238 or 52 cents a share in the April, 1935, quarter.

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, May 18.—(U. S. Dept. of Agriculture)—Mills were beginning to show an interest in new wools, and a few buyers were making commitments. Trading was active at the start. There were buying orders here from abroad and some local and commission house buying on reports of the continued dry weather over the Eastern belt over the week-end. There was covering by May shorts and a moderate trade demand.

Buyers of May were supplied by brokers supposed to be operating for the pool at about Saturday's closing quotations. After the initial demand for later months had run its course prices sagged slightly. At the end of the first hour the market was about net unchanged to 4 points higher.

According to the New York Cotton Exchange service the cotton producers' pool sold 63,600 bales of futures for the week ending last Friday, leaving their holdings of futures 517,500 bales including 75,500 for May delivery.

Pool sales of spot cotton were placed at 5000 bales, reducing the stock to 202,-000. Requests for releases of loan cotton up to the close of last Friday were said to have totaled 724,107 bales.

The market was quiet later in the morning but prices held generally steady within a narrow range. Brokers supposed to be operating for the pool continued to supply May contracts at 11.62, or net unchanged while later months held about 2 to 4 points net higher with October selling at 10.48 at mid-day.

HASTINGS SAYS ROOSEVELT MADE "EFFORT TO CONFUSE"

Senator Asserts Facts Don't Support His Statement of Economic Theory.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 18. — Senator Hastings (Rep.), Delaware, in a radio address last night challenged both the fiscal estimates and economic theories voiced by President Roosevelt in his last major public address, asserting that Mr. Roosevelt had made a "deliberate effort to confuse and mislead."

Hastings struck at statements that the Federal deficit this year "is about $3,000,000,000," and that the national income has risen $30,000,000,000 this year as compared to 1932.

Attacking first the President's statement that the national income this year would be $30,000,000,000 more than in 1932, Hastings said that Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board had placed the figure of $20,000,000,000.

Hastings next attacked a part of the President's New York speech in which the chief executive said that "reduction of costs of manufacture does not mean more purchasing power and more goods consumed."

Hastings said Mr. Roosevelt had a misconception of "purchasing power" and added that this and other statements of economic theory he quoted from the speech were not "supported by the facts." He said: "If he would turn his attention from the price level, which seems to have hypnotized him, and, instead of harassing industry and giving it an occasional breathing spell, he would sincerely give it the signal to 'go' he could still in the remaining months of his administration, which is left to him, make a contribution to American welfare."

JAPAN STRENGTHENS TRADE FRIENDSHIP WITH SIAM

Recent Economic Mission Warmly Welcomed; Exports Have Doubled Since 1933.

By the Associated Press.

BANGKOK, Siam, May 18.—Japanese political and economic influence in Siam has received new impetus through a month's visit by a Japanese economic mission. Warm official and business receptions were given the mission. The increasing friendship between the two countries is said to be viewed with increased suspicion and anxiety by Western Powers, particularly Great Britain and France.

A Japanese adviser has been appointed to the Siam Ministry of Agriculture to promote cotton cultivation in Siam and Japanese engineers have been engaged by the Bangkok municipal administration.

Japanese heavy industries have been making steady headway in the Siamese market, whereas up to now Siam's imports from Japan have comprised mainly cotton cloth, silks, rayons and sundry goods. Total Japanese exports to Siam more than doubled from 1933 to 1935, increasing from 18,000,000 yen to 40,000,000, Y. Yatabe, the Japanese Minister to Siam, told the economic mission.

5 Dresses and $25,000.

Round Trips to Europe.

Counting the Ethiopians.

No More Fences.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1936.)

NEW YORK police arrested a middle-aged woman, begging, near a church and "acting strangely." She wore men's shoes, five dresses, one over the other, and carried bank books showing deposits of $25,000.

This should not discourage wise charity. Not every old woman, begging, has four extra dresses and $25,000. But it might well discourage indiscriminate, thoughtless giving which encourages professional beggary, and causes young beggars to graduate as criminals.

Sir Hubert Wilkins, who has flown in the Arctic, Antarctic and other queer regions by plane, crossed the Atlantic by dirigible recently.

Says Sir Hubert: "From almost anywhere in the United States, a business man could spend Wednesday and Thursday, going about his business, catch the dirigible by airplane Thursday midnight, spend two business days in Europe and be at his desk the latter part of the next week."

Three airships like the Hindenburg would do the job. Later you will read, and take for granted such a statement as this: "Leave Chicago by our luxurious liners at 6 a. m., lunch and shop in Paris, dine in London that same day, returning home in time for business, next morning." Many now living will make such trips. It is a pity that this nation, possessing a monopoly of the only safe gas, helium, lacks the energy, courage, skill or enterprise to build dirigibles and make them stay up.

It ought to be done, if only as "good politics," giving the stars and stripes an airing, instead of letting the Swastika monopolize the Atlantic.

Following an old Roman custom, Mussolini is taking a census of the Ethiopians who remain. The total number is between 6,000,000 and 14,000,000. Exact figures are wanted.

The able-bodied will be put to work—plows, spades and shovels supplied by Mussolini—with Italians telling the Ethiopians where and what to dig. That need not horrify us, for it is what we have been doing in this country for a long time. It will be better for the Ethiopians than killing and selling each other into slavery.

Uncle Sam's gold system pleases criminals with stolen gold, watches, rings and other jewelry for sale. Formerly the thief went to the pawnshop, that "lent" little, or he applied to the professional "fence," receiver of stolen goods.

Now the thief takes his gold to a "gold dealer," who pays a regulation price, then turns the loot over to the Government to be buried in a hole in the ground just in case airplanes or racketeers should try to take it from us.

Accidents happen, however, and New York police hope to capture two men who robbed and strangled a merchant in the subway. The murderers sold their victim's watch and gold medal to a gold dealer who now describes them.

Foreign governments seem able to manage public ownership of important necessities. The fastest railroad trains on earth run on Government-owned railroads in France and Germany, although it is hoped that W. A. Harriman will change that. His father was a great railroad man.

The Canadian Pacific Railroad continues building a great ocean fleet. A new 42,500-ton steamer is ordered, sister to the Empress of Britain, and three other 20,000-ton ships will be built.

Our commercial navy is a jest. We got one big ship from Germany, named it Leviathan and then found we could not run it.

What is the matter with us? Can we do nothing but lay taxes to feed the idle? And when the tax well dries up what shall we do?

Hitler beats us in the air, little Canada makes us ridiculous on the ocean. The United States was not always like that.

When he gets around to it, Mussolini, who believes in appeals to the imagination, will have the Italian King crowned Emperor of Ethiopia. He hopes that Pope Pius will consent to put the imperial crown on the King's head, to make it seem more real.

A former Pope crowned another Italian, from Corsica, "Emperor of the French," or, at least, he consented to do so. At the last moment, it is said, Napoleon seized the crown and crowned himself, re-

The New Technique

By Ely Culbertson

Ely Culbertson

THE new technique of slam bidding through the use of asking bids has proved so deadly accurate that it has induced a mad scramble on the part of slam defenders to find effective interference methods. As a matter of cold fact, the asking bid system is aided rather than obstructed by opponents' attempted interference. Instead of shutting out the correct responses, opponents' bids often save a round of bidding for the side approaching the slam. I have yet to see a hand in which the defenders could have interrupted successfully the flow of information conveyed by asking bids.

South, dealer.

North:
♠Q J 10 4
♥K J 7 2
♦K Q J 7

West:
♥A 10 9 8

East:

♥6 5 3
♦A 10 8 6 5 4
♣10 9 2

South:
♠A K 9 8 6 2
♥Q 4
♦None
♣A 7 6 5 3

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 spade | Pass | 3 spades | Pass |
| 4 clubs* | Double | Redouble† | Pass |
| 4 hearts‡ | Double | Redouble§ | Pass |
| 5 clubs | Double | Redouble¶ | Pass |
| 6 spades‖ | Pass | Pass | Pass |

Explanations.

*Spades having been agreed on as the trump suit, South now makes an asking bid.

†Without West's double, North having no ace would have to sign off, at least temporarily, with four spades. The redouble, however, shows merely second round control of the asked suit.

South now knows that only one heart can be lost, but still is uncertain about the club situation. North may have the K x x. To find out, South makes a repeated asking bid in clubs, inquiring about third-round control.

‖The six spade bid now is made in almost absolute safety, as accurately as though North and South had seen each other's hands.

Obviously, the only thing that could have defeated the beautifully bid slam would have been a fantastically bad adverse lay of cards, such as an opening lead of a heart and immediate ruff. As it was, the declarer had a "cinch," winning the opening king of clubs lead with the ace, ruffing a seocnd round in dummy, ruffing a diamond into his own hand, and ruffing a third club with one of dummy's high trumps. Since the club suit broke 4-3, only one more club had to be ruffed, but even against a 5-2 division there was no danger. Without the opening lead of the heart ace, declarer, of course, could have made an overtrick, but this would have involved a slight risk and he wisely considered only his small slam contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Both sides were vulnerable, and the opening bidder bid one spade. My partner doubled. The next hand passed. I held: ♠7432 ♥KQ9652 ♦Q4 ♣6 What was my correct bid?

Answer: Three hearts, to tell partner that you had much better than a forced response.

Women Who Fret About Lost Youth

"It's as Silly to Mourn Vanished Conquest as to Cry for Lollypops."

By Elsie Robinson

SHE'S in the Fretty Forties. Having a tough time. And giving her family a tougher one.

Trouble is, she can't forget the day when she was a Village Belle and wowed The Boys. Every time she looks at her wrinkling skin, fading hair, doubling chin and tripling waist, she goes into a fresh fit of melancholy, for she remembers the peach bloom complexion she had at 18—the gazelle shape she sported at 20.

Elsie Robinson

What a beauty she was then, and how they fell for her! There was that handsome fellow from Chicago—and that dashing chap from Kansas City—

Yes, of course, John's a dear, and she couldn't do without him, but she has been married to John for 20 years—and John ceased to be a Flaming Romance at least 18 years ago! So, naturally, she's thinking how much better she might have done, how much further she might have gone, if she had married Jim or Ronald, Harry or Bill.

The more she thinks, the worse she feels—and the emptier life seems. For now that youth's glamour has gone, what—oh, what!—does life hold for an erstwhile village belle?

Looking back at the Dear Dead Days . . . thinking of the shape and skin you used to have . . . the conquests you used to make . . . believe it or not, that's still the favorite indoor sport of ladies over 40.

And when they're not doing that, they're taking it out on Friend Husband. Suspecting him of Raising the Ructions they can no longer raise themselves. Going through his pockets after he's asleep, looking for the Low Down. Busting into the office to see if he's Up To Anything with the stenographer. Raising Cain generally.

If there's any country on earth that should be free of Fretty Forties, it's the U. S. A. For the frettiness of the forties, and most of their physical ailments, arise from two simple causes—loss of romance . . . lack of other interests.

Romance to most women is what a job is to men. It is their source of pride and power—their Big Reason for existence. Which was perfectly reasonable in old Turkey, where women rated as cattle, were sold on the slave block and lost their value when their profiles slipped. But it is completely idiotic in America, where a woman may have as many interests and as much freedom as a man—and may retain her place in life as long as he does if she'll cut out the baby talk and keep on the move.

It's as silly and unnecessary for a woman over 40 to mourn for her lost youth and vanished conquests as it would be for a man to cry for his kiddie car and lollipops.

There is no American female, however poor, uneducated or obscure, who cannot develop some interest outside her home and the male sex . . . or who cannot hold her place in life as firmly and proudly in her forties as she did in her twenties.

Men—I admit, girls—are a Great Treat before 30. And Diverting Amusement until you're 100. But if you can't find anything else to think about after 40 but The Boys of Yesterday, you have the intelligence of a guinea pig and the ambition of a turnip. And deserve all the beating you get!

Here's a country that offers you every opportunity the female heart can desire to use. And what do most of you do? You sit down and have A Good Hard Cry because you can't stay 16 forever! What a lotta good it did YOU to be born free, equal and a human being!

A Newcomer's Problems of Social Usage

Invitations to Recently Acquired Friends — Proper Time for Return Card.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

SOME out of town friends asked us to go to see newcomers here, which we did and liked them very much. Until they can find a house or an apartment, they are living with an aunt and uncle of the wife, whom we also met the other day. I'd like to invite the younger people to dinner, but am not sure about the uncle and aunt, do you think it necessary, or even expected, that I ask them too?

Emily Post

Answer: If you yourselves are young, it would be quite all right to ask the younger people without the older. But if you are the age of the uncle and aunt it would be more courteous of you to include them, although not necessarily exacted.

Dear Mrs. Post: We are newcomers and were entertained by friends of friends of ours last evening at their club. When they left us at our house we both thanked them profusely, because we really had a very enjoyable evening. Am I supposed to leave our cards now? I'm really afraid this might be a very punctilious gesture in this very friendly but extremely casual town. And what is considered "within reasonable time" to give them a return invitation? I ask this because my husband left today for a business trip which will keep him away for at least three or four weeks.

Answer: Local customs differ so greatly that I think the safest thing for you to do would be to discuss the situation with the friend who introduced you to the hostess, and if she approves, ask your late hostess and your mutual friend to lunch, and at the same time explain to this hostess that your husband is away. If she left cards on you, then leave cards on her at once, but if she has not left any on you I would hesitate about leaving them on her.

Dear Mrs. Post: I've received one invitation on which are at least a half dozen persons' names. I know only one of them. The invitation really requires no written answer since it is an afternoon tea with dancing, but what in the world am I supposed to do about sending or leaving cards? Apparently this is going to be a big party and at a fashionable club, and I am not very well acquainted with the person responsible for my having been invited.

Answer: I would do nothing about it unless you yourself are giving a big general afternoon tea, in which case you would invite all six of them. Otherwise return the hospitality of the one who invited you, when opportunity offers.

Formal Frocks Emulate Styles Of Curl War

By Dorothy Roe

NEW YORK, May 16.

YOU may emulate the Civil War belle in your formal frocks for summer, if you happen to be the type and like to look demure. There's a definite air of the sashaying sixties about the evening gowns Renee Montague has designed as part of the current furore over American fashions.

A little fringed green cape such as grandmother undoubtedly wore when she stepped out with that handsome young lieutenant who fought with Gen. Lee is part of the picture made by a demure dance dress of ruffled white mousseline with a black line check. The frock has a high neckline ornamented by a big painted brooch. The waistline is slim and fitted, and the gracefully flared skirt has ruffles up and down each of its gores as well as around the bottom. The cape, of bright green woolen, is waist length and edged in deep fringe.

Another of the ante-bellum fashions is an evening gown of white net, with the lowest possible decolletage, and off-the-shoulder capelet sleeves, the whole precariously held up by white satin shoulder straps. The waistline is molded and the skirt billows in a white froth.

With it you really should carry an old-fashioned nosegay framed in paper lace and tied with ribbons.

Another one is made of navy and white diagonally striped taffeta, with a leg-o-mutton sleeved jacket to match. The jacket is of the hug-me-tight variety, buttoned snugly up to the neckline and a standing collar set off by a wine-colored chiffon scarf tied high about the throat.

The dress is cut so that the stripes meet chevron fashion at the center front of the skirt, which ripples and swishes about the ankles.

Good bacon has a pinkish tint, a thin rind and the fat is firm.

Does Poor Vocabulary Cramp You Socially?

PATHETIC, isn't it? Here's Millie throwing away her big chance. In the midst of the set she'd like to travel with—mangling her speech so that she'll never be asked again.

Her worst fault is slurring syllables together. She says "AKerit" "accurate" and 'GUV-a-munt" for "government." She usese "hite-th" for "height," "progrum" for "program," and "colyum" for "column." She turns "hors d'oeuvres" into "hors DOOVS." The right pronunciation is "aw DERVR." And she says "acrost" for "across."

It's easier to spot your defects if you see them listed in black and white. Our 32-page booklet on improving your vocabulary lists common grammatical errors, pretentious phrases and objectionable slang. It gives you fresh words to use in their place.

It's Modish To "Dress Up" On the Beach

By Adelaide Kerr.

NEW YORK, May 16.

WHEN smart young America goes to the beach this summer, it will cover up more skin than last year and "dress up" more than ever before. The 1936 suits for swimming and lounging blaze an independent trail.

Gone are the nudist effects achieved by a bandanna around the bust, another about the hips, and a wide expanse of epidermis in between. Most of the suits have a bare sun-tan back cut out to the waistline, but they are "all there" in front and are not too abbreviated as to trunks.

They follow a "dress up" trend which is both new and smart. The days when Mademoiselle put on any convenient bathing suit and headed for the water are no more. The 1936 idea is to "dress" for the beach in a suit which shows off its wearer to the best advantage. Suit, figure and face unite to achieve the desirable allure.

Rich cravat silks, bright flowered challis, soft figured rayons and gay pebbled cottons are used to make the new suits, cut with short, fairly full trunks or designed as a maillot topped by a brief skirt. Tops fit the figure in front and are often bare to the waist in the back. Some of the suits are made over thin wool material to give them weight.

Slacks are shown in great numbers for lounging hours on sunny sands. They sometimes appear with cuffed trouser hems and tailored tuck-in shirt tops—all made of navy shantung or one of the crisp new canvas-like rayons in white, beige or yellow. Culotte (divided skirt) beach frocks of linen and shantung also are much in favor.

Close fitting rubber turban caps, rope and raffia sandals and canvas pouch beach bags comprise the rest of the beach paraphernalia.

Care in Shampoo.

In beauty shops throughout the land thousands of feminine heads go through the wet-wash every day. Thousands more are plunked into the washbowl at home, or bent over the bathtub for a soaping. If soap is not thoroughly rinsed away, dead scalp scales and dusty deposits remain. The hurried woman who rushes into a pulchritude parlor, expects a trim, shampoo and wave in practically no time at all, is doing herself an injustice. The shampoo that is speeded up like a bicycle race cannot be competently done. The vinegar rinse—three tablespoonfuls to a bowlful of water—makes the shampoo more thorough, but it won't do for thin silky hair that has had a permanent. It should be rinsed away. If hair is blond, use lemon juice instead. It imparts golden lights.

An Arm Bleach

One way to treat elbows that have gone gray—the skin is of course texture there and is easily discolored—is to lave with a mild bleaching lotion made by combining two ounces of witch hazel and two ounces of peroxide.

After the facial creaming at night, hands, wrists and elbows should get the leavings of the cosmetics feast. As the neck is usually darker than the epidermal coating of the face it should have a bleaching now and then. The formula offered for elbows will serve.

Clothes Wringing

Fold clothes carefully before putting them through the wringer. If put through in bunches the clothes are apt to be torn and the strain on the wringer soon tells on the springs, frequently causing breakage.

IT'S A QUEER WORLD

--o--

By VIRGINIA IRWIN

PEDIGREED pooches with Park Avenue connections get a lot of service when they go a-sailing on the Isle-de-France. For instance, there's the little matter of the dog-menu, from which Madame orders her pet's meal. No scraps or table leavings. The pampered darling gets something like La Potee de Bouky, which is consomme, toast and potatoes, or Les "Amuse-Gueule" du Schnauzer, fancy term for a dish of assorted bones on which the coddled canine can exercise his jaws. Talk about leading a dog's life! . . . And speaking of food—this time for humans—did you know that the latest use of the X-ray is to discover internal bruises in hams? . . . In the United States when someone dies, he doesn't have much say about what kind of an outfit he will be dressed in for the funeral, but in China when someone is seriously ill, his grave clothes are made to order and submitted for his approval. . . . If you ever decide to acquire a penguin for a pet, better get a mate for it right at the outset, because penguins are very gregarious and unless company is provided, will die of loneliness. . . The U. S. Customs authorities are still blushing about the boner they pulled in 1933 when they confiscated photographic reproductions of Michelangelo's paintings on the Sistine Chapel ceiling and held them for six months as "obscene photo books." They'd like to forget it, but somebody's always writing an article on censorship and thanking the Customs authorities for providing the biggest laugh. . . .

I've depended on encyclopedias a lot of times for a lot of things, but my faith is somewhat shaken since reading that "about 6000 articles in the latest edition of the British Encyclopedia, were written by Bernard Chaucer, Ph. D., a former lecturer in archeology at the University of London, England, and for the past 30 years an inmate of the Broadmoor lunatic asylum." It seems that Mr. Chaucer managed to get himself into the nuthatch by shooting up a roomful of students one day during a lecture. . . . Perhaps you've heard of the New York association organized to reform the calendar. They're pushing the "World Calendar," every year the same, but they've missed, I think, their best talking point. Under the new scheme Christmas would always fall on a Monday, giving us a 2½-day vacation—Saturday afternoon, Sunday and Monday. And who wouldn't vote for that? . . . Once you're famous, people like to real about almost everything you do, whereas when you're just another guy nobody gives a particular whoop. For instance, I can touch the floor without bending my knees and who cares? Mrs. Roosevelt does the same thing and it's news. . . . It took Carl J. Warden, psychologist at Columbia University, to discover what to do about the worn place in the carpet. From his study of eye movements he determined that we look left first, so "if you have a room where the door opens almost in the center, and if you want your guests to see a new chair or piece of bric-a-brac of which you are particularly proud, place it on their left as they enter. But if there is a worn place in the rug, put that on the right side." . . .

My favorite story of the week concerns the old misanthrope who contributed the following to a conversation about marriage: "Yes, marriage. There are indeed some men who marry for money, but the great majority of them have no excuse at all." . . . And for this week the following facts are suggested as additions to your store of useless knowledge: Dumas wrote his novels only on blue paper; for poetry, he chose yellow. . . . Adolph Hitler once received a flock of black ducks from one of his admirers and another Nazi enthusiast presented him with a streamlined locomotive. . . . There is a man in Hollywood who does nothing but throw pies, tomatoes, etc.; he gets $25 a throw for tossing pies around in the custard comics. . . . Napoleon was two hours late for his wedding to Josephine. . . . A loaf of bread is taxed at least 52 times before it reaches your table. . . . And there are more than 20 expressions for "rain" in the Japanese language.

IF YOU ASK My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answers all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

JUST a few lines to "Rita"—sometimes one's experience is a lesson to others, and sometimes NOT. Some make a success in the same conditions in which others fail.

So, "Rita," if you are in love with him, age shouldn't matter—take the chance. You might be sorry—you might be happy; but at least you'll find out. It is your life. Isn't the man worth taking the chance? This is just the chance I am going to take.

B. A.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

IN your column we saw an answer to our letter and we didn't like it.

What if our "dates" are just passers-by—did we say anything about getting serious?

"Regular Reader" says he is 22 and has been around quite a bit. It's no wonder he wants to settle down; but no one with real ideas of life would have him. Furthermore, if he has anything more to say, he can just remember that we would be more than pleased to hear him voice his opinion again.

THREE REDHEADS.

Dear Friend:

I AM writing you to let you know how much I appreciate your kindness in telling a dear lady in Kirkwood about me. On Friday, May 1, this kind friend, who does not wish you to publish her name, but wanted you to know that she had been to see me, came. She has cheered me up so much and my father, too. She brought her son and her mother and we did have such a nice visit. The best of all being that she promised to come many times again. She was the first to come to see me.

Someone else has helped me through you by sending things to me, but as there was no name, will you please thank them through your column.

Thanking you sincerely, your friend,

FANNIE W.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WOULD you please print this in your column? Any Jewish girls between the ages of 16 and 18 who wish to join a social club, please call PArkview 3451M.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

NEITHER did I like spinach, so am sending my way of preparing and cooking it, in answer to "R. K." in last night's column. Steam and cook spinach in a small amount of water, in fact until most of the water is cooked down, as cooking in much water and then draining takes the strength and important elements out of it.

After draining, dice pork or bacon and fry, but not too crisp (much or little bacon as you like). Add to spinach a sliced onion or several small green young onions, add the cooked meat and enough of the drippings to season. Pour over all a can of tomato pulp, salt and pepper to taste, cover and place over a low fire to simmer until onions are well done. Stir occasionally, serve hot, and you will not know you are eating spinach. Wild greens added to spinach gives a stronger flavor.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

READ your column daily and enjoy it very much. I am interested in dancing and would like to know if there is a place in St. Louis which teaches ballroom dancing for a small amount.

G. G.

You will find the addresses of dancing teachers in the classified section of the telephone book. Ballroom dancing is taught, also, at some of the girls' clubs here. But I believe that many of these clubs have closed their classes for the summer.

Dear Martha Carr:

WONDER if you could tell me where to inquire about mines or minerals? I believe there is a department in Washington which takes care of this, but I don't know where to write.

MRS. G.

Write to the United States Bureau of Mines, Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C. You can write, also, to the Missouri State School of Mines, Rolla, Mo. I suggest that "M. D. W." ask about her meteor" at the same sources.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

TO the man who signed himself "Mark Anthony" I will say that his problem seems to be superiority or fancied superiority, which he should try to forget. I believe real greatness or superiority is not so much stressed by superiors. My suggestion would be that he meet the exaggerated nuisance he mentions on an equal platform. I find most people respond to sincerity and frankness. Surely this man has some decent, human traits.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

WOULD like to have the name and address of "Ranch Girl" who wanted two or three girls to go with her to a Western ranch. I would like very much to get in touch with her.

Thank you in advance, Mrs. Carr.

M. E. B.

If "Ranch Girl" will write me, giving her name and address, I shall be very glad to mail her a half dozen letters I have had sent to her in my care.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a boy 14 years of age. I am frequently bothered with blackheads. No matter what I do, I cannot get rid of them. Have you any information on this?

WANT TO KNOW.

Sometimes the indifference to the nightly ablution brings about these skin troubles; boys your age are none too careful about this. Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope if you wish my suggestions about it.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

CAN you tell me where the schools of elocution secure the pieces they teach their pupils? I have been writing poetry for some time and, if it were possible, I would like to sell some of them for recitations, at a reasonable price.

A. WRITER.

There are collections of these poems and articles, which likely, you can find at the libraries and book stores. In this way you can look up publishers of these books and might write them offering your work for sale. If you have some you think might be suitable, send a collection of them to such publishers.

Anecdotes of New Yorkers And New York

By George Tucker

NEW YORK, May 16.

JUST when one thinks the town has gone as crazy as possible along comes—Mogul!

Mogul is a suave youth who sits in an alcove on the stairway leading to the cocktail lounge at the French Casino, midway between the lobby bar and Russell Patterson's sophisticated marionettes. This announcement you are cautioned to take seriously, for Mogul is a mind-reader, which should be a warning to those who go there with thoughts that can't be quoted in polite society.

There's nothing vague to Mogul's answers—you just write out a question and burn it, and then, with disturbing accuracy, he tells you your question and answers it. It's the uncanny accuracy and detail of his answers that make you wonder whether you've imbibed too many beers.

Suggestion: See Mogul before you tackle the wine steward. Then you'll KNOW it isn't the champagne!

THE fable of the rich young man who named his yacht after a hotel because of the origin of its linen and silver could easily be duplicated in the case of S. Gregory Taylor—except for one factor. Taylor's yacht, D'Artagnan, has plenty of linen and silver of its own—a fact that causes knowing looks when one occasionally spies a napkin or a tablecloth bearing the insignia of the hotel St. Moritz. But don't let that disturb you—it's all on the level. Not only is Taylor master of D'Artagnan—he's also boss of the hotel!

Then there's an almost unbelievable story one hears in the nightclubs—the one about that slender dancer who is cheered every night by capacity audiences at the Hollywood restaurant. She can neither hear nor speak. How does she follow the swirling currents of Nick Lucas' rhythmic music? Like this: through each number intrudes the barbaric thump of tom-toms, and the vibrations are sufficient to keep her talented, twinkling feet from straying from the rhythm lanes. They guide her as a radio beam holds a plane to its course.

SOMETIMES magazine editors have difficult letters to answer—as in the case of this note from a mother who is ambitious for her cub:

"He is good writer and in seventh grade at school. Can let him work for you $25 month or $100 for contract of year. Would send sample of his work only they in pencil and are mainly themes for school class. You find my boy big help because he never sick and can work every day."

After a courteous, personal answer, in which he suggested that the lad pursue his studies until he got through high school, if not college, his mamma wrote back.

"High school and college not necessary for my boy, as he is going to skip them just like he skip 3A grade in grammer school."

But the editor didn't have an answer for that one. He tossed it towards his secretary and fled into Canada for a six weeks' vacation.

Precautions For Children Sun-Bathing

Physician Should Be Consulted—Dangers of Over-Exposure.

By Angelo Patri

Angelo Patri

NOW that the sun rises higher and shines upon us longer, sunbathing is general. A word of caution may not be amiss. Be very careful about exposing yourself to the sun's rays the first few times. Begin with a few minutes' exposure. Sensitive skins, having been covered for many months, burn easily, and it is not good to burn the skin. So much for the older sunbathers.

Children have to be carefully managed during the sun-bathing season lest their skins be burned and sickness result. I would never expose a baby to full sun without his physician's directions. It is not safe. Consult the physician and he will tell you at what hours, in what situations, and for what periods of time the child's sun-bath should be given. All these points are important, and as they vary with the weather, the location and the child, consultation with the physician is only good sense.

Little runabouts should be carefully seasoned to the sun and air, a little at a time. The first exposures should be allowed only after the child has been out in the air fully dressed for some weeks of play. It is unwise to let a little one strip to his skin and expose himself the very first day he feels like enjoying the sunshine on his skin. Let him wear a gauzy shirt until he becomes a bit accustomed to the weather and the sunshine. If he is at all delicate, or has any skin trouble, consult the physician about his baths and settle his schedule with the doctor's help.

There ought to be a time limit on sunbaths. It is just as bad to allow a child to bathe in the sun for hours as it is for him to lie in a tub for hours. Find just what length of time seems best for him, get the doctor's advice, and then hold to the schedule. It is a mistake to believe that it is natural and safe for a child to run naked in the open sunshine because the sun is a natural force. The two do not hang together. Our children are not children of nature in that sense. Their rearing has been artificial and must continue to be so.

Boys and girls who go to summer camp should know enough to protect themselves against severe sunburn, but some of them do not. I saw a group of children freshly arrived from the city, run to their cabinus, shed their clothing, and, dressed only in a pair of shorts, lie down in a row on the hillside to get a coat of tan. "Oh, no. It is good for us. We want to be the brownest this year. No, it doesn't make us sick."

But it did. Before the counselor could be found to rescue them they were badly burned, so badly that one of them was in bed for 10 days. That sort of thing is silly. And it is dangerous. Children old enough to go to camp ought to know the risks they run in such exposures, and not make themselves ill. Counselors cannot be everywhere at all times. They have to depend upon the youngsters to exercise a little common sense.

The whole question calls for that. Good sense will prevent bad burns, sun sickness and injured skin, by avoiding exposures that are untimely or ill-advised. The doctor's advice will prevent still other bad results. It is better to be safe than sorry.

WHITE Bengaline Dutch caps are particularly alluring for brunettes and the darker redheads, but we gals who make up the greater population would better choose one of the other models.

A TOQUE made entirely of rose leaves in natural green shade, with soft red overtones, is both flattering and fascinating. A brown veil stiffened into a brim provides the finishing touch for this charming chapeau.

THE Renoir toque has a trim of love-birds. The natural plumage of one is pure white; the other, a mixture of white, gray and powder blue. Though at first the bird motif may seem ultra-ultra, one look at the smartness of the hat will dispel that illusion. Gangway for the small hats!

marking that as he had won the crown he personally would put it on. That, however, seems unlike Napoleon, a wise ruler until his health left him.

Those supposed to interpret Vatican wisdom do not believe the Pope would oblige Mussolini if it should mean antagonizing the whole League of Nations. Mussolini probably would wait. In another year, the League may be worrying about something else.

Where you see powder and a burning match nearby you may hear an explosion. Another such match, near powder, has just been lighted, in Austria. Schuschnigg, real boss of Austria, backed by a peasant leader, has kicked out the princely Von Starhemberg, who runs to Mussolini for sympathy and perhaps help.

He gets neither, just now, Mussolini being busy in Ethiopia, Geneva and at home. But Italy and Germany are both deeply interested in Austria, pitiful remnant of a once great empire, and the burning match and powder are there. Also there is a remnant of the imperial Hapsburg family with his picture in the papers. A pretender makes the situation more complicated.

Browned Flour

If your family is fond of gravies and sauces made of browned flour, it is well to keep some on hand. It can be browned readily by spreading thinly on a plate and placing in a moderate oven, stirring until the flour is brown. It should then be put in a mason jar and the top screwed on tightly.

Tests Show Benzoate Is Not Harmful

However, It Is No Longer Used to Preserve Foods—Heat Method.

By
Logan Clendening, M. D.

IN THE OLD days we used to hear a great deal about sodium benzoate. There never was very much to the sodium benzoate scare, anyway. As far back as 1909 the United States Government appointed a board to conduct a series of tests on human volunteers as to the effect of sodium benzoate. Three university laboratories participated, and the tests covered a period of four months. They resulted in Food Inspection Decition, No. 104, which concluded that benzoate was harmless.

Dr. Clendening

A number of food products, such as cranberries, green gages and prunes have a natural benzoate content, and cranberries have been recommended as an aid to digestion. The health value of prunes is too well known to need comment.

No Preservatives.

However, whether they do harm or not is beside the point, because modern preservative methods in commercial canning use no preservatives whatever. Spoilage of foods is caused by the growth of yeasts and moulds and bacteria. These can live on a food only so long as conditions for their existence remain favorable. Methods of food preservation aim to render factors in the food environment unfavorable for the growth or development of spoilage organisms. Three factors especially determine the proper conditions for the growth of spoilage organisms in food, to-wit: temperature, moisture and reaction. Dried foods, therefore, do not spoil as readily as moist foods. Certain fermented foods are kept sterile because of the development of the high acidity.

Canned foods are preserved because the manufacturers take advantage of the temperature factor. In the preparation of foods in the process of canning, they are subjected to high temperatures under vacuum (which preserves the vitamins). The most resistant spoilage organisms are destroyed at these levels. The food is immediately put in hermetically sealed containers, and this sealing protects it from further infection and spoilage. In fact, canned goods are usually better protected than most fresh foods.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS:

A. D. C.: "What is the cause and cure for glaucoma? Is it easily detectable by any eye specialist?"

Answer: Glaucoma is an eye disease occurring in middle aged and elderly people, in which the pressure in the eyeball is increased, due to imperfect circulation of the lymphatic fluid in the eye spaces. It is well known, not only to all eye specialists, but to all physicians, and can be cured, although the time for treatment and the selection of treatment is very important and should be decided by the specialist.

Is garlic, in any form, of any value as an intestinal antiseptic or for stomach or intestinal disorders? Would garlic be an irritant to the mucous membrane of the gastro-intestinal tract? Would garlic definitely lower blood pressure and if so, would it be contra-indicated in a low blood pressure case?"

Answer: Garlic was formerly used for the treatment of blood pressure but given up because it seemed to have no action. Much has been claimed for it as a stomachic and stimulant to digestion, but these properties are probably ascribed to it on account of the odor. It has no irritating properties.

LESSON IN LOVE -o- A Serial Story -o- By EMILY GRISWOLD

Rita Is so Overcome by Elliot's Actions That a Near Tragedy Results—A Hunt for the Missing Cause.

CHAPTER SEVEN.

UNCONSCIOUSLY Fay's hand went to her throat. "Captain, you don't think——?"

He interrupted her. "You know the sort of girl Rita is—moody, impulsive. When she heard Elliot had gone to the city with his friends she seemed to——fade. I'm afraid; she seemed desperate. I thought, Fay, maybe you could cheer her."

"Of course." She led the way across the lawn, with Brant and the Captain striding along beside her. Where the gravel drive met the lawn, Brant reached out a sudden hand and grasped Fay's shoulder.

"Wait!"

Abruptly they stopped, and Fay strained her ears to identify a sound that came from somewhere off in the darkness. She started at Brant's exclamation. Then she was running after him and the Captain, stumbling up the broad stone steps of the mansion and into the library—to stop, aghast, at the tableau that sprang before her eyes.

Mark Haverstrom was standing just inside the door, his mouth half-open in a soundless cry, one hand outstretched and grasping the shoulder of Brant, who was kneeling on the floor beside a white-clad woman's figure.

"Rita!" The name was torn from Fay's lips on a great sobbing sigh.

"What's wrong?" It was the Captain's voice, strained and tense.

Anxiously, Fay dropped to her knees beside Brant, staring down at Rita's pallid, loose-lipped face. The girl's eyes were open and moving wildly; she tried to speak, but her voice died in a choked gasp. Then Brant snatched something from the floor, and held it up with a low cry.

"Mark! What's this? Where did she?"——

"The poisoned dart!" Haverstrom reached for it, examined it closely. "She's stabbed herself, Brant! Look, the tip's broken off—the tip with the poison on it!"

Fay and Brant saw the wound at the same time, a small, discolored spot on her left arm. Brant leaped to his feet and whipped out a handkerchief. He pressed it into Haverstrom's hand.

"Tourniquet!" he shouted. "On her arm above the wound. I'm going for my kit." And he dashed out of the room.

Together Fay and the Captain carried Rita to a couch by the door; the girl's eyes had closed and her breath was coming in shuddering gasps. Haverstrom wrapped the handkerchief around her arm above the elbow, tied the ends, then took a pencil from his pocket, and thrust it through the loop of the handkerchief and twisted — twisted—until the arm below the elbow grew white and limp. Then Brant was back in the room.

"Better turn your head away," he grunted to Fay. "I'll need some hot water and a towel." He waved toward the rear of the house.

She found the kitchen and snatched a pan from a cupboard above the sink. It seemed hours before the water ran hot enough to suit her feverishly testing finger. There was a towel, hanging from a rack beside the sink.

When she returned Brant was alone. "Captain's phoning the hospital," he snapped.

She saw that he had made a criss-cross incision over the wound, and was applying some purplish fluid out of a little bottle he'd taken from an open brown canvas kit lying on the floor. She gave him the moistened towel.

> SYNOPSIS:
> Fay Lombard is visiting her wealthy Aunt Marie in New York. Marie has promised Fay $25,000 if she will marry no one of whom her aunt disapproves and any suitor to be eligible must have a fortune. Fay has met Elliot Winters, handsome young playboy; Rita Harrington, who is in love with Elliot; Capt. Mark Haverstrom, distinguished middle-aged business man, who is now her host, and Brant Fowler, who works for Haverstrom. She is strangely attracted to Brant, who is "poor as a church mouse," as Haverstrom said. Elliot has gone to a party in New York and Haverstrom is worried about Rita.

From a decanter on the table he took a small glass of whisky, and Fay held Rita's head while he forced it through her lips. Her breathing was still alarmingly slow and loud. When Fay had carefully let the girl's head down again Brant picked up the purple bottle for another application.

"RUN ask Haverstrom where he got that dart," he said suddenly. "Hurry!"

Without stopping to ask why, Fay ran to the door. Outside in the hall she could hear the captain's hoarse voice:

"Yes, this is Capt. Haverstrom speaking. Hurry, will you?"

He was just replacing the phone when she ran up. "Brant wants to know where the dart came from," she panted. She watched him whip-pin along his speeding thoughts, murmuring an inarticulate little prayer the while: "Oh, God! Don't let her die!"

"Trinidad!" he shouted suddenly. "That buck Indian———"

He broke off and rushed back to the library.

"Well?" Brant looked up at their entrance.

"Probably," Brant was reaching into the kit again for a hypodermic needle and another fluid. "We'll have to take a chance with this, anyhow."

He was filling the needle with the fluid from a tightly capped jar.

"What is it?" Fay asked the captain breathlessly.

"Antivenine for snakebite; specifically, for the bite of the fer-de-lance. The poison's terribly dangerous."

Fay watched as the needle sank into the girl's arm; Rita's breathing was weak; painful; her mouth was set in a pathetic pout as she struggled for air. Then Brant stood up, still watching her face.

"That's all we can do until the ambulance comes."

The next 10 minutes dragged by on leaden feet for the girl and the two men whose eyes were fixed on Rita's suffering countenance. Once Brant rose from his chair, loosened the tourniquet for a moment, then tightened it again. Fay's glance drifted against her will to the wound on Rita's arm—swollen and ugly, discolored by the purple fluid Brant had poured into it.

"That medicine," she whispered to him, "what was it?"

That was the only time Brant had spoke in those dreadful 10 minutes. For the rest, he sat hunched forward on the edge of his chair, his face bleak with anger and his hands interlocking and straining at each other. Fay wondered what it was that made him so intent; as though there was murder in his heart; bitter murder.

HE was the first to hear the distant wail of the ambulance siren, and he was leading two white-suited men into the room almost before Fay and the captain were out of their chairs.

"Yes, snake-bite!" he was snapping. "Fer-de-lance, I said. I know it's a tropical snake! Here." He showed them the broken blowgun dart, and explained in two sentences what had happened.

Haverstrom snatched a hat and topcoat from a closet in the hall as they bore the stretcher out. "I'll ride to the hospital," he said.

"She's got to have the best of care, and I'll see to it that she does."

He looked at Fay expectantly, but before she could volunteer to go with him, Brant interposed.

"I'd like Fay—Miss Lombard — to go with me, Mark," he said quietly.

"Why? Where?" The captain turned back irritatedly.

"I'm going to the city and find that vanished boy friend of hers, Elliot Winters, and when I do—!" The veins stood out over his clenched jaw. "This is his fault. I want to tell him so."

"What good will that do?" Haverstrom snorted, but Fay turned to him.

"She'll want to see him," she said. "And I think—he'll want to know."

"Very well. Bring him to the hospital." Haverstrom wheeled and strode out of the room.

They telephoned the Winters' house, and a maddeningly composed servant informed them that "Elliot went to the residence of a Mr. Lane, Mr. Jack Lane, on 72d street. I heard them speaking about it," he added.

Brant set down the phone and turned to Fay, with an abrupt, "Let's go!"

The robin's-egg blue roadster had exhaust pipes protruding like giant chromium worms from its hood, and they flashed red fire through the night as Brant held the accelerator down. Seventy—75; they were zooming through sleepy towns where strollers stood open-mouthed beneath yellow arc lamps; twice they outdistanced shrilling motorcycles, and only when they were finally forced to slow their speed in the outskirts of Brooklyn did Brant's face relax. He turned to Fay.

"I'm a damn fool," he apologized. "Must have scared your wits out." He laughed bitterly. "Afraid I'm not good company when I'm hot-headed."

Fay didn't answer. Throughout the ride she had been watching with awe his scowling face, marveling at the power, the strength in the line of his jaw and in the shoulders that tensed from time to time, cuddling the roadster around a curve without losing speed.

THEN they were on Manhattan Bridge, with the East River flowing sullen and murky below, floating on its vague bosom a long gray barge and a deliriously blowing tug. Fay voiced a dread that had been haunting her.

"Brant—will she live?"

He scowled, started to say something, then paused. "She will live, yes, if that dart had fer-de-lance poison on it. Antivenine is good only for specific bites; there isn't any general antivenine for all snake bites. Besides," he forced a cheerfulness into his voice, "doctors know a lot about such things. Maybe there's a new cure."

When they were skimming along the midtown cross street he spoke again.

"I must have been acting like a madman." His laugh was low now, his voice composed. "Funny, though; I've always been this way. About the only thing I can't pass off with a fatherly smile is a rotten trick like the one this Elliot Winters has been pulling."

"Being down under—back where nature is rawest—a man sees things in a different light, I guess. One thing, he sees how much a good woman means. You rub shoulders with the lowest kind of white trash—men and women both; seeing a good, pure woman again's like seeing an angel. Then to have a whelp like that——!" His jaws snapped shut, his mouth became a grim line.

"But, Brant," Fay objected, "Elliot didn't know . . ."

"Well, he should have!" Then his mouth relaxed into a smile again. "Suppose I am being too hard on the kid. But I'm not going to let down when I find him; this is a night he's going to remember!"

They found the address on Seventy-second, a lofty apartment hotel, and Brant led the way into a drug store to call the hospital before he sought out Elliot. They got Capt. Haverstrom on the wire.

"She'll live," he told them. "It was fer-de-lance. And a good thing!"

"Fine. I'll bring the culprit immediately."

The desk gave them the number of Jack Lane's suite, and Fay followed Brant to the elevators.

"Far as you go," he told her. He reached out and took her by both elbows, while the elevator boy hemmed suggestively from his car. "I don't want you to be there if there's a row."

"But I want to help!" Rita protested. "And I—I'm afraid. There's probably a big crowd up there, and you——"

His hands tightened over her elbows; a puckish glint came into his eyes; and their corners wrinkled with his grin.

"Then I'll take this for good luck," he said. His arms went around her waist and his lips came suddenly down to meet hers—pressed, while her eyelids fluttered with some unknown ecstasy—then he was gone.

Fay stood, her fingers caressing her lips. Someone snickered softly beside her, and she turned to see a suddenly sober-faced bellboy. She looked at him bewilderedly for a moment—then smiled.

American Youth Takes Up Arms Against War

By the Rev. J. F. Newton

ROBERT SHERWOOD has a new play called "Idiot's Delight,"—the idiot being a moronic spirit of evil which stirs up strife and makes wars on earth for the amusement of his lonely hours.

Of course, wars are not made by any crafty evil spirit using men as pawns in a game, but by men using other men for their own ends. But it is well to have art hold war up to scorn.

At the same time, a group of students at Princeton have organized "The Veterans of Future Wars," and have issued a manifesto asking for a bonus, which they say is entirely in keeping with our ideals.

It is inevitable, they say, that there will be another war within the next 30 years, and that every man of military age will have a part in it. Everything is taking shape to that plain end.

Therefore, they demand a bonus to be payable the first of June, 1965, and since it is customary that bonuses be paid before they are due, they insist that it be paid now, with compound interest.

"It is but common right," they add, "that this bonus be paid now, for many will be killed or wounded in the next war, and hence they, the most deserving, will not otherwise get the full benefit of it."

Not to be outdone in the campaign of irony, the girls of Vassar have formed an "association of gold-star mothers of veterans of future wars," and insist on immediate trips to Europe to visit the graves of their future sons. Chapters are being formed in other colleges.

Thus art and humor are being mobilized against war, pouring scalding satire upon the absurdity of settling disputes by slaughter. Youth is right; war is worse than wicked—it is sheer stupidity.

To send men into the shambles in behalf of territory and trade is the acme of idiocy. No wonder clear-eyed youth hold the whole war-system up to ridicule—if only it can laugh it off the earth!

At any rate, these young people will not be duped by "the dream those drummers make" when the bugles blow for the next war!

For Tuesday, May 19.

TILL Friday excellent for improvements in finances; think, judge, make decisions—they will be as good as you've got; if not perfect, work harder at knowing more. Today: good for travel, social and creative efforts.

A Great Principle.

There is a great astrological principle behind the effect of environment, both physical and personal surroundings, on man. It is as important in its department of life as the principle of gravity is in its department of our affairs. This is the law of proportion. Beauty is part of it. Music is part of it. Measuring, weighing and comparing belong to it also. Get acquainted with it.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead from your birthday today is better occupationally, especially from Feb. 27, and in regard to new opportunities. General expansion possible from then on. Danger: now-June 20; Sept. 15-Oct. 31; Feb. 15-Sept. 25.

Crow Talks of His Mischievousness With Willy Nilly

By Mary Graham Bonner

"WELL," said Willy Nilly, "I am a little man without more backbone than a dandelion when it has gone to seed. If I don't finish my chores and get at my pointed, sticking-out ears.

"Top Notch is off making calls on all his friends and I think it would really be a good idea if the rest of you took little trips and had some fun."

"You want me to go away for a while so I won't get into mischief around here," cawed Christopher Columbus Crow. "But I may," he added to himself, "get into mischief while I'm off."

Willy Nilly evidently knew what Christopher had in his crow mind for he said, looking at the crow:

"And be good while you're away, too."

"I'll certainly try," agreed Christopher, "but as I always say, 'What is life without a touch of mischief?'"

"You don't want to get rid of us, do you?" asked Rip, the dog, looking at Willy Nilly out of his soft, pleading eyes.

"I should say not," Willy Nilly replied. "I merely thought I could work more quickly if I were alone."

"Don't you want any help?" asked Sweet Face, the lamb.

"No, thanks," Willy Nilly answered, and Christopher winked one of his bright crow eyes and said:

"You made quite sure he didn't, before you offered your services."

"That's better than not offering to help at all, baa, baa," bleated Sweet Face, as he went off to lie in his meadow and think sweet lamb thoughts.

1. —As John Morris Dorsey points out in "The Foundations of Human Nature," after a psychologist has developed a good general picture of a person's personality and shows him his real traits, he usually gets what psychologists call "the analytic shock." He says in surprise, "Why, I never dreamed I was like that." Most people know very little about their real selves.

2. —In a paper entitled, "Where are the Marriageable Men?" Dr. Paul Popenoe, noted authority on marriage, says "After 35 it is probable there are—statistically speaking—very few men who have never married and who are yet worth marrying. The single males of 35 and up comprise a preponderance of mental and physical defectives, homosexuals, incompetents and derelicts, of men who have been prevented from marriage by venereal or other diseases, or whose outlook is so warped, infantile or egocentric that even the most optimistic maiden, willing to marry a man to reform him, would recognize this particular job as hopeless. I have yet to find a person who could not count on the fingers of one hand all the single men of his acquaintance, over 35 years of age, who are really good prospective husbands from every point of view." Dr. Popenoe is speaking of averages and this prominent man may be the rare exception that makes the rule, but, girls, better given even him more than a once over.

3. —He is bluffing. True, one may not care much for what the person he is speaking to thinks of him, but he is persisting in what he is doing because he does want to win the approval of somebody somewhere. We all want deeply to get along with other people. It is the deepest desire within us. And you can do it if you go at it scientifically, with definite psychological rules of procedure.

Out of Tune

By E. J. Hirsch

JACK had nosed the canoe into the bank and now sat gazing out at the restless lake, all green and silver in the moonlight out from shore.

"Beautiful!" he murmured. "I hate to think of leaving."

His words were cold fingers around Sheila's heart, tearing at the beauty his presence had instilled there. But she must make her voice pleasant; she must not make his going hard.

"Oh, you'll forget it all soon enough—our lake, our woods, even us. You'll go back to the city, back to your selling and buying, and not give us a thought until your vacation next year."

"Sheila, you're more than just a vacation friend! Lord knows I thought of you often enough during this last year. I hoped you hadn't changed; and you haven't." His smile was charming.

"But all this"—she waved her hand to include the golden platter of the lake, the blue dome of the sky, the dark-tufted trees between —"all this is foreign to you, Jack. You may not think so now," as he began to voice a protest, "but it is. You're ambitious. You want to wrest things from life. Here we take what life offers and are grateful."

"Ambitious?" he mused. "It's normal to want money, isn't it?"

His low, boyish chuckle seemed an echo of the little brook that purled over its pebbles somewhere in the darkness behind her.

Strange that she knew Jack better than he knew himself. "Money is part of it, perhaps. But it's the struggle, really. Even if you had a fortune you'd still love the thrill of outwitting someone and carrying off the—spoils."

"Naturally I wouldn't want to go to seed. Money is just a symbol of work. When a man stops making money that's proof that he's grown lazy—mentally ossified.

"Oh, I'll admit your dad is an intelligent man, but—"

"He hasn't much money, therefore he isn't a success," she finished for him. But let's not quarrel." Why had she mentioned her father? Couldn't they make this last night together a peaceful one?

"It's late," she murmured. "You'll have to get the early train . . ."

At the mention of leaving he leaned forward, speaking impassionedly. "Sheila, you didn't mean what you said last night! You will go back with me, won't you?" His voice was husky. "I love you, Sheila. I want you for my wife."

Careful! Her voice must not betray her. "No, Jack. I did mean it. We would never be happy—I know!" If the smile she forced belied her moist eyes he didn't seem to notice. "I should give our marriage about a year. For that long we might be happy—" Happy! So exquisitely happy! "But my marriage must be a permanent thing. You'd forget me too easily, Jack."

"Sheila!" he implored. "I've told you there will never be another woman. . . ."

"Not another woman. Only your work. I'd become a fixture around the house, like your stock reports or your brief case. Jack, I must have peace, not the turmoil you're used to."

She leaned back, staring at the dark water under the keel of the canoe.

"Father once led a life like the one you plan; nothing but work day in and day out — often into the night. Mother has told me about it —how desperately lonely she was. But father's health broke down. He was wise enough to see how foolish he was being. He came here and learned how to live; how to be happy."

"But, Sheila!" he protested, "your father could take his work with him. An author can do that, you know; a salesman can't."

"Snavely offered you a job here."

"Oh, that! Wholesale groceries!" His contempt stifled her arguments. Why argue? Of course Jack could make a fine living with Snavely, but——

"You see? There isn't enough excitement there. You'll never learn to enjoy life, Jack. You're always working for tomorrow and forgetting that tomorrow is never any more important than today."

"I don't understand."

* * *

"WHY——" she paused. "When you stepped down from the train four weeks ago you looked like a walking ghost. That's what your city and your work does for you. It's so foolish! Here no one ever has a nervous breakdown. What good is your work if it makes you forget how to live?"

He seemed at a loss for an answer.

"I couldn't stand such an existence," she said flatly. "I'd be unhappy, because I'd know that for every day's salary you'd wasted a day's happiness. I couldn't make my marriage a commercial arrangement, Jack. I need leisure, peace; these woods, a flower garden. You can't have all that in the city."

"Leisure, peace——" Jack seemed to be studying. "Say!" he almost shouted it, "that is an idea!" His eyes shone with animation.

"Listen, Sheila, you're right, of course, about city people not enjoying life! How's this for a plan? Your father owns this whole lake and all this land. He could make an exclusive camp here, stock the lake with fish and cater to the tired business men. I'd manage it for him. Say, I've got all the contacts in the world! We'd make a pile of money!"

The compassion in her eyes had turned to amazement, then to a cold fury, while he spoke.

EXPLANATION OF SATURDAY'S CARTOON

THE LITTLE GIANT—John Baconthorpe of England, applied himself to master every field of learning available at the time. He wrote with equal mastery about theology, philosophy, astronomy, astrology, botany, zoology and numerous other subjects. He was a very prolific writer, leaving a record of at least 120 large volumes. He was only 3 feet 2 inches tall, a real dwarf physically. A few of the little giant's volumes usually sufficed to "bury" the master twice over even when he stood on tiptoes. His pupils often diverted themselves in making the teacher "vanish" in the midst of his own works. Baconthorpe died in 1346, one of the greatest English scholars of all time.

Good Excuses But Bad Intentions

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

THEY are moving troops around Europe like bottles in a dairy. Armies are being pushed around like subwayites on the Times Square platform.

They don't call it belligerence and they don't page it war. They have got a lot of other explanations for it. France rushed 100,000 brigadiers up to the Rhine and attributed it to spring maneuvers. Germany hustled an equal number of dragoons to the Rhine and said they were trout fishermen.

England has three complete navies popping around the Mediterranean. They are looking for the breadfruit plants lost in the "Mutiny on the Bounty."

Austria just marched 78,000 Hussars to the German frontier and said they were there to do some map making. If you believe that one you are still a pushover for Ponzi and Stavisky.

Nobody in Europe tells the truth because nobody in Europe would believe it. But, when we see a tourist with a revolver, a bayonet and a lunch box primed with hand grenades, we ain't going to be fooled by a dollar kodak.

U. S. TAX CLAIMS

ESTATE AND WI

CASES ARE HEARD BY W. W. ARNO

Question Is Whether Dis bution of Corporat Funds Was Dividend Liquidation.

Deficiency tax claims of United States Government for $ 798.66 against the estate of Fr R. Tate, theater builder and estate owner, and for $24,97 against his widow, Mrs. Je Tate, 48 Vandeventer place, w heard today before former C gressman William W. Arnold, m ber of the Federal Tax Appe Board, in Courtroom 3 of the F eral Building.

Issues in the case were whether payments of $121,875 ea received in 1928 by Mr. and M Tate as stockholders of the M dleton Theater Co., constituted liquidating dividend, as the T counsel holds, or a straight di dend, as the Government hol and (2) how large a profit the p ment represented over the va of the stock held by Mr. and M Tate on March 1, 1913, when the come tax law went into effect. T profit would be taxable in a liqui tion dividend.

Still Works as Bookkeeper.

Amos J. Winchester, a witn today, testified that he had be bookkeeper for the Middle Theater Co. for 23 years, and was so engaged. In answer to tions of the Government's cou he said that no liquidating divide had been paid to holders of pr ferred stock of the Middleton com pany. He said the company wa "now out of business," but that up to the present there had been formal action of the stockholde or officers to dissolve the compan

The Government holds that t Middleton company has remain in business and has continued have assets, hence that the pa ment made to its stockholders 1928 was not a liquidating dividen but a straight dividend, taxable income. Mr. and Mrs. Tate own each a one-sixth interest in t Middleton company, which held t theater and hotel property at t southeast corner of Sixth and Ma ket streets, occupied by the Ame ican Annex (now York) Hotel, a the Grand Opera House. Tate di in July, 1934.
